Special Youth Camp Scheduled At 4-H Center

Maryland youth are invited to attend a "fun and exciting educational experience," according to Alice Hevner, that will focus on food, nutrition, fitness and natural resources. This resident camp program will be held August 19-21, for Maryland youth ages 8-18 (by Jan. 1) at the Western Maryland 4-H Center in Garrett County. The $25 cost includes lodging, meals and all class fees.

The camp program is sponsored by the 4-H program of the University of Maryland, and the cooperative extension service is open to all Maryland youth.

During the three days, participants will choose eight different workshops to attend, help prepare a total group meal and take time for planned and free recreational activities.

Some of the over 30 workshop topics include Amish cooking, fitness sport activities, rock climbing, "bread in a bag," outdoor cookery, garnishes, tree measuring, beekeeping/honey, and a beach party and Hawaiian Luau dinner, among others.

More information and a registration form may be obtained by contacting the Garrett County Extension Service, 202 S. Third Street, Oakland, or by calling 334-1990. Registration deadline is July 22, 1991.

High Blood Pressure and OTC Medicines

According to a recent report, 60% of the medicines Americans have at home are of the over-the-counter (OTC) variety. Anyone who also takes prescription medicines should be aware that some OTCs can affect other medicines and other health problems. In a recent issue of Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. John Bradley reviews the effect of four OTC ingredients on high blood pressure control:

Adrenergic Agents: Adrenalin-like ingredients such as phenylpropanolamine, ephedrine, and phenylephrine can increase blood pressure. Of these three, phenylpropanolamine is the most commonly used in OTC products. Single, immediate-release doses of phenylpropanolamine should be no greater than 37 mg; sustained-release no greater than 75 mg.

Ibuprofen: In one study, daily doses of less than 1,200 mg of the pain reliever ibuprofen did not increase the blood pressure of patients who were taking a prescription blood pressure medicine. Higher doses for more than a few days may elevate blood pressure.

Alcohol: This ingredient occurs in many OTC liquids to dissolve medicines. Doses providing the equivalent of more than two drinks a day are believed to raise blood pressure and should be avoided.

OVER 2,600 PEOPLE attended the second annual Western Maryland Loggers/Forestry Field Day, held recently at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry. The event featured 41 commercial exhibits, 29 informational and educational exhibits, and many special events.

LOG LOADING, If done properly, requires lots of skill and experience. A log loading competition was among the events of the second annual Loggers/Forestry Field Day, an event which stressed safety as well as speed. Pictured below are the winners of the competition. From left are: Wickey Myers, third place; Kevin Wiles, first place; and Ronnie Northcraft, second place.

HOW MUCH DOES IT WEIGH? - Over 400 of the 2,600 persons who attended the annual Loggers/Field Day participated in a contest to guess the gross weight of the above load of pulpwood.

MISS MARYLAND, Kimberly Grimm, Mtn. Lake Park, was among those in attendance at the second annual Western Maryland Loggers/Forestry Field Day. She is pictured above with Jennifer McKenzie, another "Maryland miss," who is the daughter of Olin McKenzie of McKenzie Brothers Logging. Below, Floyd Presley presents a demonstration on birds of prey to an interested audience.

Forestry Board Makes Plans For Resources Week

The Garrett County Forestry Board met July 11 in the DNR Resource Management Office at Mt. Nebo. The Board met to discuss the Forestry, Conservation and Natural Resources Week (F.C.N.R.W.) program, which will be held at Hickory Environmental Education Center near Accident July 28-August 31.

Two students Jason Reall, Oakland, and Adam Spiker, McHenry have been selected to represent Garrett County at this year's program.

The purpose of the program is to allow students interested in forestry and conservation as a career to learn more about the professions from personnel working within these fields.

The Garrett Forestry Board participated in the Maryland Forests Association Loggers/Forestry Field Day, June 14-15, and had a display in the event. Part of the display was a video of the 1990 F.C.N.R.W. and this attracted many visitors to the exhibit.

Correction Noted

An article appearing in last week's issue of The Republican listing the events of the upcoming Garrett County Agricultural Fair omitted information about the pony and horse pulls to be held at noon on Friday. The horse pull will follow the pony pull.

The article also indicated that Lillian Reckner should be contacted concerning the four-wheel drive pick-up pull, which is to follow the parade on Thursday evening. In fact, Reckner should be contacted only about the parade. Her phone number is 387-5277.

YOUR TAX DOLLARS ARE BURNING

Bradley Manor is a slum. It's an example of your tax dollars abused -- going up in smoke!

"Rehabilitation of the housing units would no longer be cost effective."

--Tim Dugan,
then Garrett County Planning Director,
The Republican, July 1, 1981.

"No one wanted to live there anymore except people who needed the low rent," said one local observer. "It was all downhill from there."
--Baltimore Sun, August 9, 1981.

"Some of us knew all along it would be a disaster. Those units never should have been put here in the first place. The best thing that could happen is if someone comes in with a match or a wrecking crew."
--Tom Butscher, Baltimore Sun, August 9, 1981.

BROKEN PROMISES. WASTED MONEY. DETERIORATED HOUSING. BANKRUPTCY COURT. ONE BIG LIE. AN EYESORE!

Weekend College Slated At GCC

For the first time, Garrett Community College will be offering a Weekend College of three credit courses that will meet every third Saturday, from September until May. This is a new concept in scheduling courses, according to Joan B. Crawford, director of enrollment development.

Courses being offered in this time frame are English 101 Composition--Expository Writing, Psychology 101--General Psychology, and Computer Science 105--Introduction to Computers. The English course will meet Saturday mornings, from 8:30-11:30, and the psychology and computer science courses will meet from noon to 3 p.m. A student will be able to take a total of six credits in the academic year.

Classes for the Weekend College will begin September 7, and will meet for 13 sessions, ending May 9. There will be no classes on holiday weekends or Autumn Glory Festival weekend in October.

Crawford explained the rationale for this type of scheduling. "We are trying to accommodate persons who work all week and who either cannot or do not wish to take evening classes," she said. "If this proves to be a popular way to take college courses, we will undoubtedly offer more courses in this time frame in the future."

Interested persons may register for these courses at the Registrar's Office of the college during business hours, weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Anyone desiring further information may call Crawford at 387-6666.

Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Farm Bureau Seeks Additional Co-Sponsors For Wetlands Bill

Reps. Jimmy Hayes (D-La.) and Tom Ridge (R-Pa.), along with W.J. "Billy" Tauzin (D-La.), Beryl Anthony (D-Ark.) and Don Young (R-Alaska), have introduced H.R. 1330, the Comprehensive Wetlands Conservation and Management Act of 1991. Farm Bureau strongly supports this legislation and is seeking additional co-sponsors.

The bill makes the following changes in Section 404 of the Clean Water Act:

·Realistic wetlands definitions. The current criteria used to define wetlands is too broad and results in the regulation of large amounts of land that, from a practical standpoint, do not have any wetlands values or functions. H.R. 1330 defines wetlands in a manner that protects true wetland areas.

·Excludes prior converted cropland. All prior converted agricultural land would be excluded from regulation under the Clean Water Act's 404 program. These lands no longer exhibit any wetland characteristics and should not be regulated as such.

·Clarifies normal farming practices. Current law provides an exemption from individual permit requirements for normal farming and ranching activities on farmed wetlands. This bill clarifies and reinforces this important exemption.

·Wetlands classification. Wetlands legislation should recognize that all wetlands do not share the same values and functions. H.R. 1330 would result in the classification of wetlands by value and function.

·Compensation. The regulation of wetlands has emerged as a federal land use policy that limits, restricts or prohibits economic activity on much privately owned land. H.R. 1330 requires that compensation be provided to landowners for the loss of economic use of private lands.

·Excludes man-made wetlands. Man-made or artificial wetlands, such as farm ponds, irrigation ditches and wetlands created by poorly designed public works projects, should not be subject to regulation. They are not naturally occurring waters of the United States. The bill would exclude from regulation all farm ponds, irrigation ditches and drainage ditches, as well as incidentally created wetlands exhibiting wetlands values and function for less than five years.

·Compatible wetland crops. Some agricultural commodities, such as cranberries, are entirely compatible with wetland conservation. Production of these crops should be encouraged and regulatory barriers should be removed. This bill would allow cranberry growers to expand production without permit requirements.

The co-sponsor from Maryland is Rep. Helen Bentley.

Oakland Southern States To Hold Meeting/Election

Highlights of the annual Southern States Oakland Cooperative membership meeting will be the election of local board and Farm Home Advisory Committee members, along with operations reports. They will be presented at 1:30 p.m., Friday, July 26, at the local Southern States dealership in Mtn. Lake Park, with the business session starting at 5 p.m.

In keeping with this year's theme, "Cultivating Innovation," the local planning group has tried to be innovative in developing ideas and features for the meeting.

The Southern States district manager will present a taped report from President and Chief Executive Officer Gene A. James.

Local operating statements and services rendered to agriculture in the community will be discussed and there will be a special recognition ceremony for local board and FHAC members who retire this year.

House Approves 1992 Farm Spending Measure

A $52.6 billion agricultural appropriations bill was approved late last month by the House.

Of the total, $32 billion will be spent on food programs. A total of $8.5 billion is for Commodity Credit Corp. spending and $12.4 billion for discretionary spending.

Despite limitations under the new budget law, the House maintained funding for many key programs that Farm Bureau has supported, according to Grace Ellen Rice, associate director in the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office.

"Discretionary spending is now subject to spending caps under the new budget law, so it has become almost impossible to increase appropriations because of the caps and offset requirements," Rice said.

Funding levels for 1992 include the following for USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service programs: $27.8 million for animal damage control, $67.1 million for brucellosis eradication, $7.6 million for pseudorabies, $1.8 million for scrapie and $13.1 million for boll weevil.

In the Agricultural Research Service, $2.1 million was funded for minor-use pesticide research, $10.1 million for integrated pest management and $99 million for the national research initiative.

The federal crop insurance program remained intact and received the funding requested by the administration: $322.8 million for the 1992 budget year.

A program that was not funded was the wetlands reserve program, which was designed to restore and protect 1 million acres of wetlands between 1991 and 1995. Cost of the program against the baseline set by the Congressional Budget Office would have been $250 million.

The Senate has not yet begun consideration of its appropriations bills, Rice said. Congress has until Oct. 1 to finalize the 1992 budget.

Veal Quality Assurance Program Is Successful, According To USDA

The continued success of the Veal Quality Assurance Program in reducing violative antibiotic residues in veal calves is demonstrated in the newly released results of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service's 1990 residue monitoring program, announced the American Veal Association (AVA) recently.

The FSIS released the results of its 1990 residue program for all meats. Violative residues in veal, for the second year in a row, have continued to decline to an all time low. Special-fed veal, which accounts for most of the veal consumed in this country, has a 0.33 percent violation rate, representing 18 out of 5,518 calves tested.

The AVA attributes this continued reduction to the efforts of veal farmers, in cooperation with the AVA, FSIS, FDA, Cooperative Extension Service, meat packing industry, feed industries and antibiotic cuppliers, to reduce violative residues through the Veal Quality Assurance Program.

"All members of the veal industry have worked very hard to reduce the already low violative residues in veal," said Pat Ewing, AVA Board member and chairman of the organization's Quality Assurance Education Program Committee. "We are committed to providing American consumers with a wholesome product and, while pleased with the continued progress of the industry, we'll keep working toward elimination of all violative antibiotic residues in veal."

The Veal Quality Assurance Education Program was developed three years ago. Veal producers voluntarily participate in the program to ensure that all calves shipped from their farms are healthy, wholesome and meet FDA, USDA and EPA specifications. The program is a cooperative effort between the farmer and the government agencies and is monitored by periodic sampling at packing plants by FSIS.

The AVA is the organization representing the nation's veal producers and allied industry.

Maryland Ag Department Completes First Soviet Aquaculture Exchange

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr. announced the successful completion of the first exchange of aquaculture experts from the Soviet Union to Maryland. Six Soviet aquafarmers visited and worked at aquaculture facilities across Maryland. They returned to their country on July 6.

"This first exchange was a fantastic success. The Soviets didn't want to go home and their hosts didn't want them to leave. You can't get any more successful than that," Cawley said.

The exchange was a result of an agreement between Maryland and the U.S.S.R. Ministry of Fisheries signed in August, 1990.

A return exchange visit by six Maryland aquaculturists is being planned for early September.

In addition, the Soviet Tall Ship KRUZENHERN has been visiting Baltimore's Inner Harbor since July 12 and will enjoy a 10-day stay. The ship is a Soviet Ministry of Fisheries vessel, and during its stay, her cadets and officers will have an opportunity to tour a Maryland aquaculture facility on the Eastern Shore.

"These visits and exchanges are a direct result of Governor William Donald Schaefer's trade missions to the Soviet Union. The benefits of the trips will be with us for years to come. This is particularly true with equaculture which is a new and growing industry in Maryland," said Cawley.

Garage Is Research Subject For West Virginia University Professor

West Virginia University Professor Bob Diener's research is garbage. Literally.

Diener, who is with the Division of Resource Management in the WVU College of Agriculture and Forestry, is studying composting of municipal and agricultural solid waste.

"Up to 50 percent of the materials going into landfills now are what we call organics, things that can be composted very effectively," he said. "We can look at composting as the ultimate recycling, because these organic materials came from the fields and forests and really should go back there. Compost can be used as a much needed soil amendment."

Diener believes he is perfectly placed to do such a study. "Who better than an agricultural engineer to do this sort of work?" he said. "We claim this area for our own. I have always spoken out in that respect."

The researcher will try to determine the most efficient way of performing the composting process, considering variables such as temperature, moisture content, carbon-nitrogen ratio, and heat and balance. Marketing studies will also be included.

Composting on a commercial basis in West virginia will require the development of facilities. Diener is helping write guidelines for regulatory agencies in Charleston. He is committed to protecting the environment, but believes that regulations must not be overly restrictive. "If it is still cheaper to use a landfill, what will we have achieved?" he said.

"The West Virginia: Make It Shine Program," administered by Judy Welch in the governor's office, gives Diener another avenue to reach West Virginians. The program ranges from environmental awareness activity books for children to serious workshops for adults. Diener will help present seminars on effective solid waste management.

"I am a teacher and a researcher and I love to help teach programs that show people things," he said. "These workshops will have new material not available anywhere else."

Diener believes that part of the problem in West Virginia is the lack of a clear understanding on the county level of how solid waste will be managed. Consultants produce reports, but often fail to develop goals and plans for handling the waste. The counties then are left with no recourse other than a landfill.

The "Make It Shine" seminars will try to build a coalition of citizens, haulers, waste professionals, regulators, solid waste authority members, planners, recyclers and others in the one-day workshops. "We want to help them to think about garbage in a new way. When they leave the workshop we hope they will continue to work together in implementing the goals and action plans they have developed for effective handling of solid waste in their counties," Diener said.

The Brookville, Pa., native was recognized by the College of Agriculture and Forestry this spring for his outstanding teaching ability. "I love my teaching and am so proud of that award," Diener said. He recently has developed courses of instruction in the areas of soil and water engineering and electricity and lighting.

Farming Costs Increase Again

It cost an average of 6.5% more to farm in 1990 than it did in 1989, according to government figures. Farm production expenditures totaled $132.2 billion last year, up from $124.1 billion in 1989. Only feed and fertilizer declined, 0.6% and 1%, respectively. Average expenditures per farm in 1990 were $61,873 - a $4,335, or 7.5% increase from a year earlier. Large farms with sales of $100,000 or more averaged $316,314 in production spending; for farms with sales of $40,000-$99,999, expenses averaged $78,295 and small farms with sales of less than $40,000 spent $15,959 on the average. Farm operations last year spent an average of $13,091 for farm services, including rent; $8,475 for feed; $7,401 for seeds, fertilizers and chemicals; $7,016 for livestock; and $6,246 for labor.

Crop Notes

Another reminder! Check your corn fields for the Western Corn Rootworm Beetle. According to Mike Beck, fieldman for Southern States, he is finding a lot of infestation. If the count is around two beetles per plant, you can expect a serious problem next year if you plan to grow corn in the same field.

Since we have received some rainfall, grasses will respond well to an application of nitrogen.

Successful GATT Conclusion Still Depends On Ag

Most nations of the world like to see the Uruguay Round of GATT negotiations come to a successful conclusion in 1991, an American Farm Bureau Federation trade delegation learned last week.

AFBF President Dean Kleckner and Vice President Harry Bell were in Geneva last week, reviewing the talks with representatives of several nations, including Australia, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Japan, Korea, India, New Zealand, France, Germany and other members of the European Community.

All agree that agriculture remains the most important component of the talks. No other sector is likely to hold up an agreement once agriculture is settled, so the phase-in of more market-oriented policies is crucial to an agreement, Kleckner said.

GATT Director General Arthur Dunkel, who also is chairing the crucial negotiations group, has recently released a set of guidelines by which governments could open their markets, compensate farmers who restrict production and phase down export subsidies. Delegates from several nations told the Farm Bureau leaders they are hoping for a follow-up paper from Dunkel providing more details on how the GATT can be reformed.

"There are tough political decisions to be made in world capitals," Kleckner said. "I sense a stronger desire among most nations to avoid a collapse like we had last year. I think we have a better chance now." Kleckner and Bell met with Dunkel in Geneva for more than two hours.

The sentiment among many delegates in Geneva, Kleckner said, is that Japan is willing to negotiate the opening of its markets, even for rice.

"Japan will not risk losing markets for other products because of rice," said Kleckner.

The opening of Japan's rice market may not come without protest from its farmers, however. Last week an estimated 50,000 Japanese farmers marched in Tokyo to oppose relaxation of the ban on rice imports, saying the imports would destroy their rural lifestyle.

In a meeting with delegate Masanori Hayashi of Japan, Kleckner brought up the recent incident in which officials forced U.S. exhibitors to remove a display of American rice from a food show in Japan. Threatened with jail, the exhibitors pulled the rice display on the last day of the show. Publicity of that event angered many in the U.S. and triggered a letter to the Japanese from Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan.

The key players in this year's discussions continue to be the U.S. and the EC. Kleckner said success will depend upon agreement to both the term and the degree of phasing in more market-oriented trade rules and phasing out trade-distorting policies.

"We hope that the non-agricultural sectors in Europe can convince negotiators to resolve the agricultural impasse for the good of the other economic sectors," said Kleckner. "American farmers and ranchers will stand to benefit once distorting world trade practices are phased out."

Two other events are linked to a successful resolution of any settlement in the Uruguay Round: plans to reform the policies under which EC agriculture operates, and this year's economic summit next week (July 15-17) in London. Both will impact the negotiations.

Farm Bureau supports U.S. efforts toward changing agricultural trade rules to eliminate distortions that put American farmers and ranchers at a disadvantage.

Block Cheese Price Increases Significantly

For the first time since last summer, the price for 40 pound blocks of cheddar cheese significantly increased. On May 10, the block price increased $0.01 per pound followed by a $0.06 per pound increase on May 17. This put the block price at a $1.14-3/4 per pound which is 3-3/4 cents above the support price of $1.11.

Whether or not this increase was caused by a stronger demand for cheese or from the recent announcement by the Secretary of Agriculture, Edward Madigan, is a good question. On May 10, the Secretary announced a number of short-term relief actions to help dairy farmers, three of which could be attributed to the strength in the cheese market: 1. The government would make advance purchases this year for next year's school lunch program and other domestic feeding programs. 2. The government would temporarily suspend the resale of CCC cheese and non-fat dry milk powder stocks so that inventory is isolated from the market, while prices are at or near support price levels. 3. Expand the Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) to include cheese as an eligible export commodity.

Despite a sizable decline in milk prices, total milk produced in 1991 is expected to set another record at one-to-two percent above the 1990 level.

Weed & Insect Field Days Organized For Preston Co. Forage Producers

A joint effort between the Soil Conservation Service, WVU Cooperative Extension Service, WV State Soil Conservation Committee and the WV Department of Agriculture, has organized two Weed and Insect Identification Field Days for Preston County corn and alfalfa producers. Examined will be corn and alfalfa crops being grown under typical farm conditions. A field scout with the WVDA will demonstrate scouting techniques and examine crops for insect diseases. Weed and insect control recommendations will be made by the WVU Cooperative Extension Service and the WV State Soil Conservation Committee.

Insect traps have been placed in the corn fields to monitor population levels. An attempt will be made to show how the traps can be of benefit to the average producer. Current insect populations, weed populations, and methods for controlling these will be discussed.

Field days will be located at the Wade Harsh Farm in Eglon on July 17, and at the Milford Gibson Farm in Bruceton Mills on July 18. Field days start at 9:30 a.m.

For more information on these field days, please contact Joe Hatton NPS Environmental Specialist WVSSCC at 300 Tunnelton St., Kingwood, or phone (304) 329-1922.

Blaze Destroys Second Floor Of Local House

The second floor of a two-story house near Red House was gutted by fire last Thursday morning, the cause of which was believed to be electrical in nature.

Oakland, Gorman, Aurora, and Mt. Grove fire departments were called to the residence at 11:17 a.m. and, upon arrival, found flames coming from the second story windows. While the fire was contained on the second floor, there was extensive damage to the entire house, however most of the furniture on the first floor was saved.

One resident of the house and an Oakland fire fighter sustained minor burns in the incident, while another Oakland fireman was treated for heat exhaustion. Aaron Kehana, 28, was treated for burns to his face, as was Oakland fire fighter Dave Spurrier. Mike Saunders, another Oakland VFD member, suffered the heat exhaustion.

A spokesman for the Oakland VFD was unsure as to the owner of the house, but noted that there was no insurance on the structure.

Firemen remained on the scene for about two and one-half hours. Also responding was the county air cascade vehicle, presently being housed at Grantsville VFD, and the Southern Rescue Squad, which rendered aid to those who were injured.

QUICK ACTION BY RESCUE VOLUNTEERS may have saved two victims of a single-engine airplane crash that occurred Saturday. The plane went down in a cornfield near the Gortner Airport, Blue Ribbon Road, and was completely destroyed. The pilot, Daniel K. Barnhart, 44, Hagerstown, and the passenger, Gary K. Stine, 48, Swanton, were both seriously injured in the accident, which occurred at 2 p.m. Members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department are shown above as they scramble to extricate the victims from the cockpit. See story.

Pilot, Passenger Seriously Injured In Single-Engine Plane Crash

Two men were badly injured, one critically, as a result of a single-engine airplane crash that occurred Saturday near the Gortner Airport, a private airfield on Blue Ribbon Road, five miles south of Oakland.

Daniel K. Barnhart, 44, Hagerstown, was piloting the plane at the time of the accident, and Gary K. Stine, 48, Swanton, was a passenger. Stine was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital following the crash, and was later transferred to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, where he was listed in critical condition this morning. He is in the intensive care unit with internal injuries.

Barnhart was flown from the crash scene to Cumberland Memorial Hospital in the Medevac Helicopter where he remained for several days. A hospital spokesperson stated this morning that he has since been released.

The plane went down at approximately 2 p.m. into a

G.C. Health Officials Request Funding Assistance For Domestic Violence Center

Garrett County Health Department officials met this week with the Garrett County Commissioners to request support in the effort to move the present Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Information Center from its current place in the health department to a private non-profit organization in the community, and to ask that revenue collected from marriage license fees be returned to that program.

Garrett County Health Officer Dr. Rex Archer, Deputy Health Officer Jay Cross, Director of Mental Health Joanna Younger, and Director of the Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Information Center Frances Callis each explained the importance to the commissioners of returning the center to the private sector and reported that state grant money is available for that effort.

Dr. Archer stated that, even though the program is in no danger of losing funds this year, "The health department cannot continue to subsidize the program because the budget will be tight next year." He added that the program would be "better served" in the private sector.

W.Va. Man Remains Hospitalized Following Fiery Sunday Crash

A Bayard, W.Va. man remains listed in "serious" condition at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, after being injured Sunday morning in a fiery crash on Route 560, near White Church Road.

Gary B. Pennington, 23, was seriously injured when the Chevrolet pickup he was operating left the northbound lane and traveled 100 yards down the highway shoulder before striking an embankment and overturning, according to the Maryland State Police, McHenry Detachment.

Pennington, and a passenger, Raymond A. Miller, 23, Gormania, W.Va., were both ejected from the truck as it rolled. The pickup then came to rest in the southbound lane and burst into flame, becoming fully engulfed.

Both injured men were initially taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. Miller was treated and later released.

Gorman volunteer firefighters responded to the scene and extinguished the fire.

FALLS ASLEEP

A Westminster couple escaped serious injury Wednesday when the driver reportedly fell asleep at the wheel of a Buick Century on U.S. Route 48, near the Chestnut Ridge Road.

The accident occurred when the vehicle left the left shoulder of the highway and struck a guardrail. The vehicle then became airborne, landed in the median strip, and struck a bridge support.

SWAMP SLATED -- The Department of Natural Resources Police will be conducting SWAMP (safer waterways through alcohol monitoring patrols) this Saturday, July 27, from 2-10 p.m. on Deep Creek Lake. According to Officer John Williams of the DNR Police, there will be an increased number of patrol boats on duty with an emphasis on detecting alcohol abuse violations. "It is prohibited by Maryland law to operate a vessel while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs," stated Williams. The purpose of SWAMP is to make waterways safer for all water recreation enthusiasts. Pictured above is Officer Richard Towers checking safety equipment of boaters, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Larkin, LaVale, who volunteered for an inspection.

NHS Bleachers Funding Approved By Commissioners

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week announced its approval, in a 2-1 vote, to fund the construction of new bleachers at Northern High School, at a cost of $34,500.

According to Brenda Butscher, chairperson of the board, Commissioner John Braskey informed the group this week that officials from the Garrett County Board of Education had torn down and condemned the NHS bleachers. Braskey then reportedly sought out bids for the project and presented the bid amount to the commissioners' board on Tuesday.

A motion was made by Braskey to fund the replacement project, and it was favorably passed, with Butscher as the dissenting vote. Butscher commented that she felt the county budget was too "tight" to fund the replacement, stating, "How can you justify taking it from the Gifted and Talented Program and putting the money there instead?"

She noted that the money will have to come from the county's contingency fund -- a fund used primarily to pay overtime wages to county roads employees in the winter months.

"If the education board did not have the money to do the project, then they shouldn't do it."

Three Rabies Cases Confirmed By Health Dept.

Three more cases of rabies have been confirmed by the Garrett County Health Department, according to Barbara Glover, sanitarian.

All three cases involved raccoons, and two occurred on the Oakland-Sang Run Road.

Case number 12 occurred July 16 on the Bumble Bee Road near Garrett Community College at the residence of Shorty Wachter. Wachter's dog fought with the diseased raccoon, and both Wachter and his wife handled the pet immediately follow-

Deer Park Man Sentenced In Sex Offense Case

A Deer Park man was sentenced in Garrett County District Court proceedings last week on a sex offense charge following a pre-sentence investigation.

Judge Jack R. Turney sentenced Robert E. McRobie, 34, to a one-year jail term (six months was suspended), fined him $50, and placed him on two years of supervised probation.

McRobie had been found guilty earlier of a fourth-degree sex offense against a seven-year-old female. In a plea agreement with State's Attorney James Sherbin, additional charges of second-degree sex offense, perverted practice, and battery were not prosecuted.

McRobie had been charged by the Maryland State Police when an investigation revealed that he had engaged in various sex acts with the juvenile while she was a kindergarten student.

In other District Court news, two Oakland women pleaded not guilty and were found not guilty of drug charges.

Robin R. Dimick, 32, and Kimberly A. Taliaferro, 25, had both been charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

The charges had been brought by the Maryland State Police, in conjunction with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, after responding to a loud party complaint at the home of Taliaferro on the Oakland-Sang Run Road on April 27.

The police alleged that they asked for permission to look in a game box located outside the residence. They said they were given permission. They reportedly found a small metal pipe in the box. The police then said they asked to search the house and were granted permission. Inside they allegedly found CDS paraphernalia, marijuana, and marijuana seeds.

Taliaferro denied giving her permission to search the house and said the police used illegal search and seizure procedures.

In another drug case, Jeffrey A. Maddocks, 19, and Jeremy S. DeWitt, 19, both of Oakland, were both found guilty of one count each of possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. Turney ordered pre-

Deep Creek Lake Is Not Contaminated

Rumors that have recently been circulating about the contamination of Deep Creek Lake are not true, according to Patty Manown, a Maryland Department of Natural Resources public relations official with the Deep Creek Lake Natural Resources Management area.

The rumors apparently were generated from a United Press International newspaper article that appeared in several Pennsylvania newspapers claiming that Deep Creek Lake in the Upper Perkiomen Valley in Montgomery County, Pa. is contaminated. The lake is reportedly located approximately 30 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

Those reports, either through vague reporting or readers' misperceptions, have spawned calls and inquiries from "unhappy future tourists," according to Manown, who added, "Our Deep Creek Lake, in Maryland, is fine and quite safe for swimming, boating and other activities."

Diane Wolfe, executive director of the Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County Promotion Council, further reassured lake users by stating, "We want to assure people that it is not our lake that is contaminated -- our lake is as pure and clean as it always has been."

Mostly Favorable Comments Voiced At Public Hearing For Wisp Funding

In excess of thirty persons were in attendance at a public hearing held this week by the Garrett County Commissioners to determine whether or not they will pursue community development block grant funding that would then be lent to Recreational Industries, Inc. to retain and expand the workforce and operation at the Wisp Ski Resort in McHenry. Remarks made favoring that course of action significantly outweighed those reflecting negative responses.

Tom Jones, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, began the hearing by explaining the process of the grant application and the conditions to be met in order to qualify. The first condition, he stated, was that the funding sought would "create or retain a number of jobs commiserate with the amount of money requested." In addition, the development of a full business plan would be required, including a repayment plan.

Jones stated that a limit of $1 million exists for the grant, meaning that the county could receive funding up to that amount. At this point, it is not known what that amount will be (if the grant is pursued and received). Preliminary discussion, however, has taken place between Recreational Industries and the financing group from the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development.

The public hearing Tuesday followed the recent report from the Bank of Baltimore that Recreational Industries, owner of the Wisp Ski Resort, was unable to repay a loan of approximately $7 million because of unseasonably warm winter weather in the recent past and because of losses suffered from the corporation's ownership of units at the Wisp Hotel.

Jones further explained that, if the decision is made to go ahead with the grant application and if that grant is forthcoming, the money would come from a federal

Mystic Knights Of The Sea Concert Slated At GCC

Mystic Knights of the Sea, an award-winning rhythm and blues band from Pittsburgh, Pa., will entertain for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival annual outdoor concert and picnic on the Garrett Community College green, Saturday, August 3, at 6 p.m.

Persons attending are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets and picnic baskets to enjoy this concert, which has proved to be one of the most popular events of the summer season.

The Mystic Knights of the Sea won the fifth annual Music Awards in 1990, sponsored by the National Record Mart and presented by KDKA-TV 2 in Pittsburgh as the best rhythm and blues band. The group has performed on stage with Bruce Springsteen and Stevie Ray Vaughn.

Two members of the band, Gil Snyder, keyboardist, and Kenny Blake, jazz horn player, won the "best in category" awards three different years. Snyder was formerly with the Iron City House Rockers and had a record contract with MCA Records. Blake worked with Walt Harper and the Keystone Rhythm Band. Lead singer, Chizmo Charles, is considered by critics to be a musical legend in Pittsburgh, where he has performed for most of his 61 years.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the gate, or they may be purchased in advance at Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry, or Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville. Reservations may be made by calling the GLAF Box Office at 387-6666 or Englander's Pharmacy at 334-9455. In the event of rain, the concert will be held in the college gymnasium.

Hot dogs, beverages, and light refreshments will be sold at the concert for those who do not bring picnic baskets.

Funding for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival events is provided in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

DESIGNATED DRIVER PROGRAM BEING DEVELOPED - Spearheaded by the Garrett County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, local restaurant owners, law enforcement officials, and others, the development of the Garrett County Designated Driver Program is well underway. Members of the committee met last Wednesday to discuss the creation of a package that will be presented to all local establishments that serve alcoholic beverages. The package will most likely include such things as a slogan, an emblem or logo, napkins, table tents, publicity material, plus information on standards and restrictions. Those meeting at Checker's Restaurant, Deep Creek Lake, last week were, pictured left to right, Patty Manown, representing the Department of Natural Resources; Elaine McDonald, of Silver Tree Inn; Jay Cross, deputy health officer and member of the Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse; Thomas Bratten Jr., Floyd Baker, and Anna Bishop, GCCADA members; and Cathy Lohr, of Lohr Distributors, Oakland.

Surowick Joins Children, Youth, Families Office

Bob Stephens, Executive Director of the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth and Families, (OCYF) Inc., recently announced the addition of Laura Surowick to the Staff. Ms. Surowick will have the primary responsibility for the Family Preservation Program, and will work with various community agencies to prevent the break-up of families and the removal of children from the homes of their parents.

This new program will consist of a six week in-home intensive intervention in the homes of the client/families. Referrals to this program will come from the Department of Social Services, the Department of Juvenile Services, the Board of Education, and the County Health Department. These referrals include children who are designated as being at imminent risk of being removed form their homes for a variety of reasons including neglect, educational difficulties, and delinquency.

It is the intent of the OCYF to provide better services at a fraction of the cost currently incurred when a child is removed from the family home. Part of the money saved will be used to fund prevention programs in Garrett County.

Surowick is a graduate of Onondaga Community College, Rochester Institute of Technology, and West Virginia University, where she received a master's degree in social work with a concentration in family practice.

She has also completed training in psychiatric rehabilitation practitioner and trainer skills at the Center for Rehabilitation Research and Training in Mental Health at Boston University. She was most recently employed at the Garrett County Health Department as a social worker in the mental health division, and has worked at the Family Crisis Center Inc., in Keyser, W.Va., as well as with Potomac Highlands Guild Inc., in Romney, W.Va.

PASSENGER STILL CRITICAL - Gary K. Stine, Swanton, remains in critical condition as a result of the plane crash pictured above. He was a passenger in the single-engine plane. As the photo shows, the aircraft was ripped to pieces on impact. The pilot, Daniel K. Barnhart, Hagertown, has fortunately been released from the hospital since the Saturday mishap. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is currently conducting an investigation into the cause of the crash, according to Don Tucker, investigator for the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. See story.

corn field near the airport. The nose of the plane was torn off in the impact, and the plane was demolished. Members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department responded to the scene and extricated the two men from the cockpit.

The Federal Aviation Administration in conjunction with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office is currently conducting an investigation into the cause of the accident, according to a Sheriff's Office spokesperson.

Sheriff's Office Logs Arrests, Probes Thefts

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office made various arrests this week and began investigations on two theft cases. The officers also investigated a single vehicle accident.

Tina M. Kurrupis, 31, Baltimore, was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) on July 15 on Rt. 219 North. Dep. J. Murphy stopped the driver when he reportedly noticed her operating her vehicle erratically. The officer allowed the defendant to sign the citation after the 11:30 p.m. arrest and she was released.

James L. Harley, 53, Oakland, was charged with DWI on July 18 when Murphy observed him driving erratically. The 2:10 a.m. arrest took place on Rt. 219 North, according to the police record. Harley was permitted to sign the citation and was transported home.

An arrest warrant was recently issued for Marvin E. Guthrie, 21, Oakland. A criminal summons for Guthrie had apparently expired which led to the issuance of the warrant. The charge against the defendant concerned bad checks.

John P. Georg, 20, Deer Park, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant issued from the Garrett County District Court. Georg apparently failed to appear for court on July 17.

Thefts

Two persons reported thefts to the Sheriff's Office this week, both involving stolen tools.

Catherine F. Duckworth, Swanton, told police that someone removed three Andersen windows from a house being remodeled on Mt. Zion Road. The theft occurred sometime between July 12-20.

Other items in the home had been moved from one room to another, and Ms. Duckworth stated that she felt the culprit may have had plans to return to the home to retrieve these items.

The loss in the theft has been estimated at $450.

Jonathon Harvey, Deer Park, reported that sometime during the night of July 13-14, a person or persons removed his toolbox from his front yard. Harvey was working on a boat in his yard, and had decided to leave the tools out overnight. When he returned to work on the boat the next morning, they were gone.

Stolen were numerous wrenches, sockets, ratchets, pliers, screw drivers, and a set of Allen wrenches. The loss in the theft has been set at $200.

Investigations are continuing in the theft cases.

Car Accident

An Oakland man was charged with failure to control speed to avoid an accident after he was involved in a single-vehicle mishap on Bethlehem Road.

Timothy E. Fike, 24, was traveling west on Bethlehem Road at an apparent high rate of speed when his vehicle dropped to the left shoulder in a left turn. He traveled approximately 150 feet on the shoulder and then steered to the left, crossing both lanes and striking an embankment. The vehicle then overturned and skidded approximately 25 feet on its top.

No injuries were reported in the mishap, which occurred on Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Keith Hooper, 17, the driver of the vehicle, and Sharon Hooper, 45, were both taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where they were treated and released. They were transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

HOT AND STEAMY are great conditions for haymaking, provided there is enough rain to allow the grass to grow so there is hay to make. Delegate Hattery Announces Bid For Congressional Seat

District 4-A Delegate H. Thomas Hattery, a Frederick County Democrat, was in Garrett County Sunday to announce his bid, in the March 3 Democratic Primary Election, for the Sixth Congressional District seat, currently held by Republican incumbent Beverly B. Byron.

Hattery filed for the office July 2, and was in Garrett County Sunday when he met informally with a group of local Democrats at Will O' the Wisp at Deep Creek Lake. A three-term member of the Maryland General Assembly, Hattery serves on the Ways and Means Committee, is Deputy Majority Whip, and is chairperson of the Transportation Subcommittee.

While addressing the local group, Hattery stated, "I'm here to find out what you think your representation down there in Washington should do to make a stronger nation and a better life for us all."

"I'm concerned that America's leaders have forgotten to dream of an America that serves everyday people -- working and middle-class folks. The citizens of this "Western Maryland region know what it is like to take a dream and, through hard work, careful planning and perseverance, turn it into reality -- into something better for themselves, their children and their neighbors," said Hattery.

Hattery is also a member of the Southern States Energy Board, the Southern Legislative Conference Energy Committee, and the Select Committee on Intelligence. He was named as one of the ten outstanding young Marylanders in 1990.

He graduated, with honors, from American University in 1974, with a bachelor's degree in political science. He is president of Lomond Publications, Inc., is the author and editor of Western Maryland: A Profile, and manages the family farm near Mt. Airy.

While at the Sunday gathering, Hattery stated, "Congress should spend its energy serving the people of our country and not just the savings and loan and corporate chieftains who make multi-million dollar salaries to dismember companies and put people out of work."

"We should demand from our representatives the same things we demand of ourselves and more. We should demand hard work towards the realization of a long-term goal, not just temporary measures designed to put off the tough decisions for someone else to face later. And we should demand that our representatives listen to us," he said, adding, "Sometimes politicians think they know so much more than the people they were elected to serve that they forget to listen. As the representative in Congress from this district, I will listen; I'm here to listen now and I'll be here to listen after I'm elected to Congress."

Hattery assured the group that he would return to the county "many times" in order to be available to the people of Garrett County, and has encouraged local residents to call him "for any reason" at 1-800-743-1992, or to write to him at 7101 Woodville Road, Mt. Airy, Md., 21771.

He resides with his wife, Debbie, a psychiatric nurse at Frederick Memorial Hospital, and their two children, Nora, 11, and David, 9.

GCC Explains Early College Admission Plan

Fifteen high school seniors have expressed interest in beginning their college careers at Garrett Community College under the Early College Admissions Program (ECAP) for the 1991-92 academic year, according to Darlene Reed of the GCC Admission Office.

Ms. Reed explained that ECAP is an articulated program between GCC and the Garrett County Board of Education that has been in existence since the mid-1970's. It remains an option for highly motivated students wishing to gain a year's head start on their college education while concurrently completing a high school diploma, she said.

During the past school year, three students were enrolled as freshmen at GCC, two of whom completed the program. One student withdrew from the program because of illness. Participating in the program were Bridget Clickener, Mtn. Lake Park, Aimme Nicklin, Deer Park, and Stephen Tasker, Oakland.

Miss Clickener has been accepted at Frostburg State University as a sophomore in the business administration program. Miss Nicklin and Tasker will be continuing their studies at GCC in the fall.

Seven high school seniors are currently enrolled in the fall 1991 freshman class. They are Daniel Cuppett, Rebecca Clary, Corbin DeBerry, Jessica Gank, Kathleen Gibson, Heather Graham, and Kristie McCartney. They are waiting for a decision from the Board of Education as to their eligibility.

August 1 is the deadline for high school seniors who wish to spend their senior year enrolled at Garrett Community College under the Early College Admissions Program. Applicants should first apply to GCC and then seek approval by the Board of Education.

For more information regarding ECAP, persons may contact Darlene Reed in the GCC Admission Office sentence investigations for both men.

The pair had been arrested on April 1 by the Oakland City Police Department after being stopped for operating a vehicle with a loud exhaust. A search of the vehicle revealed a glass pipe with marijuana residue.

Michael C. Fitzwater, 31, Deer Park, was found guilty of one count of possession of marijuana and one count of possession of drug paraphernalia.

For the drug possession charge he was given a 30-day suspended jail term, fined $100, and placed on six months of unsupervised probation. In a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office, two additional charges of possession of illegal prescription drugs were not prosecuted.

Fitzwater had been arrested when a Maryland State Police officer observed what appeared to be a hand-to-hand drug transaction at Erv's Place in Deer Park. A search revealed marijuana and two prescription drugs, Equagesic and Darvocet.

In yet another drug case, Patrick C. Heilman, 37, Arnold, had his drug case placed on the stet docket provided he relinquish his 1980 Harley Davidson to the county as per an agreement set up by the State's Attorney's Office.

Heilman had been charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. He had been arrested by the Maryland State Police on September 12, 1990, after he gave police permission to search his vehicle during a traffic stop. The search revealed a medicine bottle containing marijuana and a pipe with marijuana residue.

A Friendsville woman was given a 30-day suspended jail term and placed on six months of unsupervised probation after being found guilty on numerous bad check charges.

Diane M. Buckingham, 37, was found guilty on five counts of passing worthless checks. She was fined $5 for each count. She was found not guilty on two counts of theft.

Buckingham had been charged by Accident IGA, Mtn. Lake Park IGA, Oakland Super Valu, and Sheetz, Inc., after failing to make good checks she had written for merchandise received at those businesses in January and February.

We Need The Wisp...

It was gratifying to see so many local business persons and other individuals at a hearing in the county commissioners' office Tuesday afternoon, urging the commissioners to vote in favor of pursuing a grant to provide a low-interest or no-interest loan to assist the owners of the Wisp Resort in McHenry.

As so many of those in attendance so eloquently stated, the Wisp is one of this county's greatest economical assets, the value of which would be difficult to measure. Not only does it employ an average of over 200 persons throughout the course of the year, but it also represents a major piece of the county's tax base, especially when one includes the nearby developments that are in existence because of the Wisp. The Rachuba condominiums on Marsh Mountain are a prime example.

The filter-down effect of the Wisp reaches much farther. Every single motel, restaurant, service station, and every other business within miles of the resort can thank the Wisp for a large chunk of their business, particularly during the winter months. If the Wisp suddenly ceased to exist, the pocketbook of each and every resident of this county, from McHenry to Finzel to Kitzmiller, would experience a negative effect.

The Heise family has practically single-handedly turned Garrett County into a year-round recreation area, rather than just a summer vacation spot, and they have done it via years of hard work and personal sacrifice. There are some who say that the Wisp will continue, with or without the Heises. That is probably true, but who knows what kind of management would replace them? The track record of other areas that have been purchased by conglomerates has been terrible in most cases. The Heises' record in terms of expansion and improvements has been outstanding.

Another point we wish to emphasize is that an affirmative vote by the county commissioners on this issue does not put the county at risk financially, nor will it have any effect on property taxes. It simply means that the county government becomes the agent for acquiring a low- or no-interest loan. There are many similar loans or industrial revenue bonds that have been approved for other local businesses over the years.

With a few other creative ideas that are now being implemented by the Wisp owners, we are confident that, with assistance from local government, they will weather this storm and once again be on a sound financial base.

Letters to the Editor

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the chairman of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Chairman,

At a recent meeting of the Bloomington Improvement Association Incorporated, a motion was made and seconded to protest any action of the Garrett County Board of Education to close the Bloomington Elementary School. Our action for protesting this move is being outlined as follows.

1. The school here in Bloomington is in very good condition. Most of the buildings were erected after 1960. It has a good cafeteria, a well used auditorium and gymnasium. A new computer room has just been installed. The classrooms are large and private. There are excellent working conditions between PTA and teachers. Working together for many years has cemented relations between PTA and staff. Their main concern has been for the education and safety of all children. Considering the financial conditions of all boards of educations, it would not appear to be economically sound to take on the construction of a new school in the near future. With the shortage of supplies and educational materials every year, extra monies should be incorporated in the schools for these purposes and not for new construction and additional busing.

2. Bloomington is a small, tight-knit community. We have one store, a bank, a credit union office, a church, and the school. The families, on Backbone Mountain and the town back the school in all of its endeavors and activities. By taking the school from us, you would be taking the heart from this community. Property values would probably decline. Young people would no longer move to this area because we would no longer have a school. Population and repopulating would be at a standstill. Since our children spend a great deal of their time in school, we think a small school environment is much better for the students educationally, morally and for their safety.

3. We have just installed a new water system and the county has installed a sewerage system, both being dependent partially on usage by the school. Good water and sewerage are essential to any school. You will probably have to install a water and sewerage system for the new school. These installations do not come cheap.

4. Busing will be essential to the new school. It seems as though all boards of education are trying their darndest to have all the students in their counties bused to school. You know the conditions of the roads and how the fog hangs over this mountainous area. Every extra mile is endangering some child's health while being bused. We don't know what the busing costs are at present, but are willing to believe future transportation cost will equal the cost of a student's education.

5. A qualified and dependable fire company and rescue squad are readily available in just a few moments at this school.

We hope you pay close attention to our comments and make any decision with all this in mind.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully yours,
Harry A. Harvey
Secretary

To the Editor:

The Terra Alta Youth League is a program of service to youth. It is geared to provide an outlet of healthful activity and a training under good leadership in the atmosphere of wholesome community participation.

The movement is dedicated to helping children become good and decent citizens. It strives to inspire them with a goal and to enrich their lives towards the day when they must take their places in the world. It establishes for them rudiments of teamwork and fair play.

In styling the Youth League to the mental and physical capacities of children under 18 years of age, the Youth League found warm response in the Terra Alta community. In growing numbers, families enjoy the pleasures and satisfaction of working and playing together shaped the expanding Youth League community, a vital force that, in turn, has shaped the lives and future of over 150 youngsters every year.

The affairs of the T.A.Y.L. are administered by the Board of Directors. The established policies, operating procedures and controls of the program are carried out by the chairman and the president. The Board of Directors consist of a chairman, president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and four other elected officials.

Our funds are in checking accounts at both local banks and require the signature of the president and secretary-treasurer to be cashed. A financial statement is available to each board member monthly. Bills are read and voted on by the B.O.D. The public is always welcomed at these meetings as advertised.

The Youth League paid the Park Commission a field user's fee of $200 for the months of April, May, June and July. The Youth League's weekend schedule, given to the park commission in early March, always leaves at least one ball field open for reunions and/or the general public. The Youth League is for the improvement of the whole park, not just the ball fields. Naturally, our number 1 priority is the upkeep of these ball fields. The cost of maintaining and improving those fields for 1991 was approximately $1,150. This sum is paid solely by the T.A.Y.L. The cost of uniforms and equipment for our youth in 1991 was approximately $4,050. We will not sacrifice the safety of a child to buy cheap equipment. We buy only top quality merchandise. Insurance for our league was $625. We buy one trophy for all of our participants and present it to them at the end of the year banquet. These trophies cost the league approximately $1,280. Our total expenditures through July 1, 1991 came to approximately $7,305. Our total revenue from our Sponsors ($200 per sponsor) and players fees equals $5,070. As these figures show, it is evident that our league must work hard to fund our needs.

Last year the Youth League offered to build a new ball field, complete with bathrooms, concession stand, dug outs and complete fencing around the complex, along with improvements on the lower field at no expense to the town or the Park Commission. All we asked in return was that the T.A.Y.L. be given scheduling rights for the children of the community. Because of denial of the scheduling rights, we were turned down. We felt that if we could build this complex, it would take care of all community needs.

The Youth League has never seen nor been asked to sign a contract pertaining to the use of the fields as stated by Spahr.

A former Youth League player lost his life in an automobile accident in 1990. In lieu of flowers, his parents requested that donations be made to the T.A.Y.L. This money is kept in a separate account in the Terra Alta Bank. The Youth League has kept in contact with his parents on this issue. The money will be spent in memory of this young man only, and it will be spent wisely for the benefit of the community youth as the fund was intended. We hope to someday build a new field and dedicate it in his memory.

The T.A.Y.L. does not want to control the whole park. However, we do feel that with the growing number of kids in our league, we should do everything we can to accommodate them with playing facilities.

The T.A.Y.L Board of Directors feel that the park has the potential to be one of the best in the area. We hope that with the abolishment of the present Park Commission, the Town Council will do everything they can to improve the park in all ways, as it is very badly needed. The Terra Alta Youth League will be there to assist you in any way possible.

To the Editor:

Arthritis is commonly thought of as a disease of the elderly, but an estimated 200,000 American children experience the daily pain and limitations of arthritis. During the week of July 28-August 3, the Arthritis Foundation is focusing its efforts to inform people about childhood arthritis. Unfortunately, the children in the Maryland area with arthritis are all too aware of its impact each day of the year.

Much like arthritis in adults, childhood arthritis is painful, limits activity and can sometimes by crippling. But children also face unique challenges. Growth may be affected by the disease process or the medication that is necessary. Activity with other children may be limited because of fatigue or physical limitations.

Luckily, the research and support of the Arthritis Foundation provides help and hope to families coping with childhood arthritis. Greater knowledge about the disease is being acquired and treatments studied. Meanwhile, information, support, and services are available through the Arthritis Foundation that can make life with arthritis easier and less painful.

Yes, arthritis affects 37 million Americans, 640,000 in Maryland alone. But it is more than minor aches and pains that only affect older people. Arthritis affects people of all ages and can have a tremendous impact on one's life no matter what age. However, there is help and hope available. I encourage everyone in Maryland with arthritis, or who knows someone with arthritis to call the Arthritis Foundation, Western Maryland Branch at 759-9411 or 1-800-365-3811 for information and services that can make a difference.

Sincerely,
Norine M. Walker

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

"INVESTING IN PEOPLE"
By Governor William Donald Schaefer

We make a lot of "investments" in Maryland. Sometimes we invest in the pension system, and sometimes we invest in buildings that provide services to citizens. But the function of government that has always meant the most to me is the investments we make in people -- those are the kinds of investments that provide the greatest dividends. A recurring people investment that touches just about everyone's life at one point or another is the money and resources we spend on education, both K-12 and post-secondary education. To give the state a blueprint for post-secondary education, the Maryland Higher Education Commission -- which is responsible for advising the General Assembly and governor on higher education matters -- has come up with a new master plan. Not too surprisingly, it's called, "Investing in People."

Commission members considered ideas for higher education for three years, holding public hearings, conducting demographic studies, surveying business needs, and figuring out what Maryland needs from education for its economy. The theme that continued reappearing was that higher education has a responsibility to meet the education needs of the citizens, while also having a role in the economic development needs of the state -- a pretty tall order. And as for those investments I was talking about, higher education truly is an investment. In one way or another, whether as taxpayers, students, or parents, Marylanders invest $1.5 billion a year in higher education.

The Commission had some important priorities, among them making the University of Maryland at College Park -- the state's "flagship" campus -- one of the nation's best public research universities, while also giving College Park a bigger role statewide in offering academic programs around Maryland. Other goals included providing more higher education opportunities in every region of Maryland; strengthening historically black institutions; making sure employees and companies have access to training programs for jobs; and improving the quality of education in undergraduate programs, as well as in kindergarten through the 12th grades.

Finally, the Commission also continues to look at ways to strengthen the colleges and universities in the Baltimore area, suggesting that the state consider the possibility of consolidating the University of Maryland at Baltimore with the University of Maryland Baltimore County, and Coppin State College with Morgan State University. It's a great deal to consider, but I'm convinced by the Commission's track record and the forward-thinking approach of Higher Education Secretary Shaila Aery that the plan won't be gathering dust on the shelf.

Already the Commission, acting as an advocate for the citizens, has guided the state takeover of the New Community College of Baltimore, pushed through major scholarship reforms that will help more Marylanders benefit from education after high school, and overhauled and improved the community college funding formula. Individual campuses now have their own missions, and are more accountable for the millions in state dollars they receive.

Why do we bother to spend so much time and money on higher education? Mostly it's because more jobs and careers these days demand more than a high school education, sometimes requiring additional course work either at a community college or four-year campus. One of the reasons the Maryland Higher Education Commission will continue revising and expanding its higher education plan is that the demands of the job market change so rapidly. It's important to keep making an investment in Maryland's people, so that companies will keep making an investment in Maryland.

We will continue working on our higher education system to make it the best we can -- for everyone. If you have ideas for us, please write me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Bring Back The Quill And Scroll!
by Pam Ashby
typeset by Barb Burns

Once again I'm utilizing this space to complain about inanimate objects in my life -- those objects being computers. Don't get me wrong -- when all the conditions are perfect, computers can be our wonderful helpmates. But when they lock me out, abort my stories, deny me access, or beep at me incessantly, that's when it's a full-scale war. And I do so declare as of this morning.

I swear those perfect conditions for computers entail: a constant temperature of 18° F in Nome, Alaska, a full moon over Perth, Scotland, on November 6, high tide on the Youghiogheny River at 11:02 p.m., and Roseanne Barr singing the National Anthem with perfect pitch in a size 9 evening gown. Pretty unlikely!? Yes, about as unlikely as my computer working a full eight-hour day with no complications.

I know I exaggerate in my column occasionally, but I honestly dreamed about shooting my computer last night with a high-powered rifle. I claimed self-defense and won the court case.

It's not bad enough that my computer doesn't work; everywhere I go, I hear similar complaints: "I know this account balance can't be right Mrs. Smith, but our computer says so" or "We can't begin court proceedings. The computers are down." or "Well, my computerized cash register says you owe $1,493 for your two bags of groceries."

I just can't take it anymore! Bring back that good, old, dependable style of writing -- a quill and scroll. that's damn near how I wrote this column.

Note: The reason I'm giving Barb Burns shared space in my by-line is because I scribbled it down, handed it to her to typeset on her computer and ran screaming from The Republican office this morning.

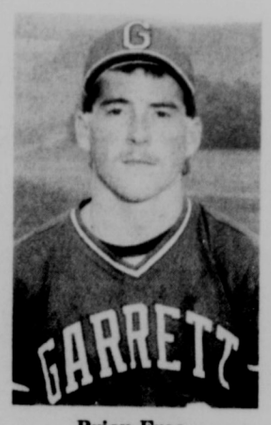
Garrett Legion Team Taking 9-7 Mark To Playoffs

The Garrett County Junior American Legion baseball team will enter the Mountain District League playoffs this afternoon with a 9-7 record, after losing the final game of the regular season last Thursday to league-leading Farrady Post 24, 8-3, on the Garrett Community College diamond.

Coach Ed Wildesen's team was all set to play Fort Cumberland Post 13 Tuesday evening at GCC, but the game had to be cancelled because of bad weather. The Garrett players will meet the winner of the Fort Cumberland/Victory Post 155 contest at 4 p.m. today. If they are victorious, they will take on Farrady Post (15-2) in a best-of-three game series at Frostburg State University to determine the league champion. The first game will be played at noon Saturday, the second at 5 p.m. Monday, and the third, if necessary, at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Brian Free, who was named The Republican Player of the Week, pitched a strong game for seven and two-thirds innings against Farrady last Thursday, allowing five hits, three earned runs, and striking out five batters. Garrett held a 3-1 lead after three innings and maintained that advantage until the top of the seventh when the visitors scored one run.

A bases-loaded, two-run single by Jason Cutter with two outs in the eighth inning gave Farrady the lead for good and a four-run ninth inning assured the win.



John Cutter added an RBI double and a single, Dave Kennell singled and doubled, and Jon Winebrenner singled and laid down two squeeze bunts for Frostburg. Rick Burley went the distance on the mound to record the win, as he allowed eight hits and struck out 10.

Chad Sines doubled for Garrett, while Britten Martin and Charlie Plaugher each singled twice.

In commenting on Free's selection as Player of the Week, Wildesen said, "Brian

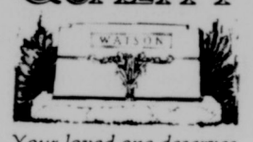
The Maryland State Parks organization held a lifeguard competition at Assateague State Park on July 17. Herrington Manor lifeguards Mike Stewart and Joe Shaffer competed in numerous events at the competition.



Shaffer and Stewart combined for a time of 4:09 in the 200 meter surf rescue event. They also joined up with two Elk Neck State Park lifeguards to compete in a four-man land-line competition, taking a fourth place finish.

Stewart competed in the two-mile beach run and the baton sprints, finishing in the semi-finals. Shaffer competed in the run-swim-run event, consisting of a 400 meter sprint, 400 meter swim, and a 200 meter run. Shaffer received a second place medal for the baton sprint.

All events took place in the Atlantic Ocean, with competitors battling in the 100+ temperatures, according to a spokesperson.

Oaks Swept By Hyndman After Topping Romney

Oakland captured both ends of a doubleheader against Romney on Saturday in Pen-Mar Baseball League action at Romney, 8-2 and 13-5, but then dropped a pair to a streaking Hyndman team on Sunday, 8-7 and 13-5, on the Pennsylvanians' diamond. The wins were Hyndman's 10th and 11th straight, while the results left Oakland with an 11-8 mark.

Dean Marsico led Oakland's hitting effort in both games against Romney, as he smacked a home run in each contest and also recorded three singles. John Nelson, Scott Lohr, and Dwayne Woodring each rapped a pair of singles in the opener, while D.G. Largent added a home run and a single in the nightcap.

For Romney, Chad Van Meter finished with two doubles and Mike Landis hit four singles.

The Oaks led Hyndman in the first game on Sunday 5-3 going into the bottom of the third inning, but the host team came back with four runs in that frame to take the lead. Oakland responded with single runs in the fourth and the sixth to knot the score at 7-7.

The winning run was scored in the bottom of the seventh when Grant Crawford led off with a single, Mike Matthews walked, Dave Deter reached on a sacrifice bunt to load the bases, and Kyle Martz was walked to force Crawford home.

Oakland's five hits included a two-run homer by Marsico and solo shots by Terry Helbig and Dave Shotwell. Martz and Crawford led Hyndman offensively with two singles each. Martz went the distance on the mound for the win.

Hyndman wasted no time taking control of the second game, taking a 7-0 lead after the first two innings. Matt Logsdon hit the first of two two-run homers in the second inning.

Oakland cut the lead to 7-5 in the fourth inning behind a grand slam by Lawrence Nesselrodt, but those were the last runs Oakland would score on the day.

Hyndman upped its lead with three runs in the bottom of the fourth on Bill Williams' two-run homer and Denny Skidmore's solo shot. Then Logsdon led a three-run fifth with his second two-run shot of the day.

Williams also doubled and singled and Skidmore added a single.

Ed Wildesen recorded a double and a single for Oakland.

The Oaks will attempt to get back on the winning track this Saturday when they travel to Clarksburg.

grant (where funds are already earmarked for such projects) and, through the state, would then be transferred to the county. At that point, the funds are then administered through the Garrett County Department of Economic Development and lent to Recreational Industries, with little or no interest.

Garrett County has rarely applied for these funds, said Jones. He noted that the money would be used by Recreational Industries to make capital improvements and for "operating capital purposes" and possibly to expand the employment base. Currently, according to Helmuth Heise, president of Recreational Industries, the company employs 150 persons on a year-round basis, and expands to 250 during the winter months.

The public hearing was attended by many local residents and business owners who, with a few exceptions, overwhelmingly voiced their support to pursue funding for the Wisp Resort. Among those speaking were Karen Spiker, president of the Garrett County Board of Realtors, who stated that she was "100% in favor of supporting the block grant funding."

Spiker offered statistics she felt "demonstrated the importance of the Wisp Ski area to Garrett County." For instance, she stated, "In 1979, the total assessable base for the county was $148,000,000. In 1990, the assessable base for District 18 (the Deep Creek Lake watershed) alone surpassed that overall total with a base of $154 million. By July 1 of this year, the District 18 base was $171 million. At that time, the overall county assessable base was at $404,279,900 so this district represents 42.5% of the county's revenue."

Spiker also cited the trend, over the past 10 years, of improvements that have been made to cottages on and around Deep Creek Lake and the Wisp Ski area. "It is our sincere belief from watching this trend and the activity that the overall excellent management and operation of the Wisp Ski Resort has been the number one reason behind these activities," she stated, adding, "The years of dependability of snowmaking, trail operation and the expansion at Wisp has produced a feeling of confidence in the Deep Creek/Garrett County area that has continued the improvement of real estate throughout the region, and enabled our county to provide essential services to its permanent residents and citizens."

Ralph Burnett, president of the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation, also spoke in favor of the grant approval, stating, "It would be the height of foolishness not to grant approval because the Wisp Ski Resort is a linchpin industry. Without it, revenue in this county will suffer greatly."

Several residents, however, spoke out in opposition to the block grant, including Louise Harvey, Friendsville, who stated, "I've been a property owner here for 51 years, and I'm sick and tired of what the taxpayer is asked to do. When the county needs money for education, we don't have it, but we can get money for Heise."

She continued, "Only the influence peddlers are heard -- the common man is not. We just suffer and suffer. It's time someone wakes up and realizes that real estate should not be running this county."

Harvey also noted that, even though the money would come from a federal grant, it is still money coming from taxpayers' pockets.

Doug McClive, owner of McClive's Restaurant in McHenry, responded to Harvey's statement by saying, "I, as a common taxpayer, opened my business because of the year-round recreational incentives here and the constant good management of the Wisp. Even when there was no snowfall, the operation continued because of the snow-making abilities at the Wisp."

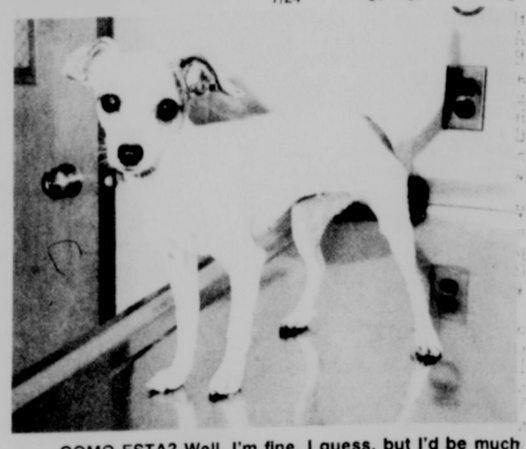
"I don't think I could operate my business for even one year without the Wisp," he continued, adding, "The loss of payroll would be more devastating than the loss from tax dollars."

Another business owner, Elaine MacDonald, Silver Tree Inn Restaurant, echoed the sentiments voiced by McClive, stating, "Even though Garrett County salaries, particularly for teachers, are the lowest or second-lowest in the state, recruitment for these and other positions is based on the county's attraction of recreational industries."

Tourists and part-time residents in the county, said MacDonald, have helped to support health, education and other ancillary services for full-time county residents so, while the county has "the edge" of being able to offer a recreational environment and "quality of life" to its recruits, "they, in turn, have enriched us. They are the fabric of our existence," she stated.

Wendell Beitzel, co-owner of Point View Inn, also in McHenry, told the county commissioners that he had grown up just a few miles from the Wisp Resort area and has "watched the mountain grow over the years, and saw all the labor and love that went in to the effort."

He spoke of the "hard-working dedication" with which Helmuth Heise has operated the business there over the years and urged the commissioners to support the block grant application.



Swanton resident Carl Rebele was unable to attend the hearing but sent a letter to the commissioners which was read by Jones. Rebele's letter stated, "Most often, ongoing businesses that have had both successes and operating difficulties with in-place management are the safest industries for investment monies. The Heise family's operations certainly meet that criteria. The value of this endeavor to the fiscal durability of Garrett County must be obvious to everyone who performs a service and lives here."

The record will be held open for 10 days from the time of the hearing for any further comments from the public.

CHILDREN AND HISTORY -- Andrew and Jennifer Grant, Oakland, children of Laurie and Bill Grant, are shown putting the final touches in the repainted National Road mileage marker No. 25 in Grantsville. The marker was one point of interest for the recent bus tours given to Garrett County elementary school students who were studying local history. Situated in front of the Casselman Inn, the 160-year-old marker had to be passed on the way to Penn Alps. However, because of winter storms, the paint on the marker looked dull. There was also a jagged line along one side where it had been broken and repaired some years ago. A new coat of paint was needed and plans were made for students from Grantsville Elementary School to repaint the marker. Unfortunately, the school year ended before the work could be done by the students. Instead, it was painted by an interested citizen and children who were readers of "Seedlings." Today, sporting a new coat of white paint with black lettering, the marker awaits the next group of students who will be learning Garrett County's history.

"Seedlings" To Continue In 91-92

The Garrett County Historical Society at its annual dinner meeting on June 27 voted to continue the publication of "Seedlings" for the year 1991-92.

Begun last year as a promotion for Junior Memberships in the Society, "Seedlings was quickly seen as a good source of Garrett County history for local schools," according to a Society spokesman.

After reviewing the contents and style of writing, the Garrett County Board of Education distributed copies to the fourth grade students in the county. "Thus began a unique association of children and history," said the spokesman.

Items such as mileage markers on the old National Road, grinding stones used in local grist mills, or the formation of Garrett County in 1872, were the subjects for stories in "Seedlings."

Eventually, the historical material led to the arrangement of one-day bus tours for elementary school students. Prompted by increasing school budget restrictions, instead of taking an annual tour to Baltimore and Annapolis, a decision was made to give the students a close look at some of Garrett County's historical objects.

This past spring, students from Crellin, Dennett Road, and Grantsville schools made historical tours of the county. Penn Alps at Grantsville, with its group of log buildings and craftsmen, was a focal point for all tours.

In addition, teachers in each one of the schools selected other points of historical interest from a prepared list for the children to see. The list was compiled through the joint effort of the Historical Society and the Board of Education.

Typical selections on the list were stops at Bear Creek Fish Hatchery, Brenneman's Maple Sugar Grove, New Germany State Park, and the hydro-electric plant for Deep Creek Lake.

Domestic Violence

"It's still a critical part of our mission to see that it is kept in the county and working, but it could still be a separate entity from the health department," said Archer.

Younger elaborated, stating, "We have enough money for the program for now, but only for maintenance -- the program cannot be expanded and we need a shelter."

The program was formerly operated in the private sector and known as Women's Refuge, Inc., but was operated as a satellite program in Garrett County and centered in Allegany County. Several years ago, the program was in danger of dissolving (reportedly because of lack of volunteers and funding), and was then retrieved by the health department to keep the program viable. A resolution from the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners had allowed for funds from the county marriage license fees to be used by Women's Refuge, but did not apply to the program when it was incorporated into the health department.

It was also pointed out by Jay Cross that this kind of program is operated throughout the state as private, non-profit organizations, and noted that he had been treated with "a slight amount of hostility" when representing the program at state conferences as a county health department official.

Frances Callis also explained that the public is more likely to donate funds and services to the organization if it is maintained as a private, rather than a state-maintained program.

Rabies Cases

ing the incident.

The pet was not vaccinated, and has since been euthanized. Both Wachters are currently undergoing post-exposure treatment.

Persons should not handle animals for at least two hours following exposure to a rabid animal. The disease can be transmitted to humans, and it is fatal.

Case number 13 was confirmed July 23 after Doug Schenk reported that his dog had fought with a raccoon he suspected to be rabid. The dog was currently vaccinated against the disease and was immediately revaccinated. There was no human exposure in the case, which occurred on the Oakland-Sang Run Road near Sang Run.

Case number 14 was confirmed on July 23 after three dogs owned by Nathan Mickle, Oakland-Sang Run Road, fought with a diseased raccoon. Two of the dogs were not vaccinated and the third had an expired vaccination, according to Ms. Glover. The incident is still under investigation and a determination has not yet been made concerning the fate of the pets.

The coal corp. and the Garrett County Board of Education sponsored an awards dinner for all the chosed students. Earns Honor For Academics

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Beth Ann Dilley has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program in order to offer recognition to students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only Scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted.

Miss Dilley, who attends Garrett Community College, was nominated for this National Award by Manning Smith, director of student services. Her biography will appear in the All-American Scholar Directory, which is published nationally.

Beth Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dilley, Oakland.

SCALES AND TALES PRESENTED - Kari Backoff, a ranger from Gunpowder State Park, and her sister Shellie presented a program entitled "Scales and Tales" to several children of all ages on July 13th at Deep Creek Lake State Park. Some of the animals viewed by the guests were a screech owl, a barn owl, a snake, a turtle, and a tarantula. The ranger answered questions and allowed the children to pet certain animals, according to a spokesperson. The program was provided by the Maryland Dept. of Natural Resources - Forest and Parks Services.

In the Kitchen

MAKE IT AN OCCASION!

More than any other time of year, summer is the season for fun with family and friends. When the days grow long and the mercury soars, any day can bring a special occasion. Whatever the reason your family and friends have gathered to celebrate, make it memorable with a delicious summertime confection.

Summer is the perfect season to enjoy these easy and refreshing recipes from the Kraft Creative Kitchens. After all, nothing banishes thoughts of sultry weather as well as a cool and frosty dessert. Most of these recipes require no cooking, so you can keep cool in the kitchen. And, each of these beautiful desserts uses KRAFT Marshmallow Creme; a no fat, no cholesterol way to sweeten.

Fruit Ice is a simple and delicious frosty treat made from the summer's bountiful fruit and marshmallow creme. It makes an elegant dessert and requires only four ingredients. Try freezing this colorful and light dessert in parfait glasses.

Let your guests nibble on bite-sized fruits served with creamy Mallow Fruit Dip, made with KRAFT Marshmallow Creme, cream cheese and hints of orange and ginger. Strawberries, wedges of honeydew melon and cantaloupe, and slices of peaches and plums create a lovely platter surrounding the lightly sweet dip. If you expect a hungry crowd, assemble two or three small fruit trays. Then, keep them in the refrigerator with extra bowls of Mallow Fruit Dip until needed.

Does your occasion call for more than a casual fruit tray? Grasshopper Pie and Very Berry Mold are show stoppers when served on glass plates. Kraft's home economists recommend moving the Grasshopper Pie from the freezer to the refrigerator about 15 minutes before serving for easier slicing.

Cappucino Creme is another frosty treat that helps you to get a head start on spontaneous celebrations. Make this recipe ahead of time and freeze in coffee mugs.

Try any of these chilled or frozen desserts to cap off a meal that's as special as the friends with whom you're celebrating.

STRAWBERRY ICE

No matter how hot it gets, you'll get plenty of thanks when you serve this sweet fruit-filled treat. Later in the summer, enjoy the honeydew variation.

4 cups strawberry halves
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

- Place strawberries in blender container or food processor work bowl. Cover; process until smooth.
- Gradually add strawberries to marshmallow creme in large bowl of electric mixer, mixing until well blended. Blend in juice and peel.
- Pour into 9-inch square pan; freeze until almost firm.
- Coarsely chop mixture; spoon into chilled bowl. Beat with electric mixer until smooth; freeze. 6 to 8 servings

Prep time: 15 minutes plus freezing
Variation: Substitute 4 cups honeydew melon chunks, seeded, 1 tablespoon lime juice and 1 teaspoon grated lime peel for the strawberries, lemon juice and lemon peel.

GRASSHOPPER PIE

Love pie? Too hot to bake? Chill out with this pie. It's a cool counterpoint to fiery Mexican fiesta food like chips and salsa, fajitas and green chile rice.

2 cups crushed creme-filled chocolate cookies
1/4 cup margarine, melted
1/4 cup green creme de menthe
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
2 cups whipping cream, whipped

- Combine crumbs and margarine; reserve 1/2 cup. Press remaining crumb mixture onto bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Chill.
- In large mixing bowl, gradually add creme de menthe to marshmallow creme, mixing with electric mixer or wire whisk until well blended. Fold in whipped cream.
- Pour into crust; sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Freeze until firm. 8 to 10 servings

Prep time: 25 minutes plus chilling and freezing
Variation: Substitute 1/4 cup milk, few drops peppermint extract and few drops green food coloring for creme de menthe.

VERY BERRY MOLD

It's a red-white-and-blue finish for a patriotic holiday gathering! Make it ahead, and serve with grilled meat, garlic bread and a marinated vegetable salad. Then celebrate your independence from the kitchen.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup water
1 (8 oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
1 cup blueberries
1 cup raspberries

- Soften gelatin in water; stir over low heat until dissolved.
- Mix cream cheese, juice and peel on medium speed with electric mixer until well blended.
- Gradually add gelatin; mix well. Beat in marshmallow creme.
- Chill 10 minutes or until slightly thickened.
- Fold in fruit; pour into lightly oiled 1-quart mold. Chill several hours or overnight. Unmold. 8 servings

Prep time: 30 minutes plus chilling
Variation: Substitute strawberry slices for raspberries.

MALLOW FRUIT DIP

Have a hard time getting your kids to eat fruit? Offer it with this creamy concoction after a day at the pool and watch it disappear!

1 (8 oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Dash of ground ginger, optional

- Beat ingredients at medium speed with electric mixer until well blended. Serve with assorted fruit, if desired. Approximately 1-1/2 cups

Prep time: 10 minutes
MICROWAVE TIPS: To soften cream cheese, microwave in bowl on MEDIUM (50%) 30 seconds.
To easily remove marshmallow creme from jar, remove lid and seal and microwave on HIGH 30 seconds.
Variations: Substitute 1 tablespoon lime juice and 1 teaspoon grated lime peel for orange juice and peel.

TROPICAL PARFAITS

Temper the fire of a spicy main dish with the soothing taste of these parfaits. What a great way to celebrate late summer's tropical heat!

2 cups flaked coconut
1/3 cup chopped macadamia nuts
1 (3 oz.) pkg. orange flavored gelatin
1-1/4 cups boiling water
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

- Place coconut and macadamia nuts in skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, over high heat until coconut is toasted. Cool.
- Dissolve gelatin in water. Cool.
- Gradually add gelatin to marshmallow creme, mixing with electric mixer or wire whisk until well blended.
- Chill, stirring occasionally, until thickened but not set.
- Beat with electric mixer or wire whisk until fluffy. Fold in whipped cream.
- Layer gelatin and coconut mixtures in six parfait glasses. Repeat layers; chill until firm. 6 servings

Prep time: 30 minutes plus chilling

AMARETTO PEACH ICE

Celebrate the season's bounty by scheduling a peach-picking party. Pick the fruit in the cool of the morning; then whip up this refreshing ice before you begin an afternoon of relaxing in the shade.

2-1/2 cups chopped peeled peaches
1/2 cup water
3 tablespoons almond flavored liqueur
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme

- Place all ingredients except marshmallow creme in blender container or food processor work bowl. Cover; process until smooth.
- Gradually add peach mixture to marshmallow creme in large bowl of electric mixer, mixing until well blended.
- Pour into 9-inch square pan; freeze until almost firm.
- Coarsely chop mixture; spoon into chilled bowl. Beat with electric mixer until smooth; freeze. 6 to 8 servings

Prep time: 15 minutes plus freezing.
Variation: Substitute 1 (29 oz.) can sliced peaches, drained for fresh.
Serving Suggestion: Garnish each serving with fresh peach slices and mint leaves.

CAPPUCINO CREME

Expect the unexpected...make this spritely treat and freeze it in colorful coffee mugs. It stores safely in the freezer for up to a month and is great for drop-in guests.

1 (7 oz.) jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme
1 cup coffee flavored yogurt
3/4 cup finely chopped almonds

- Mix all ingredients with electric mixer until well blended.
- Pour into four dessert dishes; freeze. 4 servings

Prep time: 10 minutes plus freezing
Variation: Substitute walnuts for almonds.

TAKING IT HOME

It is summertime. That long awaited and eagerly anticipated week at the beach is now a reality. It is so easy to interact happily and positively with each other against a background of sun, sand, and surf . . . not a worry in the world. There are no dishes to wash, no grass to mow, or homework to dread.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to be able to take that vacation spirit back home with us . . . back to reality?

There is a way in which we can live together each day in more complete harmony. The Bible tells us in John 15:11-12, "These things I have spoken unto you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full. This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." If we internalize this love and acceptance of others, even with their imperfections, we will realize a spiritual intimacy with our fellow man which will indeed fill our heart with more warmth and joy than we have ever known.

God's house is always open to you. Visit there and learn how to possess a happy and accepting spirit which will enrich all of your relationships every day.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON NOT COMING DOWN

July 28, 1991

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 6.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 87.

"I am doing a great work and I can not come down."

If Nehemiah had left us no other words than these, they would be enough. They are the kind of words that we need to put on our desks or our workplaces. Because all of us, like Nehemiah, are constantly tempted to step down from what it is we are called by God to do.

All of us can put ourselves in Nehemiah's shoes. He is trying to get the Jerusalem wall rebuilt, but the Jews' enemies want to squelch this project before it can be successful. From time to time, all of us find ourselves in similar situations. Something needs to be done, but there are those who will do all they can to make sure that we are unsuccessful. They may try to trick us, they may attempt to intimidate us, and they may threaten us. Even though we believe we are doing the right thing, we find it difficult not to be swayed from our course.

Nehemiah's enemies tried to lay a trap. "Come and let us meet together in one of the villages in the plain of Ono" (6:2). It sounds like a reasonable request, doesn't it? Let's get together and talk this thing over. Conciliation is always a good idea, but we must also be careful that the other side is sincere. Nehemiah was sure that they were not: Ono was quite some distance from Jerusalem and he realized why they wanted to get him away from Jerusalem: "...they intended to do me harm."

DOING A GREAT WORK

That's when Nehemiah makes his famous reply: "I am doing a great work and I can not come down. Why should the work stop while I leave it and come down to you?" (6:3). How often that which would distract us from our tasks is reasonable and compelling. It is the sheer reasonableness that grabs us. When Satan tempted Christ, he used the most reasonable approaches. But Jesus and Nehemiah both kept their attention focused on the tasks they were trying to accomplish. I must keep myself focused on what is absolutely essential: "I am doing a great work" and then I know that "I cannot come down." Once we start examining the distraction, we are hooked. And making one affirmation may not be enough—Nehemiah had to do it four times—we may have to do it daily, hourly or even minute-by-minute.

Next, his enemies try to unnerve him with rumors: "It is reported among the nations...that you and the Jews intend to rebel: that is why you are building the wall; and you wish to become their king, according to this report" (6:6). I'm sure those words made Nehemiah tremble at least a little. Nothing could be more ruinous than were the Persian king to hear these rumors and believe them.

LIES SPREAD FASTER

Once again, we understand how he must have felt. We all find ourselves devastated when false rumors are circulated about us. It is so difficult to counteract false rumors: lies spread much faster than retractions (they also get more space in newspapers!). I like Nehemiah's forthright response: "No such things as you say have been done, for you are inventing them out of your own mind" (6:8). These are brave words, but he must have felt the need for some reassurance for he then prayed: "But now, O God, strengthen thou my hands." It is a little like the man who prayed, "I believe; help my unbelief" (Mark 9:24). We too need to speak bravely and pray for the courage to back up our brave words.

COVER STORY

'Sweating Bullets' is no button-down series

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

Rob Stewart hasn't been getting much rest this past year. He has spent most of it in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, filming "Sweating Bullets," which airs Mondays as one of CBS's late-night "crime time" series. How hard has he been working? "Six days a week, 15 hours a day at the least, and one day off – Sundays – to read the next script," he replies.

Rob Stewart

Recently, he had to step up the pace, since the series has been temporarily airing in prime time on Fridays as well as in its regular slot. But Stewart isn't complaining.

Asked what he did before he landed the lead role of Nick Slaughter, a Florida private eye who favors casual dress and affects an even more casual attitude, he replies honestly. "Oh, I could clean glasses and serve you a drink better than anybody in town."

He was also working on screenplays. "But the last year was coincidentally the worst year of my life," he says. "I was broke and had run out of money. I ended up, just before I got the nod for this, being $6,000 in debt, which meant an awful lot when I never even had $6,000 in my life."

Stewart feels the location is the series' real strength. Some critics have suggested, however, that it is being used as an excuse to offer up gratuitous shots of women in bikinis.

"Everybody's been focusing on – 'those blond bimbos,' one article called them," says Stewart. "Well, there are some 6-foot-4 bimbos that are males floating around too."

Somehow, we didn't spot nearly as many of those. But we have to admit that Stewart's own shirt is invariably unbuttoned, so there is at least some effort at equalization.

"What I've always said from the beginning is my character's a chauvinist – or at least he pretends to be," says Stewart. "And I think it's fine to have a lead character being a bit chauvinist as long as the show never agrees with that."

Making sure the show doesn't agree is Nick's assistant, Sylvie Girard (Carolyn Dunn). And the reason this is the only "crime time" series that has been tried out in prime time has to be the relationship between the two.

"We did like 20 hours of tape – just her and I doing the same scenes different ways to work out a relationship," says Stewart. "We found that this was too angry, this was too sexy – we worked on it a lot."

The result is reminiscent of "Moonlighting." But don't try to suggest that it's a rip-off.

"Was 'Moonlighting' that much different from 'Remington Steele'?" Stewart says. "Was 'Remington Steele' that much different from 'The Thin Man' or 'His Girl Friday'? These genres are there for a reason. They work."

Carolyn Dunn, Rob Stewart and John David Bland (l. to r.) star in "Sweating Bullets." The CBS "crime time" series is temporarily airing in prime time on Fridays.

Disney Channel salutes 'Enchanted Evenings'

BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

The Disney Channel airs "The King and I" (July 29) in its "Enchanted Evenings" salute to the songwriting team of Rodgers and Hammerstein. Yul Brynner, in his celebrated film and Broadway role, is the ethnocentric King of Siam who hires an English schoolteacher (Deborah Kerr) to instruct his many wives and 12 offspring. Saturated in 1950s' bright colors, the opulently costumed characters perform catchy musical numbers in this consistently pleasurable fable.

Yul Brynner

• "A View to a Kill" (ABC, July 28) was Roger Moore's last run as 007, and the limitations of the role are obvious in this belabored effort. The sinister Christopher Walken, seeking to destroy California's technology supermarket, Silicon Valley, is wasted as Bond's nemesis, and Tanya Roberts appears to be sleepwalking through even the most taxing action sequences.

• Matthew Broderick is Clark Kellogg, a first-year film student at New York University who takes a part-time job delivering rare animals for an Italian "importer" (Marlon Brando) who bears a remarkable resemblance to Vito Corleone of "The Godfather" fame, in "The Freshman" (HBO, Aug. 1, and Showtime, Aug. 2). When the work becomes riskier than expected, Clark attempts to extricate himself but finds he has been passionately embraced as "one of the family" by the shady Sabatini clan.

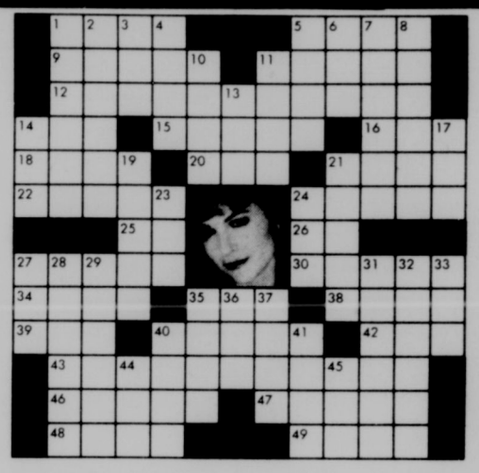
• A mother and son (Jane Seymour and Brian Bonsall) are unsuspecting victims when a prison escapee (Gregory Harrison) insinuates himself into their lives in "Angel of Death" (CBS, July 28).

• Chynna Phillips plays the title role in "Roxanne: The Prize Pulitzer" (NBC, July 28), the dramatization of the scandalous custody battle Roxanne Pulitzer waged with influential husband Herbert Pulitzer (Perry King) over their twin sons.

• A middle-aged couple decides to take action against the ravages of time and inactivity in "Perfect People" (ABC, July 29). Lauren Hutton and Perry King star as the husband and wife who use diet, exercise and plastic surgery to achieve their "noble" goal of physical perfection.

• Two New York City cops (Howard Hesseman and Ed Marinaro), a Scotland Yard detective (Twiggy) and a Manhattan gallery employee (Brooke Shields) team up for an international chase after the rare Northstar diamond is stolen, in "The Diamond Trap" (CBS, July 30).

TUESDAY



Brooke Shields and Howard Hesseman star in "The Diamond Trap," which is rebroadcast Tuesday, July 30, on CBS. In the 1988 TV movie, a group of New York City police detectives discover the impending theft of $12 million in jewels. Ed Marinaro and Twiggy also star in the adventure story.

IN FOCUS

Sarah Vaughan, affectionately referred to as "Sass" by fellow jazz musicians, was an unusually private person, so there are few personal tidbits to liven up "Sarah Vaughan: The Divine One." But there are extensive full-length clips that amply demonstrate Vaughan's innate musical sense and her extraordinary voice control. This "American Masters" presentation airs Monday, July 29, on PBS. (Check local listings.)

SOAP SCOOP

Look out! Here come daytime's 'terror teens'

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

In the '80s, to attract viewers young enough to be home during the summer, every variation of bikinis and briefs was trotted out to spotlight biceps and the like. But as summer '91 unfolds, it's clear that skin is out. Adolescents are still prominent on the summer soaps, but this year, it's the invasion of the terror teens.

• Victoria Newman (played

Melissa Hayden

by Heather Tom) on "The Young and the Restless": Fresh from Swiss boarding school, here's a teen who's bent on reuniting her divorced parents, Victor Newman (Eric Braeden) and Nikki Newman Abbott (Melody Thomas Scott). This, of course, means breaking up their respective marriages to Jack Abbott (Peter Bergman) and Ashley Abbott (Brenda Epperson). This kid's master plan is straight out of "The Parent Trap" (1961), in which twins played by Hayley Mills plotted to reunite their divorced parents. What makes Victoria a true terror teen? We venture that it may be the supernatural soap aging process by which she aged from 5 to 15 last fall.

• Bridget Reardon (played by Melissa Hayden) on "Guiding Light": Bridget lies, and she ogles older males (like Dylan, played by Morgan Englund). Worst of all, Bridget, who boards with her Aunt Maureen and Uncle Ed Bauer (Ellen Parker, Peter Simon), has the first messy room in the history of soaps! Bridget has just begun her path of terror in Springfield, and she is already a wonderful foil for its somewhat stuffy populace.

• Hayley Vaughn (played by Kelly Ripa) on "All My Children": Hayley rolled into Pine Valley last fall in a spiky black wig, trailing a motorcycle gang. She had a smart mouth on her, especially in trading insults with her exasperated Uncle Trevor (James Kiberd). Since then, however, she has proven she has a heart of gold, seeing her alcoholic mother Arlene (Phyllis Lyons) through a near-fatal accident. Ripa has proved to be a real find.

• Tess (played by Parker Posey) on "As the World Turns": Tess, a girl from the mountains, looks and sounds deceptively simple. She has her eye, however, on bigger and wealthier things. She has dated the affluent Paul Stenbeck (Andy Kavovit), but her future is somewhat up in the air now that Kavovit has announced that he will soon leave the soap.

What's the best part about these teen terrors of summer? If the actresses and characters are good, there's lots of potential. From little acorns, vile soap villainesses grow!

SPORTS CALENDAR

Let the games begin: Americans invade Cuba

BY CHRISTOPHER HULL

It was inevitable that Americans would one day return to Cuba. Now, some 32 years after Fidel Castro was swept into power, it is finally coming to pass. But when the American's land, it won't be with helmets strapped on and close air support; it will be with sports bags and broadcasting equipment.

Starting Friday, Aug. 2, the

largest American contingent allowed onto the island since before the Cuban Revolution will begin broadcasting images of the 1991 Pan Am Games. The main venues for the competition, which ends on Aug. 18, will be the cities of Havana, on the northwest coast of the island, and Santiago de Cuba, in the far southeast.

This year's gathering marks the 11th edition of the games, which serve as a Western Hemisphere prelude to the upcoming 1992 Summer Olympic games in Barcelona. The Pan Am Games traditionally are held the year before the Summer Olympics, and are open to athletes from the 39 nations of North and South America. This year, officials are expecting about 5,000 athletes. The last Pan Am Games were held in Indianapolis in 1987.

ABC and Turner Sports, which programs sports on TBS and TNT, will provide more than 50 hours of coverage.

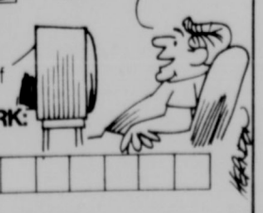
TNT kicks it all off with live coverage of the opening ceremonies on Friday, Aug. 2, and follows that with a preview of the upcoming competition. On Saturday, Aug. 3, the games begin.

TBS's "U.S. Olympic Gold" will air special Pan Am Games telecasts on Saturday, Aug. 3 and Saturday, Aug. 10. TNT will have extensive coverage, Sunday through Friday, both weeks of the games. Ernie Johnson Jr. hosts the Turner Sports coverage.

ABC's coverage begins on Saturday, Aug. 3, and will be confined to Saturdays and Sundays for the duration of the games. Brent Musburger will host, and the commentators will include former Olympians Marty Liquori, Willie Smith, John Naber, Donna de Varona, Cynthia Potter, Bart Conner, Kathy Johnson, Cheryl Miller and Bob Beattie.

• Well-known American athletes will be dispatched to three other countries besides Cuba this week. On Sunday, July 28, the Buffalo Bills play the Philadelphia Eagles in London (NBC). On Saturday, Aug. 3, the San Francisco 49ers take on the Chicago Bears in Berlin (NBC). That same day, the Los Angeles Raiders play the Denver Broncos in Tokyo (ESPN).

IN FOCUS



In a stroke of warped genius, CBS is airing episodes of "Police Squad!," the 1982 series that was the basis for the 1988 film "Naked Gun" and the current "Naked Gun 2-1/2." The series, like the "Naked Gun" and "Airplane!" films, was created by Jim Abrahams and David and Jerry Zucker. Leslie Nielsen stars as the invincibly stupid Det. Frank Drebin. In the Wednesday, July 31, episode, Drebin goes undercover as a boxing manager.

ROBERT'S RETURN – What has happened to Robert Guillaume, who starred in "Benson"? We consistently enjoyed his work. – S.F., Daytona Beach, Fla.

Robert Guillaume

Guillaume will star this fall in a new NBC police series, "Pacific Station." In addition to "Benson" (1979-86), Guillaume's series include "Soap" (the 1977-79 series from which "Benson" was spun off) and "The Robert Guillaume Show" (1989). He is not only a popular actor but also an accomplished singer; Guillaume recently played the title role in the musical "Phantom of the Opera" in Los Angeles.

BAER FACTS – Is it true that Max Baer, who played Jethro on "The Beverly Hillbillies," is the son of famous boxer Buddy Baer? My father says he is. How old is he, and where is he from? – Y.M., Providence, R.I.

Actor/producer Max Baer Jr. was born in Oakland, Calif., on Dec. 4, 1937, which makes him 53 years old. He is the son of heavyweight champion and actor Max Baer, who died in 1959. Jacob Henry "Buddy" Baer was Baer Jr.'s uncle.

Baer Jr. played Jethro Bodine in "The Beverly Hillbillies" from 1962-71. He then turned to producing and directing such films as "The Wild McCullochs" (1975) and "Ode to Billy Joe" (1976).

BOB STEELE – Is Bob Steele, the movie cowboy, still alive? I was one of his ardent fans. – G.V.C., Batesville, Ark.

Steele died in 1989. He had suffered from lung disease for a long time and was almost immobile for the last few years of his life. The many readers who have asked about old-time cowboy stars may want to look into a publication that focuses on them exclusively. It's called "Under Western Skies" and is published by The World of Yesterday, Rt. 3, Box 263H, Waynesville, NC 28786.

FIELDS WAS FIELDS – What was the name of the man who played Abbott and Costello's landlord in their TV series? What was his character's name? – G.P., Mount Vernon, Wash.

Comedian Sid Fields portrayed the boardinghouse owner in the 1951-53 series; the name of his character was also Sid Fields. He was also a regular on "The Frank Sinatra Show" from 1950-51 and "The Jackie Gleason Show" from 1964-66.

Marlon Brando, whose Mafia don in "The Godfather" is the yardstick against which all other movie Mafiosi are measured, turns in a brilliant parody of that role in "The Freshman," premiering Thursday, Aug. 1, on HBO, and Friday, Aug. 2, on Showtime. Matthew Broderick co-stars in the 1990 movie as an out-of-cash New York University film student who takes a job as a driver for Brando's animal-smuggling mob family.

IN FOCUS

In "Carmen," as a flamenco dance company stages the classic tale of jealousy and betrayal, the backstage and onstage stories merge, until it becomes difficult to tell whether the shocking conclusion is real or staged. Laura Del Sol plays the tempestuous Carmen and Antonio Gades plays an obsessed director/choreographer. Bizet's music is glorious, and the dancing is spectacular. It airs Friday, Aug. 2, on PBS. (Check local listings.)

Annual Vesper Service To Open 35th County Fair

Plans have been completed for the annual Vesper Service for the beginning of the 35th Garrett County Fair, Sunday, August 11, beginning at 7 p.m. The evening interdenominational service will be held in the auditorium building on the fairgrounds in McHenry with participation by clergy and lay people of the county.

Guest preacher for the Vesper Service will be the Rev. Margaret Custer, vicar of St. John's Episcopal Church, Deer Park. Her sermon will carry out the theme of the service which deals with the "continuation of God's bountiful goodness." Parts of the address will be based on the Old Testament and New Testament readings used in the service.

Accompaniment for the hymns and other service music will be provided by local organist, Lillian Reckner. In addition, there will be several special musical selections provided by Daymond and Lori Schmuck, Accident.

As in the past, the offering will be used for a special purpose. This year, it will be divided between the Fair Ministry expenses and the Garrett County Chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

"DISORDERLY CONDUCT" will be performing at the 35th Annual Garrett County Fair with two shows on August 12, one at 8 p.m. and another at 9:30 p.m., with their slapstick comedy show. "Without a Net" is the name of their show, which is a "tale of an average married couple and their absurd struggles through a variety of unicycle mishaps, breathtaking bullwhip displays, highstruch ropewalking feats, comic juggling routines, simulated driving lessons, perpetuals pratfalls, and preposterous comic situations, all the while interacting with the audience," according to a spokesperson for the group. The couple has received rave reviews from all of the country and the world, from Tokyo to Quebec to Atlanta, the spokesman said. The fair is scheduled for August 11-17.

HEARING AIDS

DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID? ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?

This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.

We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".

Come in today for a no-cost hearing evaluation and demonstration of the hearing aid!

School Wellness Event Underway At Wisp Resort

Maryland educators and community leaders have gathered at Deep Creek Lake this week, to discover new ways to live healthy lives and promote healthier schools and communities.

The occasion is the second annual Wellness Conference sponsored by the State Department of Education. The conference theme is "Wellness: A Lifestyle for Success," with an emphasis on total physical, mental and emotional health.

Each local school system was invited to send a team of 10 persons to the conference, including the superintendent. Team members include administrators and teachers in health education, physical education, guidance counselors, and staff of school food service and child nutrition programs as well as representatives of related community agencies.

According to a spokesman for the State Department of Education, the conference is designed to give participants the information and skills necessary to implement school health and wellness programs and develop realistic plans for promoting good health, with an emphasis on prevention of health problems.

The conference began Sunday, with a session for superintendents and their school and community teams. Superintendents were invited to take personal fitness assessments in line with the conference's dual focus on personal fitness and programs to develop the fitness and health of students.

Conference activities include workshops on managing health and wellness programs, local school system team meeting, and fitness activities for participants.

Janet Pabst, health education specialist in the State Department of Education, says local school systems represent one of the largest employee groups in most Maryland subdivisions.

"Improving the fitness and healthy lifestyles of the adults and children in schools can have a significant effect on public health - and the cost of health care - in the community," she says.

Following the conference, local teams will draw up plans for improving wellness in their schools and communities.

The American Heart Association is the largest private, non-profit organization dedicated to reducing disability and death from heart and blood vessel diseases and stroke. The AHA supports research and provides community programs through a variety of fund-raising efforts.

Child Safety Seat Law Changes Are Described

Maryland State Police and the Maryland Child Passenger Safety Association are reminding motorists of some important changes in the state's child safety seat law.

"Children who are up to four years of age and weigh 40 pounds or less are now required to be properly restrained in a federally approved child safety seat," said Deborah Baer, president of Maryland Child Passenger Safety Association. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, Baer said Maryland's child safety seat law has been expanded to include older children.

"Children who weigh more than 40 pounds and are 4 to 10 years of age must be properly restrained in a child safety seat, booster seat, safety belt or safety belt/shoulder harness combination," Baer added. "The booster seat is an excellent transition seat for children between the ages of 4 and 7, but should never be used as a substitute for an approved child safety seat."

The Maryland Child Passenger Safety Association has expressed concern over the correct use of child safety seats, citing statistics which show that nationally 80 to 90 percent of all child safety seats are not being used properly.

"Parents are urged to properly secure the child safety seat to the seat of the vehicle, harness the child in the safety seat and properly position the child safety seat," stated Baer. "We recommend that the seat by rear-facing for children up to one year of age and less than 20 pounds.

"The best advice is to read the instructions and follow the manufacturer's guidelines on the proper use of the safety seat," Baer stated,

The changes to Maryland's child safety seat law became effective July 1, 1991 and provide for penalties of $25 plus court costs for each violation.

"The biggest penalty a family can pay is the unnecessary loss of a child's life," Baer added. "A child ejected into the roadway in a 30-mile-per-hour crash is equivalent to being dropped head-first from a third floor window."

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Portions of this program are also carried on the Maryland State Police Newsline, (301) 653-4275.

A SHOT IN THE ALPS? - Most Garrett County residents would immediately recognize this as a photo of the historic Casselman Bridge in Grantsville, but Arielle Reifsteck and Jamie Csonka, sporting authentic German (or Austrian) costumes, make it appear that the photo was indeed taken in the European countryside. The couple were taking a break between performances of their German band, the Alpin Schmaltzers, of Altoona, Pa., during the 14th annual Summerfest, held July 11-13 in Grantsville. Below, wood chips go flying as several youngsters give assistance to Don Landis, also of Pennsylvania, with his foot-powered lathe. Photos by Craig Speicher.

A COMBINATION BACKPACK/FIELD CHAIR was demonstrated at the Penn Alps Summerfest by its creator, Ron Gibbons, owner of The Hunter's Moon shop in northeast Pennsylvania. The name of his business refers to the two full moons that appear every fall, which offered pioneer hunters such brilliant light that they were able to hunt at night, an important consideration with the winter season approaching.

Food Distribution Set; Youth Camp Boys Lend Aid

The Garrett County Community Action Committee is planning its September surplus commodity distribution. Any household that did not receive commodities in June and is interested in applying must do so by August 14. Applications will be taken at Garrett County C.A.C., 360 W. Liberty Street, Oakland.

The next distribution, which is planned for September 5, would not occur without the help of the boys enrolled at the Backbone Mt. Youth Center, according to a C.A.C. spokesman. Four times a year the approximately 10 youth volunteers and their supervisors unload 30,000 pounds of food, by hand, from a tractor-trailer truck. After several hours of unloading, they load the food onto pickup trucks that deliver commodities to the distribution sites located throughout the county.

The spokesman said the boys respond to the needs of senior citizens and the handicapped by helping them carry commodities to their vehicles. "C.A.C. has come to rely upon the boys and the support of the Youth Center in the operation of the Surplus Commodity Program," the spokesman said.

Local Officer Attends Animal Control Academy

Jane M. Broadwater, Garrett County humane officer, attended the 50th session of the Animal Control Academy recently held at Fairfax, Va.

The session, entitled Basic Training in Animal Control, represents 90 classroom hours within a two-week period of time. The curriculum includes animal behavior, human behavior, conflict management, shelter, field, and court procedures and many other practical topics.

The Animal Control Academy is a division of The Humane Society of The United States. It still operates under the guidelines adopted when it was established in 1979 with the advice and cooperation of The University of Alabama Law Enforcement Academy.

The Academy offers the only national basic training program for line officers, supervisory and support personnel in the field of animal control.

The Jenning's United Methodist Church will hold its annual Homecoming this Sunday, July 28. Sunday School will begin at 10 a.m. and the morning worship will be at 11, with a former local pastor, Karl Crowe from Greensville, Va., as guest speaker. A covered dish lunch will be served at 12:30. At 2 p.m. the Jubilators will present a program of gospel music. The Rev. Timothy Allen is the pastor.

On Thursday evening, July 18, the Area Churchmen's picnic was held for the 37th year at the New Germany pavilion. There were 116 persons in attendance. The music was furnished by Dalton Hare and his sister, Bernice Broadwater, who sang gospel songs.

Food was furnished by the Zion Methodist Church and the program was led by the Maple Grove Church. Walter Younkin welcomed the group. There were five ministers and the Rev. Connell Chaney gave the invocation. A meal was served. The Rev. Terrell Mallow brought the message on "Loving One Another." The Rev. Friend gave the benediction. The Northern High School Class of 1971 will hold its 20th class reunion August 10 and 11. On Saturday, August 10, at Will-O-the-Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, classmates and their guests will observe a cash bar and social hour from 6-7 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner at 7 p.m. Dancing, with music from the 60's, 70's, 80's and 90's, will begin at 9 p.m.

Reservations are needed for the dinner and may be made by calling Patty Ault Foley at 387-6949, or Louise Bowser Younkin, at 746-8179 by Thursday, August 1. Reservations are not required for the dance, and there will be a $5 per person cover charge, payable at the door, for those not attending the dinner.

On Sunday, August 11, the class will have a family picnic to be held at the Double G Campgrounds, McHenry. Each family is asked to bring a covered dish to the picnic and to call Patty Ault Foley or Louise Bowser Younkin with the number attending. Oakland Auto Dealership Earns National Award Team One, Oakland, recently earned top honors in the 1990 GMC Truck "5 Star Performers" program, an annual nationwide retail truck sales honor and recognition program.

Traditionally, five stars have designated excellence. According to a GMC spokesman, the "5 Star Performers" distinction is the most prestigious honor GMC Truck bestows on its very best dealers. "Throughout the past year, this dealership demonstrated a commitment to excellence by achieving superior performance in the areas of sales, customer satisfaction, service, training, parts and accessories, and business management," the spokesman said.

"Last year's marketplace offered challenging conditions and difficult objectives for GMC Truck dealerships. Team One accepted these challenges with enthusiasm and achieved success. This dealership deserves the honor and recognition it has earned and is worthy of its '5 Star Performers' distinction," he concluded.

SMOKEY VISITS M.F.A. FIELD DAY -- Smokey the Bear visited the Maryland Forests Association Field Day on June 14-15 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds to promote forest fire prevention. Smokey's message to young and old alike was to be careful with fires in the forest. According to an MFA spokesman, Smokey's message is especially important this year because of the drought-like conditions the area has been experiencing this year. The rainfall for May and June has been less than half of the normal rainfall. According to the National Weather Service, Garrett County was 6.33 inches below normal for the year, through the end of June.

Seborrhea: Affects 12 Million Americans

Seborrhea is a skin condition that is commonly confused with dandruff. The term seborrhea refers to chronic skin eruptions, most of which occur on the scalp, face, and other hairy parts of the body. Seborrhea is associated with dull, greasy scales. The skin tends to itch and burn.

When seborrhea occurs in newborns and young infants, the condition often is referred to as "cradle cap." Seborrhea tends to intensify during periods of stress. Women are affected more often than men, and the condition is seen most frequently among middle-aged and older adults.

Although seborrhea and dandruff are not the same condition, they are treated in much the same way. Many medicated over-the-counter shampoos can be used to treat either condition. A recent article in U.S. Pharmacist suggests these guidelines for medicated shampoos: (1) If the condition gets worse or does not improve, try products with different ingredients. (2) Do not use medicated shampoos on children under the age of two except on the advise of a physician. (3) Do not use products containing selenium if you have open sores on your scalp. (4) If the scalp is especially dirty, wash it first with a regular shampoo to remove excess dirt and scales.

Do Your Home Work!

The chances of selling your home at the best possible price in the least amount of time can be greatly increased when you are represented by a REALTOR®. You are not, however, relieved of one very important responsibility: providing a home in top condition.

Your REALTOR® will provide valuable information on pricing your home to sell, will create a marketing plan to expose your home to the largest number of potential buyers, and will advise how to make your home attractive to buyers. Responsibility rests with you, however, to make your home as inviting as possible to buyers.

Here is a three-part, sure-fire method for improving your home's buyer appeaal. First, think back to when you purchased the home. Make a list of the positive features which made an impression on you the first time you saw it. Ask your family to help. Look for special impressions it made and write them down.

Next, go room-by-room and look for ways to improve the message each room sends to buyers. Help set the scene for a positive emotional response by creating a special touch where necessary. Each room should welcome the buyers and bid them to stay.

Finally, make a list of all negatives in your home, room-by-room. Then, eliminate or minimize them. Take away any reasons the buyer may have for not buying your home. Be objective, and again ask the family to help.

You have the power to create an atmosphere in your home which is inviting to prospective buyers. Ask your REALTOR® to tour your home and make suggestions for change. The effort expended before your home is offered for sale can greatly improve its sale price and time on the market.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 387-5303 or come by our office located at McHenry Plaza.

COVE KIDS

by Jessica Stemple, reporter

The July meeting of the Cove Kids 4-H Club came to order. Shonna DeWitt and Vernon Paugh led the pledges. DeWitt, secretary, took roll and read the minutes. The minutes were approved. The old business brought up was that volunteers are needed for brown bag. The new business items were that any member missing three or more meetings cannot enter anything in the Fair under 4-H, but in open categories. If any member has a market animal., they should talk to business owners, managers, and individuals who would defintely come to the Fair and be a buyer, make a list of those who will, and send it to the Extension Office.

There will be no August meeting because of the Fair. The September meeting will be held at the Long household.

Those members who need help filling out the preregistration form can get help on July 25 and 26, at the fairgrounds. The committee for the fair float include Shonna DeWitt, Jessica Stemple, J.R. Thomas, and Scott Schmidt.

The Club decided to buy plastic sheeting to preserve the float lettering.

Larry Gnegy, from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, talked about some of the programs and about drugs. Vernon Paugh and Jessica Stemple gave a demonstration on the equipment used in the beef and veal projects.

The winner of the wooden glider was Carla Swearman.

State Police Give Advice To Homeowners

Maryland State Police have released a home security checklist for homeowners and apartment dwellers who are planning to leave home on vacation. The checklist, prepared by the Crime Prevention Unit, recommends the following: Make home or apartment look occupied; lock all doors, windows and storage sheds; use timers for interior/exterior lighting; arrange for mail, paper and trash pickup; keep lawns and shrubs trimmed; and ask a trusted neighbor to make periodic property checks.

"The best advice is to make your home look lived in," stated Corporal Tom Zufall. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, Corporal Zufall said most property thefts can be prevented if proper security precautions are taken. According to the 1990 Maryland State Police Uniform Crime Report, police in Maryland investigated more than 53,000 breaking and enterings in the state during 1990.

The Maryland State Police Crime Prevention Unit is reminding homeowners that lights and locks provide some of the best protection against property theft commonly associated with residential breaking and enterings. State Police recommend the recording of serial or identification numbers on home appliances such as televisions, radios, VCR's, and stereo equipment. Photographs of antiques and jewelry can help homeowners identify stolen property if a burglary occurs.

Marylanders who plan to leave home on vacation should make proper arrangements to have mail and newspapers collected. While away on vacation, all doors and windows should be locked. Trash or garbage containers should be properly stored and lawns mowed during the summer vacation periods.

For more information on summer home security tips and other summer crime prevention measurers, persons may contact their nearest Maryland State Police installation or local law enforcement agency.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Farmers Join Together To Raise Milk Prices

This year, as milk prices have plunged to 10-year low levels, dairy farmers throughout New York state and New England have joined together to win important victories to raise their milk prices above federally set minimums that are less than the farmer's cost of production.

"This is the direct result of Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc. (RCMA)," says John Siglow, general manager of Producers' Equalization Agency, Inc. (PEA), the Ohio/Western Pennsylvania counterpart of New York state's RCMA. "What they're doing is proving the clout that dairy farmers gain when they join together under a pricing agency like PE."

PEA is currently signing up members in order to price milk either through legislative efforts or by negotiating with buyers. Already, 3,300 of the required 5,000 dairy farmers have agreed to price their milk through PEA. Once 5,000 have signed, PEA will have the same pricing power as RCMA, which has 22,000 members and influences higher prices for its members in 11 states, including New York.

"In the New York referendum, which was to approve or disapprove the $14.50 Class I minimum, any farmer not voting is counted as a 'no,'" added Siglow. "This means that there are no abstaining voters. So if the individual dairy farmer wants to increase the price he receives he has to commit himself with a 'yes' vote. He can't plan on the other guy voting for him."

The recent New York pricing took advantage of the Rogers-Allen Act to establish the $14.50 statewide minimum. Encouraged by their victory, the RCMA Board of Directors is putting into motion the necessary procedures to make the Rogers-Allen Act applicable to out-of-state milk shipped into New York State, and to New York dairy farmers who ship their milk out of state.

John Siglow comments, "The recent success in New York has made our agency's recruitment efforts in Ohio more meaningful. Dairy farmers in Vermont, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Rhode Island have also been able to organize to get their local dairy farmers higher milk prices. These efforts are sending a clear message to farmers in eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania (including Western Maryland) that when dairy farmers act together, they can improve the price of their milk."

Dairy farmers who have not as yet signed with PEA, and would like to, should contact John Siglow, the PEA General Manager, at the toll-free number 1-800-875-2250.

Maryland City Kids, Teachers Learn About Agriculture

Maryland educators and students are learning about agriculture through a number of special programs coordinated through the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, the Maryland State Department of Education and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Highlighting this year's activities is a statewide agricultural education inservice program for elementary teachers. The program will be held at the Annapolis Ramada Inn July 22-26. The workshop will include teachers from Maryland's 24 county and city school districts, one teacher from Virginia and two teachers from Pennsylvania.

The workshop is designed to educate teachers about Maryland's largest industry — agriculture. These concepts are designed to fulfill current curriculum goals in math, social studies and language arts.

The Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation (MAEF) was established in 1989 as a result of the Report of Governor William Donald Schaefer's Commission on Education in Agriculture. The report found that few citizens are aware of the diversity and complixity of today's agricultural industry.

MAEF's mission is to increase public awareness of the importance of agriculture to Maryland, to attract more young people to its career opportunities, and to coordinate public and private support for improved agricultural education programs.

Newspapers As Cattle Feed Being Studied

A University of Illinois animal scientist is testing the use of shredded newspaper as a new ingredient in cattle rations, according to "Farm Show" magazine. The scientist is breaking down newspaper fiber with a solution of hydrochloric acid and hydrogen peroxide, "predigesting" it so bacteria in the rumen can break it down the rest of the way. Previous research in the 1970s led to the use of untreated paper being fed to animals, but only about 20 percent of the newsprint was digested--compared to 60 percent for hay.

Farm Bureau Urges Congress To Adopt Wetlands Measure

Citing significant support in Congress for proposals to end current regulatory confusion over wetlands protection, the American Farm Bureau Federation urged Congress to adopt "corrective legislation which farmers and ranchers sorely need."

AFBF President Dean Kleckner said the level of support in both houses "should convince reluctant lawmakers as well as the administration that wetlands regulatory enforcement is a real problem." In March Reps. James Hayes (D-La.) and Thomas Ridge (R-Pa.) introduced the Comprehensive Wetlands Conservation and Management Act of 1991 (H.R. 1330), which has 254 cosponsors. An identical Senate bill (S.1463) was recently introduced by Sen. John Breaux (D-La.). It has 21 cosponsors.

Kleckner said his organization recently compiled over a one-week period more than 400 case studies from 39 states that "show farmers and ranchers being caught in regulatory crossfire from four government agencies." He said the cases were collected because Sen. Max Baucus (D-Mont.), chairman of the Senate Environmental Protection Subcommittee, requested proof that wetlands enforcement is indeed a problem. Kleckner said Farm Bureau delivered the cases to Baucus this week.

"These stories are just the tip of the iceberg," he said. "More are coming in every day."

Referring to the legislation, Kleckner said, "We now have the means to end the regulatory chaos which has angered farmers and other landowners across the United States. The bills provide a clear definition of what is a wetland and what is worth protecting."

He also said the legislation "would inject badly needed common sense and consistency in wetlands regulations and how they are enforced." Kleckner explained: "On too many occasions, the varying interpretations by four government agencies have produced disastrous results, locking up lands with questionable wetland values while robbing landowners of their dreams and livelihoods."

Breaux, when introducing his measure, said: "The need for fairness and a greater degree of certainty in the wetlands permitting process demands the attention of Congress. We have all heard wetlands-permitting horror stories. A federal wetlands policy must be reasonable and it must be balanced."

USDA Threatens Dairy Bill Veto

USDA would recommend a veto of dairy legislation as it is currently proposed, USDA Secretary Ed Madigan said last week. Madigan said the administration is opposed to a two-tier program that would utilize mandatory quotas and bases.

In a letter to House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza (D-Texas), Madigan expressed the administration's objections to the bill (H.R.2837) reported by the Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and poultry.

"While we understand the concerns of dairy farmers with low milk prices and have, ourselves, taken steps to improve the market situation, the administration opposes H.R. 2837 on the basis of both fundamental principles and practical considerations," said Madigan.

Madigan said the bill would create an "inconsistent and ultimately ineffective program structure for the government and the dairy industry" and that mandatory production controls required by the bill's two-tier pricing provisions would stifle individual producer incentive and initiative.

In addition, reduced economic activity and geographic dislocation of productive resources would result. He noted that "exemption of dairy farmers in the Southeast from production controls is unfair to other dairy farmers in the rest of the country."

The bill would also raise the cost of the average retail price of milk and cheese, Madigan said, and would restrict consumer choice by imposing new standards for the contents of milk sold for fluid use.

Until reviews on the Minnesoata-Wisconsin price series and the federal milk marketing order system are completed and recommendations are made, Madigan said Congress should not proceed with major dairy legislation.

A markup was rescheduled to begin this week in the House Agriculture Committee.

About ten pounds of mulberry leaves are needed for the silkworm to manufacture a pound of cocoons-which can be spun into a silk thread over 100 miles long.

Maryland Veal Association Holds Picnic In Grantsville

Approximately 100 members and guests attended the Maryland Veal Association (MVA) quarterly meeting and picnic Monday, July 22, at the Grantsville Park.

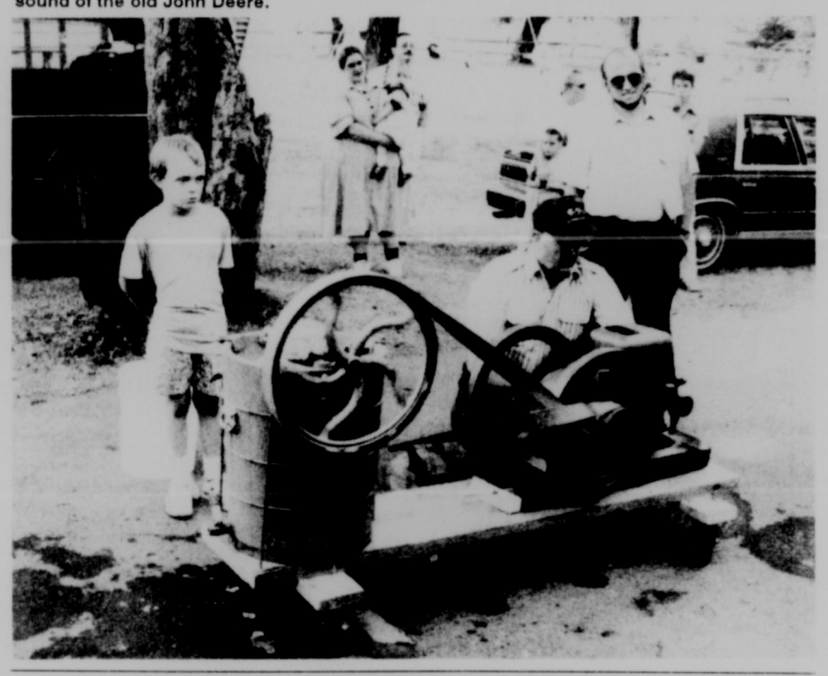
Two rear quarters of veal were roasted by American Veal Association (AVA) board member Loren Neuenschwander, of Ohio. In addition to the meat, the MVA board provided coleslaw, baked beans, baked potatoes, cake and homemade icecream to complete the meal.

Special guests for the evening included representatives from a number of feed companies, meat packers, dairymen, Senator John J. Hafer, Delegate George Edwards and Garrett County Commissioner John Braskey.

MVA President Raymond Yoder chaired the quarterly meeting. MVA Board Member Craig Cumberworth reported on the recent national convention helt in South Bend, Indiana.

Past AVA President Delmar Yoder spoke to the group on the importance of newborn calf care by dairymen. He stressed the newborn calf's need for coloustrum, or mother's first milk. He also related the importance of dipping the calf's navel with iodine to prevent infections, and said the ideal age for a new calf to be transferred to the sale barn is between three to seven days of age.

Yoder also reported on the success of the Veal Quality Assurance Program, a voluntary program for veal producers to monitor and help reduce violative antibiotic residues in veal calves. According to results of the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service's 1990 residue monitoring program, for the second year in a row, residues have continued to decline to an all time low. Yoder said this continued reduction is due to the efforts of veal farmers, in cooperation with the AVA, FSIS, FDA, Cooperative Extension Service, meat packing industry, feed industries and antibiotic cuppliers.



Yoder also stressed this is one of the benefits of being a local and national Association member — to work with organizations like the USDA, FDA, and FSIS to improve the industry. "This and the educational information packets the AVA puts together, are only two of the many things the organization is doing for veal growers," Yoder told the group.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the group presented Yoder with a gift of two videos for the work he has done over the years with the MVA, the AVA, and the Beef Council.

A number of door prizes, donations from many different companies, were awarded before the group retired to visit and feast on homemade ice cream before returning home after an enjoyable evening.

A CROWD GATHERS AS THE FOOD IS SERVED -- Members and guests of the Maryland Veal Association watch as Ken Miller (left) and Loren Neuenschwander (right) serve one of the two veal quarters roasted by Neuenschwander. After taking six and one-half hours to roast, the meat disappeared in a much shorter time, as the group of approximately 100 gathered around the tables. Below, Delmar Yoder tends the 1924 "hit & miss" John Deere engine that cranked 10 gallons of homemade ice cream. Many of those watching could remember the "putt-putt" sound of the old John Deere.

Topsoil Short Or Very Short Of Moisture Across Maryland

By July 21, virtually all of Maryland's soybean acreage had been planted, ahead of last year's 99 percent and the five year average of 95 percent. An average of 6.7 days was suitable for fieldwork during this past week according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Eight Lawmakers Honored With Golden Plow Award

The American Farm Bureau Federation has presented its prestigious "Golden Plow" award to two Senators and six members of the House in recognition of their service in support of Farm Bureau policies and philosophies in the United States Congress.

Honored for their work in the Senate were Senators Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) and Pete Domenici (R-N.M.).

House members recognized included Representatives Tom Coleman (R-Mo.), Fred Grandy (R-Iowa), Jerry Huckaby (D-La.), Jerry Lewis (R-Calif.), Sonny Montgomery (D-Miss.) and Bob Stump (R-Ariz.).

The presentations were made by AFBF President Dean Kleckner during the AFBF Council of Presidents' meeting held July 15-17 in Washington, D.C.

The Golden Plow award is a congressional award program initiated by Farm Bureau in 1988 to recognize select members of Congress for their support for, and interest in agriculture-related issues. The award consists of a bronze replica of the original John Deere steel plow mounted on a wood base with a brass plate showing the name of the award, the name of the recipient and the year the award was presented.

MDA Opens Farmers' Markets Across The State

This summer the Maryland Department of Agriculture's (MDA) Marketing Services section is opening nine new farmers' markets operating out of 10 locations stretching from Cumberland in Allegany County to Ocean City in Worcester County.

"This is the most ambitious expansion of our farmers' market program we have ever had," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr.

"Governor William Donald Schaefer is strongly behind this program and it looks like a great year for farmers to sell their outstanding fruits and vegetables direct to consumers," Cawley said.

A new trend in farmers' markets in Maryland is the development of regional produces associations to supply them. The new market in downtown Cumberland is being supplied by growers from the Mountain Fresh Producers Association which opened a farmers' market in Oakland in Garrett County during 1989.

A new group, the Shore Fresh Growers Association has been organized and is supplying new markets in Queenstown, Salisbury and two in Ocean City.

"All of these new markets will be growers-only markets. There will be no middlemen. Consumers can rely on sellers of top quality, locally grown produce," Cawley said.

"I congratulate the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service as well as local business groups and local governments for playing a major role in helping us to develop these new markets," said Cawley.

Mixed Signals On Wetlands Apparent At Senate Hearing

While dismissing complaints about wetlands regulatory enforcement actions as "lurid and unsubstantiated charges," Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Reilly last week released a new draft wetlands delineation manual.

Reilly, along with officials of the Fish and Wildlife Service and Army Corps of Engineers, testified at a Senate environment subcommittee hearing where he released the newest version of the controversial manual. Reilly released it without first getting White House approval and amid signs that much discord remains within the administration on the issue.

Reilly found a receptive audience in the Senate panel. Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell (D-Maine) urged Reilly and other administration officials to get the manual out for public comment because "wholly untrue horror stories" about wetlands regulation and errors in enforcement are becoming accepted by the public as reality, he said. "We have to maintain or rebuild public support for wetland protection."

Sen. Steve Symms (R-Idaho) was the only panel member who expressed doubts about current enforcement efforts and spoke in favor of the need to protect private property rights. "Section 404 is not working to protect wetlands, instead it has become a tool for regulation of private property," he said.

American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner said the hearing and Reilly's action "point out why there is so much confusion and chaos in wetlands regulation. The administration appears to be split on what to do about the delineation manual and yet it says, 'Trust us, we don't need legislation.' But farmers and ranchers are getting mixed signals from the administration and don't know who to trust on this. That is why we need clear-cut legislation like the Hayes-Ridge bill."

The Farm Bureau-backed Hayes-Ridge wetlands bill (H.R. 1330), which has 148 House co-sponsors, would precisely define wetlands, provide exemptions for specific farming practices and provide compensation for "takings" that result from wetlands enforcement.

As for the wetlands delineation draft manual released at the hearing, it contains several changes from a version leaked a few months ago, but fails to settle key issues. Most significant, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Jim Moseley, is the change in wetlands definition from 14 days of saturation at the surface to a range of 10-20 days. Farm Bureau favors a 21-day standard; an earlier version of the manual called for 14 days. The exact time span is supposed to be determined by public comment. Other changes include a different definition of hydrophytic vegetation.

Reilly told the committee he hopes the new delineation draft manual would be printed in the "Federal Register" by late July and be available for public comment for 60 days after its release. However, there is still a dispute among the agencies on how much time should be allowed for public comment.

Kleckner said the signals on the wetlands issue aren't positive. "The comments of Reilly and some of the senators on the environment subcommittee are distressing," he said.

"They obviously don't care to understand what the fuss is about, ignoring the fact that there already has been significant public input on this issue. It's unfortunate that Reilly and the subcommittee are so quick to dismiss the many complaints from the farm community about regulatory chaos. These aren't being fabricated," Kleckner asserted.

Hay Removed From Hazardous Materials Regulations List

Hay has been removed from the Department of Transportation's hazardous materials table. In a rule published in the December 21, 1990, "Federal Register," DOT had listed "hay or straw, wet, damp or contaminated with oil" as a flammable solid to be regulated under hazardous materials regulations. DOT officials have since concluded that hay does not pose a sufficient hazard to be considered a flammable solid and will remove the listing.

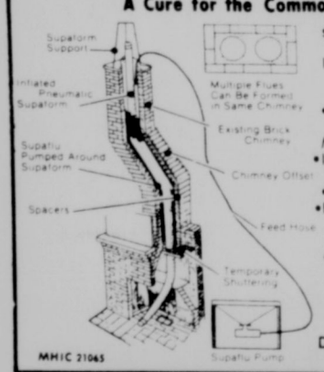
Brackenfern -- Poison!

Over the years we have had several farm animals die from Brackenfern poisoning. With the hot, dry weather most pasture grasses have done dormant; however, the Brackenfern has the ability to survive. In most cases, the fern is found in large colonies in or at the edge of woodlands. I have also found Brankenfern in open fields around wet weather springs. I would recommend that you scout your pasture fields for the fern. You can destroy the fern with Roundup.



Milk Deduction Refund

I just want to briefly mention that the new Farm Bill has a repayment of government deductions for milk producers who did not increase their farm milk production. Mike Kozier, ASCS manager, said it was too early to give any details on the procedures for filing for repayment. I will keep you updated. Also, Mike and I probably will have a couple of producers meetings to assist you.

Southern Corn Leaf Blight

Very seldom have I found the Southern Leaf Blight in our area until this year. The Southern Blight is favored by high humidity and high temperatures which we have had. Thus, this disease is usually confined to the Southeastern part of the U.S. The symptoms are tan lesions (spots), oblong, usually parallel-sided but sometimes spindle-shaped. They are about 1/4 to 1/2 inch wide and 1-1/2 inches long. The size of the lesions depends on the genotype of the corn. Control is best achieved by planting resistant hybrids. Unless we continue having hot and humid summers, I would not expect the Southern Corn Leaf Blight to become a serious problem.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS
Garrett County Commissioners

The purpose of this Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the County of Garrett.

On or about August 12, 1991 the above named County Commissioners will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release funds under the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY HOMEOWNERSHIP PROJECT

Location: Scattered throughout Garrett County. Kings Run, Sang Run, Pysell Road, Broadford Road, Garrett Road, M Street and Woodridge Park, Mt. Lake Park, Lothian Street, Loch Lynn, Golf Crest Manor, Oakland, and Route 40 Grantsville.

These locations will provide building sites which will be sold to Habitat for Humanity home buyers.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

Notice is hereby given that the above named County Commissioners have prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this Notice and have determined that said project will have no significant effect on the quality of human environment. No further environmental review of said project is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

The construction involved with building each individual house will be temporary and relatively minor in nature. All lots have received a satisfactory percolation test. All necessary permits will be obtained prior to the start of each individual house.

The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of these projects is available for public examination at the County Planning and Zoning Office - CDBG Administrator, room 307, Old Courthouse, telephone 334-1920, during normal business hours.

PUBLIC COMMENTS ON FINDING

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the office of the CDBG Administrator-County Planning and Zoning Office and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than August 9, 1991. All comments will be considered and the County Commissioners will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

The County will undertake the project described above with Small Cities Community Development Block Grant funds. This Notice also certifies that Brenda J. Butscher, serving in the official capacity of Chair of the County Commissioners, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County may use the Small Cities Community Development Block Grants Funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

OBJECTION TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if it is on one of the following bases:

(a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer; or (b) that the County Environmental Review Record for the project indicated omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review Process; or (c) No opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800; or (d) objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the County and to the SCCDBG Program Coordinator, Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, Maryland 21032-2023. All such comments must be received no later than August 27, 1991.

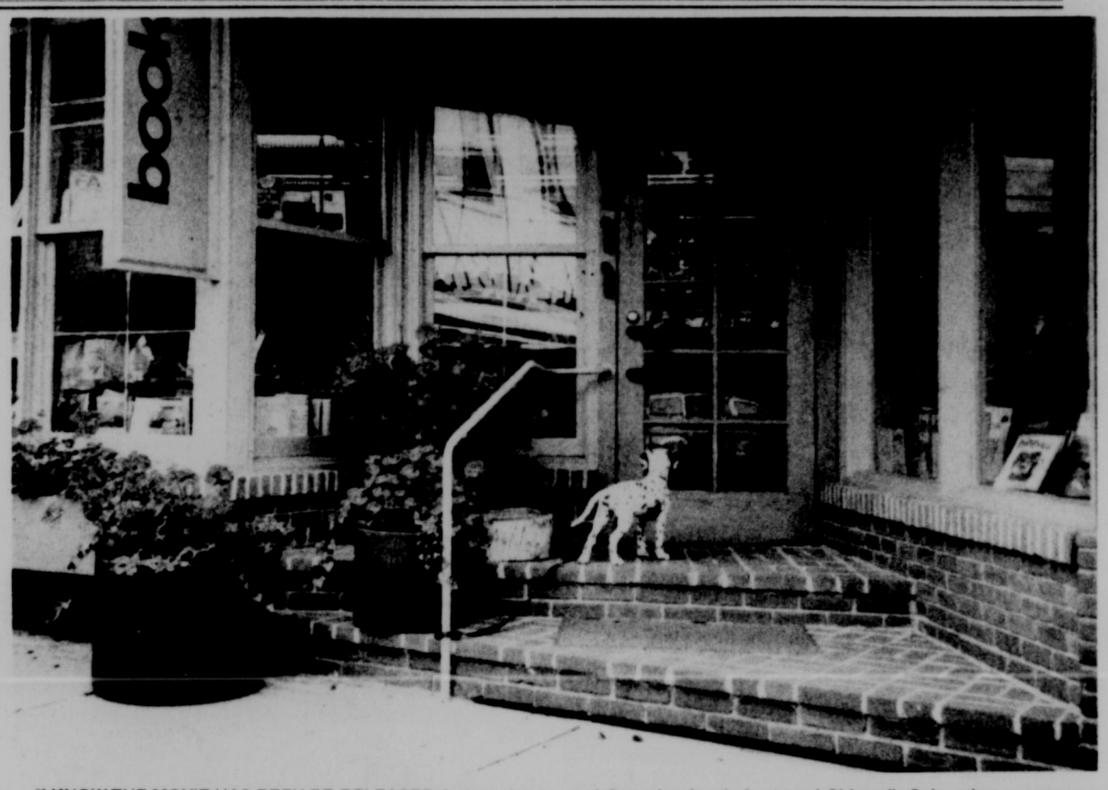
Diverse Opinions Heard At State Forest Hearings

Public informational hearings held this past weekend in Garrett County on the fiscal year 1992 work plans for Savage River and Potomac/Garrett state forests netted the predictable opposing views on the management of forest land -- particularly in the area of timbering concerns.



According to Larry Maxim, forest manager for Savage River State Forest, "both ends of the spectrum" were represented at the hearings, held to inform the public, as well as to solicit feedback on the work plans at both state forests for FY '92. The informational hearings will be held on an annual basis from now on, according to Maryland Department of Natural Resources officials, and the two conducted in Garrett County this past weekend were part of a series of four hearings held around the state.

The forest managers, Maxim at Savage River and Steve Hamilton at Potomac/Garrett, presented all areas of their work plans to the public, including projects for new parking lots, shooting ranges, culvert replacements, improved facilities, and bridge construction and replacements.

Steve Hamilton reported that most of that portion of the work plan for Potomac/Garrett received mostly favorable comments, with a few concerns and negative views. The issue that received the majority of comments was that of timbering plans at both state forests. One group of participants felt that too many trees were being harvested and one group felt that not enough were being harvested, said Hamilton. Still others supported the timbering proposals.

Objection to the timbering plans included the need to conduct environmental, as well as economic studies, on how the timber is currently

"I KNOW THE MOVIE HAS BEEN RE-RELEASED, but can I get it in paperback" might be the thought of this little dalmatian pup, as he anxiously peers in the window of the Book Market from his sidewalk vantage point in Oakland. Downtown merchants will be moving many of their wares out onto the sidewalks this Friday and Saturday for their annual Sidewalk Sale, where numerous bargains will be available for local residents and Garrett County visitors. Details of many of those bargains can be found in a special three-page layout in the front section of this newspaper. Photo by Craig Phillips.

Commissioners Hear Concerns About Insufficient Timbering Revenues

The Garrett County Commissioners this week heard concerns from two county residents about what they viewed as deficiencies in the five-year plan developed by Maryland Department of Natural Resources to cut timber in the Savage River State Forest, and the resulting loss of state and county revenue because of the reduced harvesting of trees in that state forest.

Marshall Stacy, Swanton, local tree farmer, and John Forman, Oakland, local forestry association official, presented their views to the commissioners, not in representation of their respective areas of expertise, but, said Stacy, as "county citizens."

A written report presented to the commissioners by Stacy and Forman stated, "Garrett County residents are paying for the rest of the state's recreational opportunities and the mismanagement of their resources." The report further stated, "The five-year plan for Savage River State Forest (for fiscal years 1988-92) called for a total timber harvest of 30 million board feet of timber. To date, only 13.3 million board feet have been cut, with 5.4 million proposed for 1992 -- the final year of the plan."

Stacy explained that 25% of all timbering revenues generated from state forest land located in Garrett County has been earmarked for use by the county. But, said Stacy, "the five-year plan always comes up short of what was supposed to be harvested....Garrett County is really getting the short end of the stick."

Stacy and Forman each suggested to the commissioners that consideration be given to implementing a recreational user fee in the state forests and parks to make up for the lost revenue from the reduction in timbering. Although suggestions have been made from various interest groups to initiate such a fee, the plan currently being developed does not address the suggestion, said Stacy.

He also voiced concern about county residents who

Bradley Manor Renovation Plan Rejected; Judge Orders Compromise

Oakland Mayor Asa McCain returned from federal bankruptcy court in Baltimore with news that the presiding Judge Schneider had rejected a plan to renovate the Bradley Manor housing project. Although this outcome was what the mayor and town had asked for, McCain said he is feeling "reserved" about the outcome because the situation is not yet over.

McCain explained that the town of Oakland was able to present its case, which was to prove that the plan to renovate the 100 units of Bradley Manor could not be done structurally nor economically. Through testimony of the town's four witnesses, the judge was convinced that this was the case, therefore he did not confirm the renovation plan presented by the Oakland Associates.

However, the judge then ordered all three parties involved in the case (Department of Housing and Urban Development, Oakland Associates, and the Town of Oakland) to now work together to come up with a plan that is acceptable to all parties and that would provide affordable housing in Oakland. The three parties have until August 30 to agree on a plan of re-development.

McCain said the town's first action will be to obtain a transcript of the judge's closing statement, which lasted approximately one half hour. In this statement is the order for the parties to compromise and create a new plan in 30 days. After receiving the transcript, the mayor speculated that the parties will meet in the next few weeks to begin deliberations.

Concerning the hearing, McCain stated that from the evidence presented from all sides, all parties had a fair trial, in his opinion. He said Schneider remarked that he understood why the Oakland townspeople did not want to see the renovation plan granted.

The mayor stated that he and others have several ideas on how the Bradley Manor area could be completely altered, and that there may be a positive result from the compromise. However, he also commented that it is too early to feel "elated" about yesterday's outcome.

Sex Offender Given 10-Year Prison Term

Jackie G. Friend, 33, Friendsville, was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections after being convicted of third degree sex offense in Garrett County Circuit Court. Judge Fred S. Thayer handed down the sentence, and suspended five years of the 10-year term.

Friend allegedly molested a 7-year-old female in January at the child's home. The defendant was visiting the home, and as the victim's mother slept, Friend reportedly entered the child's bedroom where she was asleep, removed her clothing, and sexually molested her. He told the child that if she told anyone about the incident, he would hurt her mother. The defendant apparently had been drinking alcohol at the time.

Police were clued into the incident after the child's mother was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital for an accidental overdose. The woman told police that she had taken sleeping pills because she had not been able to rest since she learned that her child had been molested some days before.

Friend pleaded guilty to the third degree sex offense charge in a May hearing. Thayer had ordered a presentence investigation at that time. Other charges not prosecuted were second and fourth degree sex offense and assault and battery.

Thayer ordered the defendant to attend alcohol rehabilitation and to refrain from alcohol. After incarceration, Friend will be on supervised probation, according to the court document. He was remanded to the custody of the Garrett County Sheriff after sentencing.

Defense council for the defendant was John R. Toston.

CISSIE LYNN, daughter of the legendary Loretta Lynn, will bring her musical talents to the stage of the Garrett County Fair August 14 for two performances, at 8 and 9:30 p.m. In touring with her mother for several years, Cissie has made a name for herself, having appeared at Harrah's both in Lake Tahoe and Reno, the Kennedy Center in Washington. D.C., and on a U.S.O. tour to Germany and Egypt in 1985. She gained national recognition for her performance on the Loretta Lynn Christmas TV special and on the "Loretta Lynn Live" album recorded at Wheeling, W.Va. She has appeared on several television shows, including the Ralph Emery Show and the Noon Show, both on WSM-TV, Nashville. Among her live audience attendees was President George Bush.

Commissioners Oppose Plan To Locate Sludge In Garrett County

The Garrett County Commissioners this week announced their opposition to a plan by the City of Cumberland to locate sludge on a farm owned by Peter Brown in the Avilton area of Garrett County.

The City of Cumberland has reportedly submitted an application to the Maryland Department of the Environment to "apply sewage sludge on agricultural land," according to a letter written July 18 to Garrett County Commissioner Chairperson Brenda Butscher by Richard W. Collins, director of the Hazardous and Solid Waste Management Administration of the Maryland Department of the Environment.

The agricultural land referred to in the letter is located on Savage River Farms, owned by Peter Brown, and is situated adjacent to Pea Ridge Road.

Both Commissioners Butscher and Elwood Groves this week voiced their opposition to the plan (Commissioner John Braskey was out of town at the time, and unavailable for comment), and after being informed by Department of the Environment officials that a public hearing could be held on the issue, a letter was then sent to that department by Robert Fousek, county administrator, requesting that the public hearing be held.

The letter also stated, "I would also point out at this time that a permit would be required for this activity under the Garrett County Sewage Sludge Regulation. The permit is issued by the Garrett County Health Department and requires a public hearing to be held on each application."

The county sludge regulation was implemented in 1981 following an attempt by a Baltimore-based company to transport sludge to Garrett County.

According to Fousek, the date of the hearing has not yet been set.

The proposal was discussed, in part, during the monthly staff meeting of county departmental and agency heads at the commissioners' office. Garrett County Environmental Health Director Edgar Harman informed the other county officials of the plan, and stated that Maryland Environmental Services would manage the project, if approved.

Harman also reported to the commissioners that there has been "a recent upturn" in the number of rabies cases reported throughout Garrett County. He noted that, for a time, it appeared the cases were diminishing but the last few weeks have seen a number of new confirmations of rabid animals coming into contact with pets, as well as with humans.

Health Dept. Update

In other news from the commissioners' staff meeting, Garrett County Health Officer Dr. Rex Archer reported an "increased effort" by state and local health officials in preventing cancer and diminishing its numbers

Edwards Appointed To Legislative Study Committees

District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards this week announced his appointment to three legislative committees that are or will be meeting in the interim session of the 1991 Maryland General Assembly. His appointments include the Joint Committee on Expenditures, the Joint Subcommittee on the State's Capital Projects and the Special Joint Committee on Growth Management.

Edwards stated that he was honored to be appointed to the committees because it would place him in the early stages of planning and decision-making for the state. It also signifies a "respect from my cohorts," he said.

The Joint Committee on Expenditures is one half of the recently created Joint Committee on Expenditures and Revenue, with the expenditures committee beginning in late August or early September.

The committee will review state expenditures and advise the legislative and executive branches of

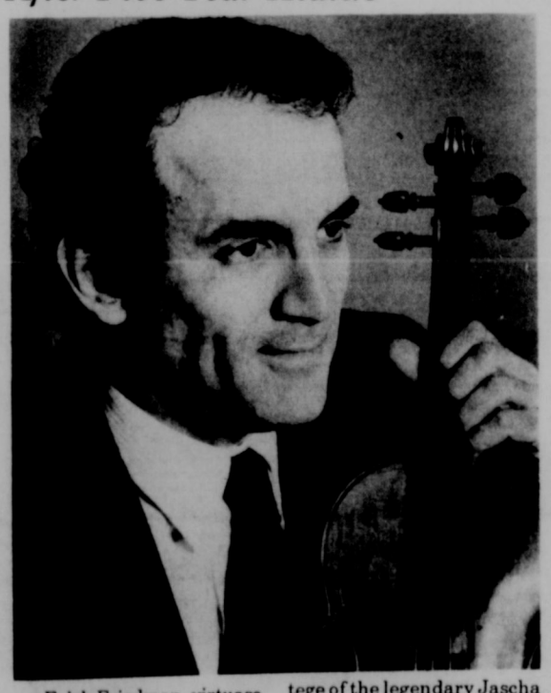
Deep Creek Lake House Severely Damaged By Fire



Damages to a log cabin along Deep Creek Lake have been estimated to be at least $25,000 from a Monday night fire, the cause of which is still undetermined.

Volunteer fire fighters from Deep Creek, Accident, Deer Park, and Bittinger responded to the residence, owned by T.D. Broadwater, of Pennsylvania, and located along Paradise Point Road, at 9:13 p.m. Smoke and flames were showing when they arrived on the scene and it took approximately one-half hour to bring the blaze under control.

According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, the cause of the fire is still under investigation, but it is believed to be accidental and apparently began in the kitchen area. Reportedly, the Broadwater family had left the house that morning to return to their home in Pennsylvania.

Also responding to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad and a unit from the Oakland VFD stood by at Deer Park's station. Firemen remained on the scene for about two hours and Deep Creek personnel were called back at about 12:42 a.m. Tuesday after the fire rekindled. There were no injuries reported.

Friedman To Play For GLAF After Five-Year Hiatus

Erick Friedman, virtuoso violinist, is scheduled to perform at the upcoming Symphony at Deep Creek, the final offering of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF), August 21-24. This summer marks the first season Friedman has played his violin for public audiences in five years. The musician has served as musical director and conductor for the music festival since its inception in 1987, and will be serving in the same capacity again this year. His violin performance is slated for Thursday evening during the second concert of the scheduled four.

Friedman, a former protege of the legendary Jascha Heifetz, has performed as a guest violinist with nearly all of the world's great orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, the National Symphony, the Berlin Philharmonic, and the London Symphony. He has collaborated with such international conductors as Karajan, Previn, Ozawa, and Steinberg.

Friedman has recorded for RCA with the Boston, Chicago, and London symphonies and won two Grammy Award nominations. He was the only violinist to record with Heifetz,

"The Odd Couple" To Open Next Week On GCC Stage

"The Odd Couple," one of Neil Simon's most popular comedies, will be the second theatre presentation of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival next week in the air conditioned auditorium of Garrett Community College. Performances are scheduled for August 7, 8, 9, and 10 at 8 p.m.

Produced by ACT IV Productions, Inc., and directed by Frances Acton, "The Odd Couple" will feature all local talents. Ned Holloway and Bob Leatherbury will play the parts of the now famous duo of Felix Unger and Oscar Madison, roles first played by Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

In the play, these two characters are best friends until the recently-divorced, meticulous Felix moves in with the happy-go-lucky and somewhat sloppy Oscar, an arrangement that adversely affects their weekly Friday night poker games with their mutual pals, Murray the cop, Roy, Speed, and Vinnie. In an attempt to help Felix out of his misery and to seek some much needed diversion for himself, Oscar sets up a date with the British born Pigeon sisters, which does not exactly turn out as he had hoped. This segment of big city life creates many hilarious situations.

The cast includes Don Sincell as Murray the cop, Brandon Seifert as Roy, Bob Kleinedler as Vinnie, and Roger Strauss as Speed. The lovely Pigeon sisters are played by Polly Ramsey and Renita Sherwood.

The set was designed by Ben Sincell and constructed with the help of Conrad Maust and Alex Hicks, with Dan Ledden as technical director and stage manager. Robert Ulino is the assistant director and backstage support is being provided by Tammy Friend, Alex Hicks, and Patty Wells. The play is

Area Santa To Be Honored At Disney World

Lou Stouffer, the man who portrays a "real" Santa Claus every year for hundreds of local children, will be among the honored guests at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., this fall.

Stouffer, who was named one of President Bush's 1,000 Daily Points of Light for his special service to so many area families, will spend three days at the famous tourist attraction with all travel and accommodations courtesy of The Walt Disney Company. His wife, Lola, will accompany him, also free of charge.

Others who have been invited to the three-day event, which will include a ceremony honoring those chosen Points of Light, include President Bush and entertainment stars Paul Abdul, Phil Collins, Gloria Estefan, Whitney Houston, Billy Joel, Kenny Rogers, and Robin Williams.

A letter to Stouffer from Michael Eisner, chairman of The Walt Disney Company, congratulated Stouffer's selection by President Bush as a Point of Light and noted "your activities and selfless giving of your time and talent are most admirable and deserving of recognition."

For many years Stouffer has been the "real" Santa for hundreds of area children, as he spends the entire year collecting and repairing used toys and then travels literally thousands of miles each December visiting and delivering gifts to low-income families.

When asked if he planned to accept the invitation, Stouffer replied, "How can I pass it up?" Stouffer and his wife lived in Florida many years ago and he has been to Disney World, but he said it was just after it opened. "I know a lot has changed since then," he said.

Persons who have new or used toys, other gifts, or a financial contribution to help Stouffer fulfill his annual mission are asked to contact him at 1-304-789-6743. He resides near Terra Alta, W.Va.

Senator Hafer Named To Fiscal Study Group

District One Senator John J. Hafer (Allegany/Garrett) has been appointed to the Joint Transportation and Law Enforcement Expenditure Study Group, it was recently announced.

The group is one of several formed by the Maryland General Assembly in order to study and report findings on the short and long-term fiscal needs of the state and also to consider current spending patterns and alternative priorities.

According to Senator Hafer, "This study of expenditures and revenues is very much overdue because it has been about 25 years since the legislature has reviewed the fiscal policies of the state. The members of the study groups are looking at pieces of the state's policies in an effort to provide specific information to the General Assembly and the Department of Fiscal Services so that we can realize the whole scope of Maryland's fiscal needs."

The Joint Transportation and Law Enforcement Study Group will be concentrating on funding requirements for transportation in terms of operating costs, system preservation and system enhancement. Funding issues for transportation will include level of fees, relationship of debt financing, and state and local responsibilities.

Funding requirements for law enforcement include public safety (police, administration of justice, corrections, parole, and probation) in terms of demographics and costs of alternative programs. Funding issues include state and local roles in funding and administration.

"We, as legislators, need to determine what changes and/or enhancements need to be proposed," said Hafer, adding, "Resources need to be equalized and taxes need to be fair so that the state can more efficiently provide services to the people."

All of the study groups are meeting during the summer and will be presenting their findings in the mid-fall. The findings of these study groups will enable the legislature to frame fiscal policy goals by weighing spending needs and priorities against financing options and reforms. The groups' deliberation will begin in mid-fall with public hearings for consideration and guidance prior to legislative action.

Senator Hafer is also a member of the Senate Finance Committee and the Joint Committee on Pensions, Joint Committee on Economic Development Strategy, and the Joint Committee on Energy Pricing.

Fair Activities Noted; Horse Pull Time Changed

Several activities of the Garrett County Agricultural Fair have been slated, according to Helen Glotfelty, a spokesperson from the fair board.

Persons are asked to note a change in the time for the pony/horse pull. The annual pony event will take place on Friday, August 16, beginning at 12 p.m., followed by the horse pull. Weigh-in time will begin at 11 a.m.

Other activities noted include Senior Citizens Day, which will also be held on Friday. A program for the seniors will be given after lunch at 1 p.m. in the 4-H building. There will also be a hat contest with prizes given for the prettiest, funniest, ugliest, most original, and best of show. Men and women are welcome to participate, Mrs. Glotfelty said. A short program will be given as well.

A baby crawl contest will be featured Wednesday beginning at 1 p.m. All babies who are not walking are welcome to compete in the contest. Prizes will be given to the winner in each age group, and a ribbon to each entered baby. Registration will begin at 12 p.m. More information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Glotfelty at 387-6910.

The annual pet show will be held on Wednesday at 3 p.m.

The pumpkin contest will be sponsored again this year, with the largest pumpkin by weight receiving $25 and placed on special display for the entire week. Pumpkins must be entered by Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Edwards

any recommendations to help curb unnecessary or inefficient state spending, and to generally recommend any necessary changes in the current spending plan.

The committee includes representatives from the House Appropriations Committee (of which Edwards is a member), the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee and the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee.

The second committee to which Edwards was appointed, the Joint Subcommittee on the State's Capital Projects, includes only five House members. The task of the committee members is to look at the state's entire capital projects program and decide which projects might be appropriate for other types of funding, such as bonding, and to "streamline government programs."

"As you know," stated Edwards, "over $600 million had to be cut from the 1991 state budget, so we need to look at all the state programs and determine which ones are really necessary and which ones can be cut in the future."

He noted that many programs may cost more in four or five years than they do now, and that fact has to be taken into consideration, especially, he said, "if the economy doesn't pick up soon." Some programs, he added, are mandated by the federal government so must be kept intact.

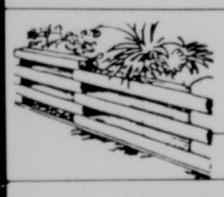
One plan that may receive favorable review, he said, was the "block grant concept," which would allow for funds to be appropriated to state agencies (such as health, education and transportation) in a lump sum, rather than as already "categorized." This, he stated, would cut some waste in programs by allowing the individual agencies to categorize, for themselves, the money appropriated to them.

"This approach might make things more efficient, and we may gain in the long run," said Edwards.

The third committee, the Special Joint Committee on Growth Management, was developed out of last year's legislative session when the Maryland Growth and Chesapeake Bay Protection Act (or the "2020" bill) was sent to summer study.

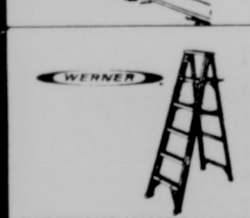
Edwards stated, "It's important to have representation from Western Maryland on this issue because of its potential impact here and in the rest of the state. There is a big push from the state to implement growth controls."

When asked about the possibility of revising the Garrett County Master Plan, Edwards responded that, as long as the plan is reviewed and updated at regular intervals, he saw no need for a complete revision. He did stress, however, that the plan needs to be "followed" during the county planning process.



Edwards said the county "needs to be ready" for any state mandates in the area of growth limits.

"I want to hear from people," said Edwards, regarding the growth, capital programs and expenditure issues. Delegate Edwards may be contacted by calling 746-5831, 895-5720, or 841-3435, or by writing to him at P.O. Box 8, Grantsville, Md., 21536, or 411 Lowe Building, Annapolis, Md., 21401.



BAKER HONORED -- Floyd R. Baker, retiring president of the Garrett County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, was honored recently at a luncheon meeting of the group. He is the founder and first president of the Council and is past chairman of the Garrett County Addictions Services Advisory Board. Baker has been recognized by Governor William Donald Schaefer for "outstanding efforts in substance abuse prevention" in May of 1990. He also received a Governor's Citation from the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission in July of 1990. Shown left to right are Jay Cross, deputy health officer for the Garrett County Health Department; Patsy I. Baker, Floyd Baker, honoree and retiring president; and Thomas E. Oakland Woman Injured In W.Va. Mishap Saturday

An Oakland woman remains listed in "stable" condition at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, according to a hospital spokesman, after she was admitted there Saturday following a one-vehicle accident.

Donna Sue Ferguson, 28, was seriously injured when the 1978 Ford she was operating rounded a curve, went out of control, rolled over a steep embankment, and struck a tree.

The accident occurred on W. Va. Route 46, near Jennings Randolph Lake, according to reports filed by the West Virginia State Police.

Elk District fire and rescue personnel responded to the 12:34 p.m. accident and transported Ferguson to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland. After being stabilized there, Ferguson was flown by Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter to Memorial in Cumberland.

No charges were filed in the accident.

Four Arrested On DWI Charges

Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack, arrested four drivers this past week and charged them driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs.

Lawrence Nicklaw, 52, no address given by police, was charged with DWI on Friday by Tpr. G. Seaman.

Michael Heaton, 49, no address given, was charged Saturday with DWI by Tfc. P.R. Brown.

Tpr. S.W. Vincent arrested Robert Martin, 22, no address given, on Saturday and charged him with DWI.

DWI charges were filed against Sean A. Sell, 20, no address given, by Tpr. Seaman following a motorcycle accident in a private drive on Marsh Hill Road Sunday.

"OOOO, MY STOMACH!" bemoans Felix Unger as his friends try to console and care for him. Rehearsals are progressing for Act IV's production of Neil Simon's hit, The Odd Couple, to be presented on the Garrett Community College stage four times next week, Aug. 7-10. The role of neat-freak Felix is being played by Ned Holloway. Other cast members include, pictured from left and moving clockwise, are: Roger Strauss as Speed, Don Sincell as Murray the cop, Branden Selfert as Roy, Bob Leatherbury as Oscar Madison, and Bob Kleinedler as Vinnie. The play is directed by Frances Acton, assisted by Bob Ulino. Set design and construction is by Ben Sincell. Advance tickets for the performances may be purchased at Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry, and Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville. Reservations are encouraged for those not purchasing advance tickets, and may be made by calling Englander's Pharmacy in Oakland at 334-9455 or the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival box office at 387-6666.

Two Nabbed In Computer Scam

A credit card/computer scam resulted in the arrest of two area men, following an extensive investigation by the Maryland State Police, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the State's Attorney's Office, the U.S. Secret Service, United Parcel Service (UPS), and Citibank Corporation, according to a spokesman from the Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack.

State police said that Eugene Kinser Jr., 22, Aurora, W.Va.; and Michael B. Flinn, 20, Oakland, were arrested and charged with theft. Further charges are pending.

Reports indicated that Kinser and Flinn had allegedly obtained credit card numbers and placed orders for computer equipment. The equipment would then be delivered to several unoccupied homes in Garrett County.

Police said that several thousands of dollars were recovered in the investigation.

Both men have been released from the Garrett County Jail after posting bond.

in the state and county. He noted that Maryland has the number one cancer rate in the nation.

"Although Garrett County is not one of the worst in the state, we still rate above many of the others," he said, adding that Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer has appointed a council, known as the Cancer Control Consortium, to research and evaluate the high rate of cancer in the state.

Archer stated that more information is needed in Garrett County about the "behavioral risk factors" of cancer, and that a recently-appointed Garrett County Health Advisory Committee will assist the department in assessing those factors and setting goals for overall health objectives for the county.

Archer also noted that tobacco is the number one cause of cancer in the county, and the focus of the county's cancer prevention campaign will be on smoking prevention and expanded cessation programs.

In a related note, Archer reported that he recently presented expert testimony regarding the health hazards of environmental tobacco smoke to the Morgantown (W.Va.) City Council. The council, he reported, then adopted a Morgantown Clean Indoor Air Ordinance at the meeting. The ordinance prohibits smoking in all enclosed public places, such as grocery stores, elevators, restrooms, public transit, retail stores, waiting areas and lobbies, meeting places, shopping malls, and 50 percent of each restaurant. The ordinance also provides for smoke-free areas in the workplace.

Education Bd. Update

John Morris, assistant superintendent of administration for the Garrett County Board of Education, presented an update of the Southern High School renovation project, stating that progress on the school project is "on schedule, and, in many areas, ahead of schedule."

He noted that school is scheduled to open September 3, with the Vocational-Agricultural and shop areas not yet completely finished but expected to be "fully utilized" by September.

Morris announced that a tour of Southern High School is scheduled for Tuesday, August 13, at 9:30 a.m., and invited the commissioners to participate.

He also thanked the commissioners for their recent decision to fund the Northern High School bleachers that were recently condemned and torn down by the education board.

Promotion Council

Diane Wolfe, executive director of the Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County Promotion Council, reported that recent tourism advertising and other promotional efforts have been "extremely successful" this year, noting that the council is receiving between 50 and 75 calls a day for tourist information.

Wolfe also announced that the Maryland Office of Tourism will be conducting a promotional tour in the area during the weekend of August 16. She invited each of the commissioners to participate by donating time at the information centers during that weekend.

In addition, Wolfe reminded everyone of the dedication ceremony for the opening of Interstate 68, to be held at Rocky Gap State Park, east of Cumberland, Saturday, August 3.

Extension Office

Alice Hevner, county director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, reported that corn crops for local farmers are "15% below production," with those farmers who planted early seeing better results than those who planted late.

She also stated that there will be "little or no second cuttings for hay crops," and that the oat crop is below average. She added, however, that Garrett County has not received drought status so far.

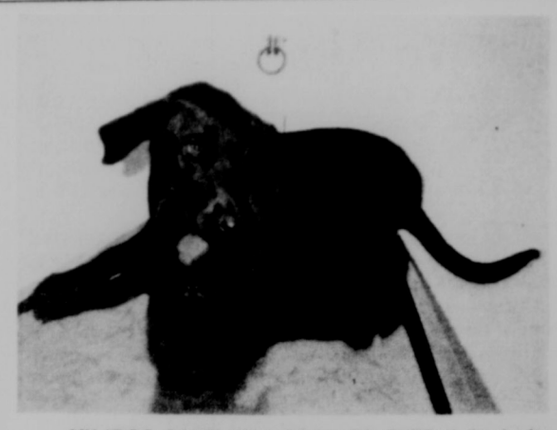
Hevner also announced that Mountain Fresh Produce tailgate market, held every Wednesday afternoon and Saturday morning at the Oakland town parking lot, has experienced "good sales." She invited the commissioners and the general public to attend the free corn roast to be held there Saturday, August 3, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Other sources from the agricultural community have indicated that, although the county as a whole does not qualify for state drought disaster aid, individual farmers may apply because the county is adjacent to Allegany County, which does qualify for the aid.

Regarding the gypsy moth suppression program, Hevner indicated that the local gypsy moth task force has been evaluating the spray program to determine if a continued spray effort is necessary.

Economic Development

Director of the Garrett County Department of Economic Development, Tom Jones, reported to the commissioners that construction of the runway expansion for the Garrett County Airport is scheduled to begin this fall, and that a pre-bid meeting will be held August 8. The bids should be received by September 3, he said.



Jones also stated that Mountain Fresh Meats, located in the Southern Garrett Industrial Park became operational last week, and 12 people have been hired for positions there. He also noted that equipment is beginning to be moved into the Garrett Optical building. That company is also starting the process of hiring.

Sanitary Commission

Garrett County Sanitary District Administrator Wendell Beitzel presented an update on the Crellin water system project, stating that the tank job has been completed and improvements to the spring are underway. He noted that $20,000 of the grant received for the tank was not utilized and was then applied to the spring project, saving the community money, he said.

The commission is currently involved in plans to install a new pump station and pressure sewer line along Broadford Road in Mtn. Lake Park so that the sewage may be moved further away from the Broadford area drinking supply. Unless this action is taken, said Beitzel, there is the threat of a health hazard existing in water supply at Broadford Lake.

Beitzel also reported that an effort is being made to locate a sewage storage facility in McHenry. The grant application, made to the Allegany Regional Commission, has been deferred from the FY1991 agenda and will be resubmitted for consideration in FY1992, he said.

MY "DOG DAYS" WILL SOON BE OVER if I'm lucky enough to find a permanent home with a caring family. This mixed Labrador retriever is a one-and-a-half year old female who may be adopted by calling the Garrett County Animal Shelter 334-3553. Last week's "Adorable Adoptable" was adopted.

DDP To Attack DWI...

The results of a state survey on the abuse of drugs and alcohol by young people which were recently released by the health department revealed a rather alarming situation for Garrett County. The survey indicated that Garrett County leads the state in the category of teenage alcohol abuse.

While we had some reservations about the way the survey was conducted, it nonetheless indicates that we indeed have a serious problem that must be addressed. Not only are many of our young people getting into trouble with alcohol, but we have many adults who are similarly addicted. Education and awareness are probably the best avenues for approaching the problem, and these are being pursued in our schools and by organizations like the Garrett County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

As we all know, one of the most dangerous, and sometimes fatal, results of alcohol abuse is when the abuser gets behind the wheel of a car. Innocent people continue to be maimed and killed on our roadways by intoxicated drivers. A brand new program that is designed to attack this particular result of alcohol abuse is now being developed by a group of local concerned citizens representing a variety of organizations and agencies.

It is called the Designated Driver Program and its goal is to make certain that someone other than the intoxicated person is responsible for driving that person home. Members of the Council mentioned above, as well as numerous restaurant and tavern owners, law enforcement officials, health department personnel, and beer distributors are working together to bring the program to fruition. They are preparing educational packets that will be distributed to all establishments that serve or sell alcoholic beverages so that the owners of those businesses will know what to do and how to handle this somewhat delicate situation.

It is in the best interest of all of these business owners to get involved and be receptive to the information being provided by this program. Not only will it help them save lives on the roadways, but it will help protect them - if an accident occurs - from being hauled into court under the new laws concerning those who dispense alcoholic beverages.

Our law enforcement personnel can't do it all. Allowing a drunk friend to drive a car is akin to getting drunk and driving yourself. In both cases, there is a life-threatening driver on the roadway.

We salute all of those responsible for spearheading the Designated Driver Program, we encourage all involved to be receptive to what the program can do, and we hope other concerned citizens will get involved in one or more programs designed to stop drunk driving.

Letters to the Editor

Note: The writer of the following letter to the county commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Commissioners:

This letter is to comment on the proposed application for a grant of funds in order for Garrett County to make a loan to Recreational Industries, Inc. This proposed application was the subject of the hearing in your chambers on July 23, 1991.

From the hearing it is my understanding that Mr. Tom Jones, director of your Economic Development Office, will be preparing an application for the grant of funds. As stated by Mr. Jones the application will contain a business plan and financial information to justify the request for the grant and for the making of a County loan to Recreational Industries, Inc.

It is my recommendation that upon preparation of the application and before approval by the County Commissioners, copies be made available for informational review by the public. Then after a sufficient time has lapsed for its review, a second hearing be held. I also recommend that the second hearing be held in the evening so working citizens may attend.

My recommendation is supported by the following:

(a) First, there was very little information available in regard to the grant and loan during the hearing of July 23, 1991.

(b) Second, I believe the citizen taxpayers have a right to the information used to justify the grant and loan.

During the hearing there were emotional conflicts between citizen taxpayers and those representing the business community. These conflicts, I believe, are prevalent throughout the County and growing. They call for an honest revelation of information in regard to the grant and loan. To do otherwise will only further divide the County. To read in the news media that Recreational Industries, Inc., is in serious financial difficulty and then within a few days read the County is going to make a million dollar loan for hiring additional employees and to build additional recreational facilities is difficult to comprehend.

If, on a financially sound basis it is possible to keep Recreational Industries solvent, then by all means it should be accomplished. In the process let there be an honest evaluation of the situation. This appears to be the crux of the matter.

Sincerely,
Brison Thomas
McHenry

To the Editor:

It has been called to my attention that Recreational Industries, Inc., the owner of Wisp Ski Area, is going bankrupt. It is strange that we have a man that has been in the Wisp Ski Area so long and he must never have read or heard of Donald Trump, but is following in his footsteps and will not stop and let go of some of his possessions. The banks are now finished with his scheme. Now the Wisp Ski Area owner wants our county commissioners to bale him out.

We the taxpayers should have a say on this matter. I for one say the taxpayers should not have to bale him out. He got himself in this mess by wanting that almighty dollar and he will have to stop operating a business he no longer can handle. Has the lake looking like a city, places where city folks want to get away from. Wonder why skiers are less in number?

Sincerely,
Bertha V. Oester
Accident

Dear Ms. Oester,

We wish to make the following corrections:

1. The Wisp is far from bankruptcy.
2. There is no evidence of a "scheme" by Mr. Heise.
3. Mr. Heise does not want the county commissioners to "bale" or bail him out, nor will the taxpayers have to do this.
4. The dollar is not "almighty" to Mr. Heise.
5. The number of skiers this past season was at an all-time high.

To the Editor:

In 1966 I went to work at West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill. I remember "Old Baldy," the barren hill behind the mill, but the mill management was already trying to eliminate pollution, and they always have been concerned about public relations. No company that I have ever worked for showed near as much concern for environmental matters and the people who lived around their business more than West Virginia Pulp and Paper.

In 1969 I quit the Paper Mill to pursue my own business in home improvements and construction. I have worked in many other businesses since 1969, and the working conditions at West Virginia Pulp and Paper have always been the cleanest of all, and the management was always concerned about their

Maryland Meeting Challenges Of New Clean Air Act Amendments

by Robert Perciasepe
Maryland Secretary of the Environment

The Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990 represented the first major revision of federal air pollution law in over a decade. The new legislation includes sweeping measures designed to reduce acid rain and protect the stratospheric ozone layer. Perhaps most importantly to Maryland, the act establishes new requirements and a timetable for bringing Maryland into full compliance with National Ambient Air Quality Standards.

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) has documented significant declines in the emission of common pollutants like particulate matter and sulfur dioxide. In 1988, Maryland enacted comprehensive regulations for the control of toxic air pollutants and we are well into their implementation.

Despite these gains, Maryland's air does not always meet federal standards for carbon monoxide, and for ground-level ozone, or smog. Ozone can cause health problems for the young, old, and people with respiratory problems. Much of what we do to implement the federal act will be focused on controlling ground level ozone. The Clean Air mandates that the Baltimore region meet the ozone standard by 2007; the Washington area by 1999.

Ozone is not emitted directly by factories or cars, though both are sources of ozone-producing compounds. Rather, it is produced on hot summer days, when volatile organic compounds and nitrous oxides react in the presence of sunlight.

Since cars are a key factor in the ozone equation, Maryland drivers will be among the first to feel the impacts of the Clean Air Act. There are three major areas where Maryland motorists will see changes.

First, Maryland's Vehicle Emissions Inspection Program will be expanded. Sometime after 1993, drivers in Frederick, Charles, Calvert, Cecil, Queen Anne's and Washington counties will be required to have their cars participating in the emissions inspection program.

Secondly, it will cost more to get an inspection waiver. Right now, an owner whose car fails the emissions test can get an inspection waiver after spending $75 on improving the car's emissions system. Under the new law the waiver fee will rise to $450 by 1997.

Finally, to further control ozone-creating pollutants, the vapor recovery nozzles familiar to D.C. motorists will soon be found on pumps in Maryland.

In addition, oil companies must develop cleaner-burning fuels, and fleet operators with 10 or more vehicles must explore the use of alternative fuels such as natural gas. MDE is already testing liquid natural gas in a number of state-owned vehicles.

These are some of the ways ozone will be controlled under the new Clean Air Act amendments.

Many other states along the heavily-urbanized eastern seaboard have problems with ozone pollution. To deal with this regional dilemma, the act created the Northeast Ozone Transport Commission. This group will study new ways to address the problems created by pollutants -- especially ozone -- being "transported" or drifting from state to state.

The commission -- which met for the second time in July -- will make recommendations to the EPA on measures to improve air quality in the region that stretches from Virginia to Maine. The group has already agreed to support region-wide introduction of "California clean cars" and cleaner gasoline.

The Maryland Department of the Environment is moving ahead to meet the challenges of the Clean Air Act. But regulation alone will not make Maryland's air the best it can be. If you are interested in learning how you can help clean the air, write me at 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, Md., 21224.

The Mind Wanders

by Sherry Frantz

During the height of the reunion season, it seems appropriate (or at least excusable) to extend beyond the joys and anxieties of those events to a more philosophical level of contemplation about them, because they invariably seem to provoke curious behavior in even the most self-assured among us.

For reasons probably too boring to decipher, I, for one, have not been a fan of the dreaded reunion -- at least not in the past. But, for the moment, they seem to be holding my attention (as a phenomenon, if nothing else), and I think they must inherently hold or promise something that fills a need in many of us.

Reunions, in various forms, offer us the opportunity to reconnect with the past. And it is in that reconnecting process that we can then garner information (however subconscious it might be) to build yet another character layer that pushes us one more step toward maturity and self-realization. (Bear with me, please. I'm really trying not to sound like a cheesy self-help book.)

Reconnecting, I think, is a vital part of the endless assessments we undertake in the course of our lives, and allow our yesterdays breathing space in our todays.

People who have fallen away from us as we go off to find ourselves, or make a career, or develop a different set of friends and acquaintances, can sometimes look almost unrecognizable to us when we re-encounter and re-acquaint ourselves with them.

That may happen because of the changes that have taken place within them, but it's probably more often the case that our experiences and thought processes over the years have changed, causing us to look at them with different eyes and a different sense of ourselves and the world.

Whether our experiences with any given person from our past were good or bad, painful or pleasant, reunions can provide a fertile atmosphere for discovering truths that had been lost to us -- one such possible truth being that we've been quite silly all those years for having held a grudge against someone who might have bruised our delicate young egos.

Or the possibility that our perceptions of 10 or 20 years ago about this or that person were, indeed, valid. Or the rare find of a possibility that something we treasured in someone never really vanished, and now that we've established our own identities, we might choose to find room for more regular connections with the owners of those treasured qualities.

As it goes with class and family reunions, it also holds true that private and individual reunions can enrich our lives. Of course, timing and the nature of one's relationship with a particular person from the past must be taken into consideration, lest we walk precariously into a hostile den of irreconcilable differences.

But the discriminating "reunioners" can make those reconnections work in positive ways, freeing themselves from limitations long past their usefulness and regenerating their spirits.

MAKING POTPOURRI
by Ann Englander

Making potpourri is a simple and satisfying way to make your summer flowers last for months. The first rule for successful potpourri is using very dry ingredients. Petals must be as crisp as dry cereal, as dampness will cause your product to mildew. With this in mind, pick your flowers and weeds on a dry sunny day. When selecting blooms, remember that color is important for an attractive finished product. Red, blue and purple flowers hold their color best, but you also will want some white and light colors for variety.

There are several methods of drying flowers, but for potpourri, air drying seems best. Spread the individual petals on newspapers, paper towels or fabric on a flat surface in a single layer. The material should be left for several days to a week until it is completely dry. To save time and space, oven drying may speed the process. Place petals in a single layer on a cookie sheet. Place in a 100° oven, leaving the door slightly ajar. Then watch carefully, as it may take only a few minutes or several hours for complete drying, depending on the thickness of the petals.

When your petals are dry and crisp, handle with care for they will crumble and crush easily. Store them in flat boxes, or in nonporous containers, such as glass jars, in a cool, dry place until ready to mix. Colors keep best if the petals are not exposed to bright light.

There are traditional recipes for making potpourri. Many old English recipes are as exact as making a cake, but for a beginner it's fun to experiment. You will need a glass bowl or crock, and several wooden spoons. A mortar and pestle to crush spices is very helpful.

In gift shops, drugstores or florist shops, you can purchase essential oils such as rose, lavender, lemon or patchouli. Orris root will make your scent last longer, but it is not necessary, and may be difficult to find. From your kitchen cupboard, you can use cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Air dried orange or lemon peel may also be used.

Place your dried petals in the glass bowl and add some kitchen spices. Orange or lemon peel may be added for a nice citrus scent. If you prefer, add one of the essential oils to the petals, but use sparingly, as you can always add more later. Twenty drops of oil is the maximum for fifteen ounces of petals. If available, add one ounce of orris root. With a wooden spoon, gently mix and stir, and then place in a large brown paper bag. Close the bag tightly and store in a dark, dry place for two weeks.

While waiting, it's fun to select a decorative container. A cut glass bowl, a beautiful piece of pottery or an attractive basket are just a few suggestions. Fill the container to the brim with your scented mix, add a perfectly dried flower head to top it off, and you'll have a fragrant decoration to beautify your home or to present as a charming gift.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

PERSONAL FLOTATION DEVICES CAN AND DO SAVE LIVES

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources wants to remind the recreational users of Maryland waters, especially boaters, of the need to wear personal flotation devices (PFDs). DNR's Boating Administration, established in 1988 to foster the protection, safe enjoyment, enhancement and balanced use of Maryland's waterways for the boating public, encourages the use of PFDs.

WHAT is a PFD? A PFD -- life jacket -- is designed to keep the wearer's head above water in a position to permit breathing. A PFD is water survival equipment.

WHO needs a PFD? Everyone who goes on or around the water, particularly boating. All those who go around water but who are unable to swim should wear a PFD. It takes only seconds for a person to drown; a PFD can prevent this. Wearing a properly fitted PFD can save a life.

HOW should a PFD be chosen? A PFD should bear the approval of the US Coast Guard and be correctly sized to fit snugly. It should be designed for the kind of water activity the wearer will be doing.

WHY are PFDs so important? More than 90 percent of deaths in boating are from drowning; 80 percent of those drowning victims were not wearing a personal flotation device. Most victims did not intend to enter the water. The ability to swim is useless if the person is unconscious. PFDs also protect against hypothermia since exposure to cold water is another major cause of death in boating accidents. Life jacket or PFD -- no matter what you call it -- IT WON'T WORK IF YOU DON'T WEAR IT!

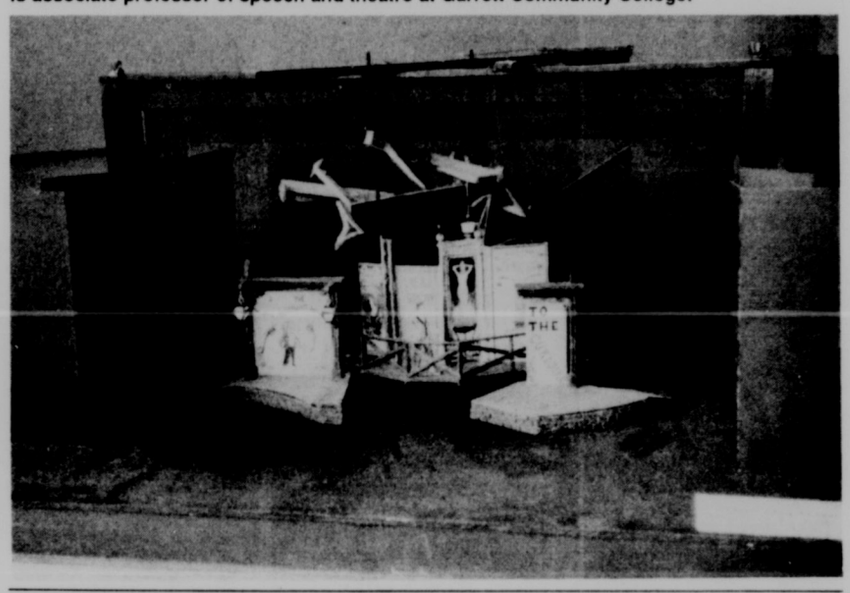
Theatre Designs By Sincell To Be On Display

The next exhibit in the Bausch and Lomb Art Gallery of Garrett Community College for the month of August will be a display of theatrical designs by Ben Sincell, associate professor of speech and theatre at the college and technical director for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. The display will include models of actual sets Sincell has designed and constructed for theatrical productions, as well as projects and renderings done for his graduate studies.

Sincell, who has been on the faculty of GCC for the past 10 years, received a master of fine arts degree in theatrical design from West Virginia University last year. During his studies in Morgantown, he designed the set for the university's production of The Crucible, and a set for The Elephant Man as a thesis project. Locally, he has designed and constructed sets for productions of the Garrett Choral Society and the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, as well as Garrett Community College productions. Most recently his mastery was seen in the set of the highly successful Man of La Mancha.

Models of these sets will be included in the display which will show the whole process of designing a set, from beginning to end.

In addition to his teaching and theatrical work, Sincell is a well known magician in this area, performing as the Magical Mime Company which now includes his three children, Daniel, a student at Southern Middle School, and Miriam and Angela, students at Dennett Road School. His wife, Beverly, is a social worker for the Garrett County Health Department.



A reception for Sincell will be held in the art galley on August 9, from 7-8 p.m., preceding that evening's performance of The Odd Couple. The public is invited.

The exhibit may be seen at the art gallery weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and evenings when there are GLAF programs scheduled in the auditorium.

THEATRICAL SET DESIGNS BY SINCELL NOW ON DISPLAY -- Currently on display at the Garrett Community College Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery are scaled down models of theatrical sets, designed and constructed by Ben Sincell. The display, which will continue through the month of August, will feature models of actual sets Sincell has created for area theatrical productions, as well as examples of sets created as graduate work projects. Shown above, is the set design for The Crucible and, below, the design for The Elephant Man. Sincell has constructed sets for local performances, the most recent example being the set of Man of La Mancha. The display will also show the process, beginning to end, of the set designs. Sincell is associate professor of speech and theatre at Garrett Community College.

Friedman

collaborating with him in performing J. S. Bach's Concerto for Two Violins in D Minor.

Friedman is currently Professor of Music at Yale University.

When asked why he returns to Garrett County every year to produce and perform the music festival, Friedman said, "Garrett County in its splendor of mountains and rustic surroundings is the most natural place for music to be played and heard."

The night of Friedman's performance is entitled "Premiere Night," partly because of Friedman's return to the performance stage, but also because an orchestral work composed by a Frostburg professor, Jon Bauman, will be premiered that evening. Further information on Bauman will appear in a forthcoming issue of The Republican.

Thursday night's concert will be preceded by a buffet dinner held at the McHenry House, Wisp Resort. Persons may attend the dinner and concert for $23.50, and should make reservations for the dinner by noon on Monday, August 19. For those who wish to attend the concert only, the ticket price is $6 for adults and $2 for children 12 and under. Reservations may be made by contacting the GLAF box office at 387-6666.

Other offerings of the Symphony at Deep Creek will include the opening show, "A Night of Classical Vignettes," on August 21, which will feature the West End Opera Trio. The three singers, Kathryn Sincell, Dan McComas, and Lenora Eve, will perform scenes from popular operas, and will move from one scene to the next by explaining each vignette to audience members.

Friday night will feature the "Parisot Prize," which is the announcement of the winner of the Aldo Parisot cello competition. Five young cellists from around the world will be competing during the festival week as master cellist Aldo Parisot judges their talents and performance. One cellist will receive the Parisot Prize of $1,000, and the runner-up will be awarded $500. The Friday night announcement and performance will be followed by a "Champion's Circle" dessert buffet held at the McHenry House. Audience members may sample exotic desserts while having the opportunity to congratulate the winner and runner-up.

"Champion's Circle" tickets will be $6 and reservations for the dessert buffet should be made by noon on Tuesday, August 20. As with other concerts, persons wishing to attend only the performance may purchase tickets at $6 for adult and $2 for children 12 and under.

Saturday night's concert will feature popular works by Handel, Tchaikovsky, Joplin, and Bizet. A chance drawing for a $2,000 recreational rowing shell will also take place Saturday. Persons may purchase chances for the shell from any GLAF member.

Each concert in the Symphony at Deep Creek series is scheduled to span approximately 90 minutes with an intermission. All concerts will be held in the air-conditioned auditorium of Garrett Community College. More detailed information on the events of the music festival will appear in forthcoming issues of The Republican.

Forest Hearings

offer recreational services being "prohibited because the state gives it away for free."

Referring to the five-year plan, Stacy added, "Promises were made but not kept."

John Forman then urged the commissioners to address the problem by suggesting that legislation be introduced on the state level "to bring the plan more into line." He also noted that a fire and safety hazard currently exist because "of all the dead and dying trees."

The report concluded by stating, "Because they are so far behind on cuts and tree gypsy moth mortality is so high, most timber sales have been salvage of dead and dying timber which by the time it is offered for sale has been reduced to 20% of its value. All this dead timber has also been the host of many other forest pests which have reached abnormal levels and are destroying timber that otherwise would have survived the gypsy moth onslaught."

Commissioner Elwood Groves responded to the suggestions by stating, "The most criminal thing is the waste and neglect that has occurred, and the gypsy moth problem should have caused an increase, not a decrease, in timber harvests." He added, "We will reap a harvest of new problems because of it."

Commissioner Brenda Butscher stated that a meeting would be set up between the commissioners and district legislators George Edwards and John Hafer to consider legislation.

Hear Concerns

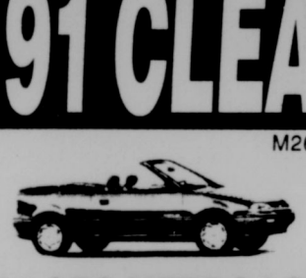
managed in the state forests, with mention of a national forest study that recreational use provides more revenue to an area than timbering.

The local forestry and logging component, however, felt that timber stands throughout the forests were being poorly managed and that stands of trees currently reveal a need for more management. (See related story on page A-1.)



Over the past year, Maxim and Hamilton have each worked with an interdisciplinary team of experts to best address concerns from the various areas of use, including wildlife, fisheries, natural heritage and recreation. They have also received comments from recently established advisory committees to both forests. Said Maxim, "We're very concerned that we have a properly and sensitively managed forest that satisfies the multiple use disciplines."

Verbal or written comments may be made concerning the work plans until August 31 by contacting Steve Hamilton at Potomac/Garrett State Forest, Rt. 3, Box 256, Deer Park, Md., 21550, (301-334-2038), or Larry Maxim at Savage River State Forest, Rt. 2, Box 63-A, Grantsville, Md., 21536, (301-895-5759).

Family Practitioner Joins Staff At The Deep Creek Medical Center

A family practitioner, formerly of Ellicott City, has joined the staff of the Deep Creek Medical Center, a division of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Brad Cooper, M.D., joined the staff of the Medical Center in mid-July. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practitioners, a diplomat for the National Board of Medical Examiners, and a fellow in the American Academy of Family Physicians, and has been a member of Med/Chi of Maryland since 1980.

Prior to moving to Garrett County, Dr. Cooper was an instructor at the University of Maryland School of Medicine in 1979. He then set up a private practice in Ellicott City in 1980 to the present.

Dr. Cooper graduated from Indiana University in 1972 and the College of Medicine and Dentistry in New Jersey in 1976. He was a resident in family practice from 1976-79 at the University of Maryland Hospital.

His interests include family activities, woodworking, skiing, fishing, and vocal music. He and his wife, Irene, are the parents of four children, Amy, Julie, Rachel, and Joshua.

Dr. Cooper stated, "Having grown up in a rural, mountainous area in the northeast, I feel that moving to Garrett County is a little like 'coming home.' In my short time here, I've already been made to feel 'at home' by the many people I've met. With such natural beauty and such warm, friendly people, Garrett County is a truly unique place. My family and I are looking forward to calling it 'home'."

Also recently joining the Medical Center is Denise Friend, office manager, who has been with Garrett County Memorial Hospital since December of 1984. While at the Oakland hospital, she worked in the admitting office.

Ms. Friend transferred to the Deep Creek Medical Center in June of 1990 as a medical office assistant. She became office manager in May of 1991.

She stated, "Becoming office manager has been challenging, but also gives me a great sense of pride seeing a much-needed medical facility grow and benefit both the local people as well as the tourists."

Other members of the staff include Dr. John Turski III, D.O. and medical office assistants, Pamela Buckel, Ellinor Hamilton, Carol Lipscomb, and Karen Wolf.

While Dr. Turski was introduced to the public via news articles last year, other members of the staff are vitally important and are featured here.

Pamela Saulpaw Buckel, medical office assistant, attended Garrett Community College for the certified nursing assistant program. She also took phlebotomy training at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital laboratory. She plans to take more college courses pertaining to the medical field. A native of Silver Spring, she was reared in Garrett County. She now resides in Bittinger with her husband, Randy, and her 11-month-old son, Neil.

Ellinor Hamilton, medical office assistant, has been a Garrett County resident for 16 years and is a certified nursing assistant. She completed pre-nursing courses at Garrett Community College and plans to enter Allegany County Community College's nursing (AA/RN) program this fall. She was previously educated at Michigan State University. Hamilton is an emergency medical technician with the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and taught prepared childbirth classes at the Garrett County Health Department from 1981-90.

Ms. Hamilton enjoys competitive distance running and marathon running. She is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident. She and her husband, Steve, are the parents of three children, Valerie, Jonathan, and Avery.

Carol Lipscomb, medical office assistant, attended Allegany Community College for the registered phlebotomy technician program. She also attended a two-year certified medical assistant training program at Preston County Vocational Center in West Virginia.

Prior to joining the staff at Deep Creek Medical Center, she was employed at Garrett County Memorial Hospital as a nursing assistant and unit secretary in the emergency room. Ms. Lipscomb resides in Horse Shoe Run, W.Va.

Karen Wolf, medical office assistant, was born and reared in southern Garrett County. A 1982 graduate of Southern High School, she took pre-nursing courses at Garrett Community College and just complete her first year of nursing school at Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W.Va.

Ms. Wolf hopes to graduate with an A.S. degree in nursing in May of 1992. She is currently an EMT-A volunteer with the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

WM Bancorp Re-Organizes, Names Chairman

In a special meeting today, the board of directors of WM Bancorp, a multi-bank holding company headquartered in Cumberland, adopted resolutions changing the organizational structure of the corporation. Among the actions was the creation of a new position: president and chief executive officer of WM Bancorp. J. Glenn Beall Jr., former U.S. senator for Maryland, pictured above, was named to that position.

According to a WM Bancorp spokesman, the changes were intended to formalize reporting lines and authorities to permit the holding company to realize the synergies available through continued integration of its three banking subsidiaries: Garrett National Bank of Oakland, Liberty Bank of Cumberland, and the National Bank of Keyser, W.Va.

Chairman Beall, who will have overall executive responsibility for the corporation and its subsidiaries, said, "The changes announced today are further steps in the process we began almost two years ago as part of our strategic plan. At that time, we determined to strengthen the executive and policy-making functions in the holding company to improve not only its performance, but also the performance and competitive strength of our member banks."

John J. McMullen Jr., chairman of Liberty Bank, the largest of the subsidiaries, added, "We expect some further integration of the three banks, but they'll continue their separate operations and maintain their identities in the present markets. We continue to believe that local management, local decision-making, and strong market identification give them a significant competitive advantage."

Milford Beckman, John A. Hercher, and Lincoln H. Wilkins, the respective presidents of GNB, Liberty, and National, will retain those positions in the new structure.

James H. Swadley Jr., chairman of the National Bank of Keyser, said, "We've set some ambitious goals for our corporation and we believe the changes we made today will help us reach them."

WM Bancorp reported total assets of $392,488,000 on June 30, 1991. Its three banks operate a total of 24 offices in Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland, and Mineral County, W.Va.

Central Garrett Win Bi-State League Title

Central Garrett, who finished second in the regular standings of the Bi-State Pony League, won a spot in the league championship series by edging Grantsville Friday evening, 9-8, at Northern High School and then whipped Ellerslie twice in the title series to capture the league championship. Central came from behind in both games against Ellerslie, winning the first game 9-6 and the second, 5-4. Central finished with an overall mark of 15-4.

Grantsville took an 8-7 lead in Friday's contest when Allen Sebold smacked a two-run double in the sixth inning. However, Central Frank Friend answered with a two-run single in the bottom of the inning to conclude the scoring.

Grantsville nearly pulled it out in the final inning when Mike Yoder and Bob Fritts singled and Danny Butler walked to load the bases, but winning pitcher Derek Mason, who struck out the first two batters, ended the game when he caught an infield pop-up.

Chris Wright led Central Garrett's hitting effort, as he recorded a triple and two singles. Jeremy Brenneman and Mason each had a double and a single. Pacing Grantsville's offense were Sebold, who doubled twice, and Paul Edwards and Fritts, who each finished with a double and a single.

Grantsville concluded its season with an 11-6 mark.

In the first game against Ellerslie, it was Billy Younkin's grand slam in the sixth inning that brought Central back from a 6-2 deficit.

Central took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first, but Ellerslie came back for four scores in the bottom of that inning and then added single runs in the second and third to make it 6-2.

Central opened the sixth inning with back-to-back singles by Brenneman, Wright, and Rob Speicher to set the stage for Younkin's grand slam, which tied the score. Central added two more runs in that inning and an insurance score in the seventh.

Younkin also had a single, while Wright singled three times and Speicher, Brenneman, and Mason each singled twice. Terry DeHaven led Ellerslie with two singles and Cheyenne Hartman tripled.

Central Garrett trailed 2-0 in yesterday's championship game before scoring one run in the bottom of the second and four more in the bottom of the fifth to take the lead for good.

Brenneman and Wright singled to lead off the fifth and Rob Speicher followed with a two-run double. Younkin then walked and Mason cracked a single that scored Speicher and Younkin, making the score 5-2.

Ellerslie came back to score two runs in the sixth, but Mason, who went the distance on the mound, held on for the win.

Speicher finished with a double and a single, while Brenneman recorded two singles and Chris Elliott hit a double. Jim Loar singled and doubled, and Jeremy Kennell and Jim Gobel each singled twice for Ellerslie.

LOTS OF ACTION was evident in the final regular season game between Central Garrett and Grantsville in the Bi-State Pony League. In the above shot, Grantsville base runner Ryan Folk is safe at second, as the throw to Central Garrett infielder Tim Sines, #9, is high and wide. Also pictured are Central's Derek Mason, right, and Bill Younkin, #1. Central won the game, 9-8, and advanced to the championship playoffs, where they defeated Ellerslie in two straight contests to claim the league title. Photo by Craig Speicher.

The Best of the West Triathlon will begin at 9 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 24, at Broadford Park, with the adult triathlon (Tri-Fed sanctioned) featuring a .4-mile swim, 16-mile bike, and 4-mile run. Some 325 racers are expected to participate.

For the younger group, the Best of the West Youth Triathlon (Tri-Fed sanctioned) will be held Sunday, August 25, at 9 a.m., and will be open to children age 7-10 and age 10-14. For the 10-14 year olds, the race will consist of a 120-yard swim, two-mile bike, and a ½-mile run. These races are designed to introduce children to the enjoyment and challenge of a multi-discipline event.

A new event has been added to this year's schedule of events. For the first time the Mid-Atlantic Mountain Bike Championships (NORBA sanctioned) will be added to the weekend of competition. Mountain bike racers from all over the East will compete on the trails of Marsh Mountain, at the Wisp Ski Resort. The racing is limited to 500 entrants with prize money of over $1,000 to be awarded. Competition will begin around noon on Sunday, Aug. 25.

Spectators are welcome to attend these events. More than 1,000 racers and many more spectators are expected for the three competitions. These events are being sponsored by the Garrett Sports League, the Wisp Resort Hotel, and the Greater Oakland Business Association, and other local businesses.

Little League Tourney Won By Oakland Team

The Oakland Little League sponsored its first 11- and 12-year-old All-Star Tournament July 20-28 and one of the Oakland teams came away as the champion, with the other Oakland team finishing runner-up. Besides the Oakland Americans and Oakland Nationals, participating were Tri-Towns, Grantsville, Central Garrett, Georges Creek, and Kitzmiller-Elk Garden.

The double-elimination competition opened July 20 with the Oakland Americans rolling over Kitzmiller-Elk Garden, 17-2. Chad Warnick and Mike Welch each recorded three hits for Oakland, as Shawn Durst recorded a one-hitter on the mound.

The second game that day saw Tri-Towns whip Central Garrett, 15-6, behind a strong pitching effort by Mike Miller. Josh Nash, Chance Twyman, and Miller each finished with two hits, with one of Miller's being a home run.

Grantsville topped Georges Creek in the third Saturday contest by winning in the final inning, 7-3. Starting pitcher Joey Layman aided his own cause with three hits, as did Dwayne Holliday and Mike O'Donnell.

Central Garrett eliminated Kitzmiller-Elk Garden on Sunday by winning 20-5. Zack Leverenz earned the win on the mound and contributed four hits, while teammate Shawn Savage recorded three hits. Eric Durr had two hits for the losing team.

After rainouts on Monday and Tuesday, play resumed Wednesday, with the Oakland Americans blanking Tri-Towns, 2-0, behind an outstanding pitching performance by Joel Uphold. He allowed just one hit, a single by Josh Nash, and struck out 12. Uphold and Mike Welch scored Oakland's runs.

The Oakland Nationals topped Grantsville in the second game, 12-5. Winning pitcher Jamie Bernard homered and doubled, while Joey DiSimone and Mike Bittinger each contributed two hits. Billy Speicher rapped two homers and tossed three strong innings in relief for Grantsville. Joey Fullerton and Adam Bach also had two hits each for Grantsville.

Central Garrett used a 10-hit attack to knock Grantsville out of the tournament on Thursday with an 11-5 win. Andy Brenneman was four-for-four on the day and had two homers, while Scott Sisler and E.J. Scofield each hit twice for the winners. Grantsville finished with five hits, as Joey Layman took the loss on the mound.

Thursday's nightcap featured a come-from-behind, 9-8 win by Tri-Towns over Georges Creek. Tri-Towns was down 8-7 after five and one-half innings, but Tri-Towns scored twice in the bottom of that frame to win. James Guthrie, pitching in relief of Mike Miller, was credited with the win. Joey Langham and losing pitcher David DeShong each had three hits for Georges Creek.

The unbeaten host teams from Oakland squared off in Friday's first game, in which the Nationals pounded out 14 hits and overwhelmed the Americans, 17-6. Steve Goralski led the winners with three hits, while winning pitcher Joey DiSimone, Howard Crosco, and Timmy Upton each finished with two. Bizzy Tasker, Mike Welch, and Shawn Strawser had three hits apiece for the Americans.

Patrick Cowan smacked three homers and Josh Nash went four-for-four in the second Friday game to lead Tri-Towns to an easy 18-5 win over Central Garrett. Central was led by Scott Sisler who homered and Zack Leverenz with two hits.

In Saturday's semi-final action, Joel Uphold again led the Oakland Americans offensively and defensively, as he smacked two home runs and scattered seven hits to top Tri-Towns, 7-5. Mike Welch homered and singled and Noel Smith had two hits for Oakland. Patrick Cowan had two hits for Tri-Towns.

Garrett County Loses In Finals Of American Legion Playoffs

The Garrett County Junior American Legion Baseball team worked its way into the Mountain District finals by defeating Fort Cumberland Post 13 last Thursday in Cumberland, but the season for the local team was ended this week in the district finals by Farrady Post 24 of Frostburg. Farrady edged Garrett, 8-7, in the opening game of the final series on Saturday and then wrapped up the league title with a 6-0 win on Tuesday. Both games were played at Frostburg State University.

Ryan Harman paced Garrett's offensive effort in the win over Fort Cumberland last Thursday, as he recorded three hits, including a two-run single in the eighth inning. Garrett finished with 14 hits overall.

Brian Free gave Garrett a strong performance on the mound, as he tossed eight innings, gave up nine hits, and three earned runs. He walked four and struck out two.

Garrett scored two runs in the second inning and a single run in the third, after which there was no more scoring by either team until Cumberland recorded one run in the top of the eighth. Then Garrett responded in the bottom of that inning with four runs behind a pinch double by Randall Ours and a pinch single by Chad Cooper. Cooper's single scored one run, Harman had a two-run single, and Charlie Plaugher hit an RBI groundout to give Garrett a 7-1 lead.

Cumberland came back for three runs in the ninth and had the bases loaded with just one out, but Garrett ended the game with a double play.

Brian Snurr led off the inning by reaching first on Garrett's only error in the game. John Natolly and Todd Thomas followed with singles to score one run. Dan Matlick then walked and Richie Baldwin took over for Free on the mound to record a strikeout.

Baldwin then fired a wild pitch that allowed Natolly to score. Jake Sawyers then walked to re-load the bases and George Kelly was then hit by a pitch to make the score 7-4. Then Dave Phillips hit into a double play to end the game.

Fort Cumberland also had the bases loaded in the fourth inning, but Free's pitch to Snurr was also hit into a 5-2-3 double play to end that threat. Cumberland left a total of eight runners stranded.

Sawyers, who went the distance for Fort Cumberland, struck out eight and walked four.

Harman led Garrett with three singles, Baldwin had a double and a single, Kevin Green and Chad Sines each singled twice, Free smacked a triple, and Shane Skipper added an RBI single. Kelly, Thomas, and Dan Matlick each doubled and singled for Cumberland.

Garrett took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Farrady Post on Saturday, but that lead lasted only until the bottom of that frame when the local team knotted the score at 2-2. Frostburg made it 3-2 in the second and 5-2 in the third before Garrett came back with five runs in the top of the fourth to take a 7-5 lead. Frostburg scored its two runs in the third inning on five straight bunts.

Britten Martin and Wes Alt led off Garrett's five-run fourth with walks and, after two strikeouts, Harman singled home one run and Green was intentionally walked to load the bases. Then Plaugher cleared the bases with a three-run triple. Baldwin recorded the fifth run of the inning when he singled home Plaugher.

Frostburg tied the score in the fifth when Bryan Lewis was hit by a pitch, Jon Winebrenner followed with a bunt single, Jason Cutter singled to load the bases, and Tom Shaffer and Rick Burley followed with sacrifice flies.

A single by Winebrenner with two outs in the sixth inning sent home Rick Duckworth with what was to be the winning run.

Baldwin finished with three singles for Garrett, Wes Alt doubled and singled, and Plaugher had a triple and a single for three RBI. Duckworth and Jason Cutter each singled three times for the winners, while Winebrenner and Shannon McKenzie each singled twice and Bryan Lewis tripled and singled.

Cutter went the distance for the win on the mound in allowing nine hits, striking out 12, and walking eight. Harman also tossed all nine innings and allowed 14 hits, but only five earned runs. He struck out three and walked five.

It was lefthander Rick Burley who spearheaded Farrady's win in the deciding game Tuesday evening, as he went the distance and finished with a three-hit shutout. Three singles were all that he allowed and only one Garrett base runner made it as far as second base. He walked four batters and struck out 10, including five of the final six.

Burley's opponent on the mound, Brian Free, also turned in a strong performance as he gave up only two unearned runs in eight innings of work. The game remained scoreless until the fifth inning when Farrady took advantage of an error and a wild pitch. The first run was scored on a single by Shannon McKenzie, Scott DeHaven came home on an overthrow by the catcher to the pitcher, and McKenzie scored on a wild pitch to make it 3-0.

The Frostburg players upped the score to 5-0 in the sixth inning as Jon Winebrenner reached on an error, went to third on a double by Kennell, and scored on a squeeze bunt by Jason Cutter. Then Kennell came home on a single by DeHaven.

The final run of the day was scored in the eighth when Winebrenner walked, went to third on a steal and errant throw, and came home on a sacrifice fly by Kennell.

Garrett County attempted to rally in the top of the eighth when Baldwin singled and Shane Skipper and Ryan Harman both walked to load the bases with one out. But Burley recorded a strike out and Charlie Plaugher's grounder was grabbed by DeHaven, who made the force out at second to end the threat.

All three of Garrett's hits were recorded by Baldwin.

Farrady, whose record is now 18-2, will meet Francis Scott Key in the state tournament this Friday evening at Frederick.

A wrap-up on the season and comments from Garrett County coach Ed Wildesen will appear in next week's issue of The Republican.

Oakland Oaks End Season On A Losing Note

The 1991 Pen-Mar League season is now history for the Oakland Oaks, who dropped their final five games of the regular season this past week and conclude at 11-13. Oakland dropped all three games in a triple-header on Saturday to host Clarksburg, 5-3, 7-4, and 10-3, and was then swept by visiting Tri-Towns Sunday afternoon, 7-4 and 11-8, at Garrett Community College.

The Oaks managed just five hits off Jon Kuykendall in the first game against Clarksburg. Three of those were doubles by Lawrence Nesselrodt, D.G. Largent, and Dave Shotwell. Norman Junkins homered and tripled, Ray Davis tripled and doubled, and J.B. Fornash and Paul McCallister each singled twice for Clarksburg.

Fornash smacked a triple, double, and single in the second game to support winning pitcher Tony Lehosit, who went the distance. Ricky Paul tripled and doubled and Bill Reep and Davis each doubled and singled for the winners.

Dean Marsico stroked a double and a single, while Dwayne Woodring singled twice for Oakland.

Oakland took a 3-0 lead in the third game, but Clarksburg came back for four runs in the bottom of the fourth and six more in the fifth to win easily.

Cajetan Stepanic singled, walked twice, and scored two runs for Oakland.

In Sunday's opener against Tri-Towns, Oakland rallied from a 3-0 deficit to take a 4-3 lead in the bottom of the sixth behind a solo homer by Woodring and a three-run blast by Largent. However, Tri-Towns knotted the score at 4-4 in the seventh when Don Raines Sr. singled home Ron O'Reilly. Then in the ninth, Don Raines Jr. smacked a solo homer to spark a three-run inning for the win.

Phil Cook singled and doubled and O'Reilly finished with two singles for Tri-Towns, while Nesselrodt and Shotwell each singled twice for Oakland.

Raines Jr. hit two doubles and a single and scored four times in the nightcap. Cook added a homer and a single, Chris Miller and Chris Wilson each doubled and singled, and O'Reilly had two singles for the winners.

Oakland's hitting was led by Woodring, who homered, doubled, and singled, and Nesselrodt, who finished with three singles.

The wins upped Tri-Towns to 14-7.

Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Week Proclaimed

Maryland State Police have designated August 4 through 10, 1991, as Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Week in Maryland. The annual observance is intended to heighten public awareness about vehicle theft and ways of preventing vehicle thefts from occurring.

"During 1990, police in Maryland investigated more than 30,000 motor vehicle thefts resulting in property losses of more than $100 million dollars," said Trooper First Class Jerry Skrzypiec (Skrip-ik), of the Crime Prevention Unit. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, TFC Skrzypiec said the 1990 vehicle theft figures represent an increase over 1989.

"A vehicle is stolen approximately every 20 minutes," TFC Skrzypiec stated. "The best way to avoid vehicle theft is through prevention," added TFC Skrzypiec. According to the Uniform Crime Report prepared by the Maryland State Police Central Records Division, there were 33,892 motor vehicle thefts in Maryland during 1990, a 9 percent increase over the 31,163 motor vehicle thefts in 1989.

Studies have shown that August is the month when most vehicle thefts occur. The majority of motor vehicle thefts occur over the weekend between the hours of 4 p.m. and 1 a.m.

The Maryland State Police Vehicle Theft Prevention Unit has identified several domestic and foreign cars as being the most popular among auto thieves including the Nissan 300ZX and Nissan Maxima. The Camry, Celica and Supra models of Toyota are also among the favorites, as well as the Ford Mustang and Oldsmobile Cutlass models. Various domestic and foreign model vans and 4x4 trucks are also stolen frequently.

The Maryland State Police Vehicle Theft Prevention Unit offers the following vehicle theft prevention tips: always remove keys from the ignition and lock all doors including hatchback; shut all windows tightly; never leave vehicles running and unattended; don't conceal a spare key, thieves know all the hiding places; don't disconnect the car buzzer, it warns of keys left in the ignition; avoid leaving keys with garage or lot attendant; park in well lit and well traveled areas; turn wheels sharply left or right to make it harder for a thief to tow your vehicle; carry your driver's license and registration in your wallet, not in your glovebox; replace standard lock buttons with tapered ones; don't leave your car unattended in public places for long periods of time; never tell parking lot attendants where you are going or how long you will be gone; if you must leave a car parked for a long period of time, remove the rotor from the distributor and lock it in the trunk; install anti-theft devices; and identify personal property and vehicle accessories in your vehicle using a Maryland driver's license number.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Groundbreaking For FSU's Arts Center Saturday

Groundbreaking for the new Performing Arts Center at Frostburg State University is set for 10 a.m. this Saturday, August 3, at the building site adjacent to Pullen Hall, university officials have announced. Governor William Donald Schaefer is tentatively scheduled to participate in the ceremony.

Also speaking at the celebration will be FSU Interim President Dr. Harold Delaney, President-designate Dr. Catherine R. Gira, Vice President of Administrative Services Richard Metz, Dean of the School of Arts and Humanities Dr. Philip Allen, and Department of General Services Secretary W. Martin Walsh.

At a budgeted cost of $17.8 million, it is the largest capital project funded in fiscal year 1991.

The 72,000-square-foot building will serve the academic and cultural programs of FSU and the Western Maryland area. When construction is completed in about two and one-half years, the multi-functional center will house three theatre spaces: a 450-seat recital hall, 300-seat drama theatre, and 200-seat studio lab theatre, all built and equipped to state-of-the-art specifications. The Theatres will be serviced by a curved lobby with polished granite floors, tinted windows, and fabric-covered walls. The building will also provide the departments of music and communication and theatre arts (CMAT) with complete office, rehearsal and storage areas as well as improved facilities for the university's growing major in mass communication.

Dr. Philip Allen, dean of the School of Arts and Humanities, said, "In this new center, our programs will realize both an expansion in size and an enrichment in their academic, technical and presentational quality. The University will be in a position to link together . . . initiatives in the ongoing cultural and artistic renaissance of our region, from Rocky Gap and Cumberland to Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake."

employees and their wellbeing, more than any company I have ever worked for.

I feel the newspapers have a lot of emotions stirred up in this environmentally conscious world, and are riding the issues that are emotional to people just for the sake of selling more papers. I and quite a few other people (unrelated to the paper mill) feel that it's time to give credit where credit is due. I feel that Westvaco has spent more to clean up the Potomac River than all the companies along the river put together.

Every time Westvaco makes a statement in the paper, it seems that they are tooting their own horn and it's just propaganda. I feel they need some others to say "thank you" for cleaning up the river that was so polluted, "thank you" for cleaning up the smoke that kept "Old Baldy" barren all these years, "thank you" for being first with donations to charities, and for the sewerage treatment help you gave Westernport, and "thank you" for all the people who still have jobs after other companies have been run out of the area because of Maryland's stringent environmental regulations. "Thank you," Westvaco, for hanging in there and I'm sure there are thousands of others who feel the same as I do about you, and the jobs that mean so much to the economical wellbeing of our area.

People, do you remember Pittsburgh Plate and Glass? Kelly Springfield? Celanese Corporation? Maybe our children will always know of the best. West Virginia Pulp and Paper!

Sincerely,

"I SKIMPED A LITTLE ON THE FOUNDATION, BUT NO ONE'LL EVER KNOW IT."

To the Editor:

This is a follow-up on my letter I wrote to you about our little dog.

I just want to thank you for running my letter in your paper last week and to thank everyone who took the time to watch for him and the calls I got when they thought they'd seen him. I went all over the country looking for him. Finally on Wed., July 24, some good friends called me early and said a little dog had showed up on their porch all wet and muddy. Thanks to Mr. Fred Teets and his wife who saw my story in the paper, we have our "lover boy" back. It seemed like everywhere I went the dog had just been there and left. I think he was trying to get back home. He sure was happy to get back.

If you could have seen the look on the child's face when she woke up that morning and realized her dog was back. It was worth a million dollars.

The other two children joined in the happy reunion and that poor dog got so confused at all the attention he got all day.

Aside from being all dirty, wet, and cold, he had a sore on his neck and one on his leg the dog is fine. He's lost a lot of weight, but with all the food the kids are stuffing him with, he'll be okay soon.

So again, thank you, all who cared about a little dog and child getting together again. This time it was a happy ending. After a week and a day we thought he was gone for good.

To the Editor:

A vacation at Deep Creek Lake and visits to Oakland were my greatest yearly adventures as a young boy. One of my most-anticipated pleasures was visiting "Uncle Bill."

Although Bill Naylor was not really related to us, he managed to make me and my sisters feel special every time we saw him. Vacationing once a year for about 15 years in the 1950s and early 1960s, we could hardly wait to unpack before asking, "When can we go see Uncle Bill?"

We'd go to my grandmother's home on Second Street, gather the cardboard egg cartons she'd saved in her basement, and walk along "lumpy" brick sidewalks with her to Uncle Bill's grocery market. When we got to his meat counter, Uncle Bill came out, wiping his hands on his apron, and greeted us like long-lost buddies -- he'd firmly smother my hand as he shook it and he bear-hugged my three sisters. He asked about the past year in school and other activities and he always listened and encouraged, often sharing an Orange Crush. He'd ask how many egg cartons we brought and he'd give us a half-cent for each, rounding up to an even penny if there was an odd number. Before we left, he'd march us up front, introduce us like family to everyone in the store, and send us on our way with a nickel pack of chewing gum.

Sometimes, Uncle Bill and his wife, Lois, and their son, Billy, would come out to visit us at my granddad's cabin on Deep Creek Lake. While the grown-ups sat around and visited, Billy, my sisters and I played. We learned that Billy, a few years older than us, was born a mongoloid and would never develop mentally as we had. Bill and Lois had kept him at home and were raising him lovingly.

I had lost touch with Uncle Bill and only recently heard of his death this summer. Bill meant so much to us. His life was an example of kindness, humility and gentlemanly strength. He is worth remembering and emulating.

Sincerely,
Robert A. Hansen

GINGER GLAZED CHICKEN CUTLETS

Makes 6 Servings

- 6 skinless and boneless chicken breast halves, lightly pounded
- 3 cups white grape juice
- ¼ cup fresh lemon juice

That special "zing" is in the air, and there is a spring to your step — must be summer! Celebrate this euphoric mood with a meal in the out-of-doors. Whether on a patio in a suburban back yard or a balcony in the city, eating out-of-doors gives a special feel to any meal. It lends a special aesthetic to the food prepared. The meal becomes an adventure in taste, allowing you to please your family in a very personal way.

This celebration begins in the kitchen, the most important room in the house. Usually the hub of any activity, kitchens also serve as way stations between the outside and inside world, between garden and table.

The recipes featured are specially designed to involve all members of the family in recipe preparation, and celebrate the bounty of the season. Careful chopping and ladling jelly are tasks that can be assigned to smaller hands.

Start your picnic with Cantaloupe and White Grape Soup. The lush taste of cantaloupe is highlighted and refined with the addition of Welch's white grape juice, creating a light taste.

The picnic unfolds with two distinctive cold salads, each with complementing taste and texture. Warm Sweet Potato and Bacon Salad is a tasty riot of color. The delicate taste of this salad is derived from the dressing which uses white grape juice, oil, vinegar and dijon mustard. Green Slaw is a warm weather favorite. This one contains some special twists– Welch's purple grape juice, golden raisins and caraway seed. These ingredients lift the taste of the slaw and create a refreshing flavor.

Grilling has become an American pastime. It is the perfect way to celebrate the out of doors and evoke the singular taste of the moment. Ginger Glazed Chicken Cutlets were created to capture this feeling. Boneless chicken breasts are marinated with white grape juice, lemon juice, ginger and garlic. They are then grilled and glazed with the remaining marinade. White grape juice and ginger add a hint of sweetness to the chicken that is the perfect balance to the smoky flavor of the grill.

Dessert. Always a grand finale to a meal and sometimes a reward for good behavior, dessert is perhaps the most fanciful and fun part of the meal. Minted Grape Ice is a refreshing and colorful dessert. The natural goodness of Welch's purple grape juice is sure to please the palates of both young and old. Peanut Butter and Jelly Swirl Bundt Cake completes the dessert offering. These two tastes combine to make fresh memories, completed with a special Welch's grape jelly swirl!

All of these wonderful foods should be served in bright vessels that highlight the leisurely feel of the meal. Carry this theme throughout the table decorations. Walks through the surrounding woods and gardens can yield flowers and greenery for table decoration. Children can accomplish this job.

Patio picnics are a terrific way to gather friends and family together. Embark upon a joint effort that will yield tasty food, laughter and pleasure for all.

CANTALOUPE and WHITE GRAPE SOUP

Makes About 6 Cups

- 6 cups coarsely chopped ripe cantaloupe
- 1½ cups white grape juice
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon zest

Put cantaloupe, grape juice, lemon juice and lemon zest into food processor or blender in one or two batches and process until melon is puréed. Pour into bowl, cover and refrigerate until very well chilled, at least one hour.

MINTED GRAPE ICE

Makes 6 Servings

- 2½ cups Welch's purple grape juice
- 1 cup ice cold water
- ⅓ cup light corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint

Combine grape juice, water, corn syrup and lemon juice in large bowl. Pour into canister of ice cream maker and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Add mint to ice cream when grape ice reaches slush stage. Continue to process until firm.

PEANUT BUTTER and JELLY SWIRL BUNDT CAKE

- 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 stick (½ cup) unsalted butter, at room temperature
- 2 cups sugar
- ¾ cup chunky-style peanut butter
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 3 large eggs
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- ½ cup grape jelly

Preheat oven to 350°F. Place baking rack in bottom third of oven. Whisk together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; set aside. In large bowl of an electric mixer, beat butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add peanut butter and vanilla, beating until well combined. Add eggs, one at a time, beating until incorporated. Beat in sour cream. Reduce mixer to lowest speed and gradually add flour mixture, mixing until just blended.

Spoon half of the batter (about 3 cups) into a greased 12-cup Bundt pan. Dollop 3 tablespoons of the jelly over batter avoiding edges of pan. Partially stir jelly into batter using a skewer or thin bladed knife. Spoon remaining batter into pan and dollop and swirl remaining jelly into batter.

Bake for 1 hour or until a wooden pick inserted into center comes out clean. Let cake cool in pan for 10 minutes, then invert onto wire rack. Serve warm or at room temperature.

- 4 cups (32 oz.) purple or white grape juice
- 4½ cups (36 oz.) ginger ale

This has been a productive day, one full of purpose. It is mid-afternoon. The lawn rivals any in the neighborhood. The car shines, as do the floors. Groceries are in the cupboard and most of the errands have been done. Next on the list is . . .

Wait, let's slow down a bit . . .

Come sit in this sunny corner and catch your breath. While you are resting here at the desk, why not look at God's list—the Bible. Though our goals for today are important, the knowledge of God's standards for your life is essential. The Bible will help you to establish priorities for your life on earth while preparing you for eternal life with our Heavenly Father.

Worship God in His house each week, and pray to Him each day concerning His plan for you. God will help you to keep your list in order. Trust Him.

WE ARE STILL STUDYING PHARMACY

When a pharmacist graduates from his College of Pharmacy he must pass a state examination to prove his knowledge, so that he can safely be trusted to compound and dispense drugs and prescriptions. At that time he is an expert on the storage, uses, safe dosage and the incompatibilities of every medicine.

The next day, an entirely new drug discovery may be released. To keep up to date with these frequent new products we carefully read our drug journals, medical publications and pharmaceutical supplier's literature. Often a physician will phone us to find out if we have a new product in our prescription laboratory. The odds are we do, or we can get it the same day.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

EVERYTHING BUT JOY
August 4, 1991

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 8.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 119:97-104.

Whenever God speaks to us and we are willing to hear him (which is a big "whenever"), there are two logical reactions to what he communicates to us.

Our first reaction-- that is, if we have really listened to what he says--is usually one of feeling a sense of guilt at the most or humility at the least. Take all the classic confrontations in the Bible and you will see this illustrated again and again: Moses at the burning bush, Isaiah in the temple, Jeremiah and Ezekiel when called to be prophets, Mary at the annunciation, Paul on the Damascus road. In God's presence all of them are struck humble with the realization of the tremendous gap between themselves and the Lord.

There are numerous occasions in the Bible when the whole nation of Israel reacts in this same manner. One of these is the great assembly in Jerusalem after the temple walls have been completed. Nehemiah is implored to read to them the law. Apparently the law had been much neglected while they were in their Babylonian captivity. Now they want to get back to God's law, so Nehemiah reads it in the original Hebrew while others translate the Hebrew into the Aramaic language which the people had learned from their captors in Babylon.

When they hear the law and realize what God expects of them and when they consider that they have not been living up to his expectations, they are mortified, so that Nehemiah has to say to them, "do not mourn or weep." This does not mean that Nehemiah does not want them to realize their need for national repentance. But Nehemiah knows that the experience of God's revelation does not end in the grief of repentance. That is just the first step.

THE FIRST STEP

Christians have often done well in learning this first step and Christianity has often been characterized by a sense of holy--and maybe not so holy--sorrow. My earliest perceptions of the church as a very young child were that whatever Christianity was, it must be very sad. Even the most positive mood I found in the church was far short of joy. I concluded--wrongly, as it turned out--that the essential mood of being a Christian was something that was just short of being downright grim. (I'm sure some of the problem was mine and not just that particular church.)

Nehemiah was gratified by the people's repentance and he now needed to move them to the second step: "Go your way, eat the fat and drink sweet wine and send portions to him for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy to our Lord; and do not be grieved, for the joy of the Lord is your strength" (8:10). Repentance was necessary, but one must move from repentance to the joy of the Lord.

To be sure, in the presence of the Lord we are struck with the sense of our own inadequacy and lack of worth. But we need also to realize that the joy of God's love is just as compelling as the grimness of his judgment. If we focus only upon the grief of our sin to the exclusion of the joy of our redemption, we have not really heard God's word to us. And half of the message is not enough.

On this occasion at least, the people got the whole message from God through Nehemiah and he tells us: "...all the people went their way to eat and drink and to send portions and to make great rejoicing, because they had understood the words that were declared to them" (8:12.

It matters little what we get from our Christian faith if we possess everything but joy. Without joy, we've missed the message.

COVER STORY

Spelling knows what to do with kids today

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

You remember Aaron Spelling. In the '70s and '80s, he was television's king of glitz, the producer of "Charlie's Angels," "Dynasty," "Fantasy Island" and many other escapist fantasies.

Aaron Spelling

But these days, instead of being denounced as a purveyor of mindless trash, he has been receiving citations from public-service organizations for his Thursday-night Fox series, "Beverly Hills, 90210," which has dealt meaningfully with such heavy topics as drunk driving, date rape, breast cancer and safe sex. And he admits that he finds his emerging respectability among proper-thinking groups a bit strange.

"Although everybody seems to forget a little show called 'Family' that we did for five years," he says. "By the way, I don't mind the glitz; it's fun. I wish I had a glitzy show right now. But I'm prouder of this show than any show I've done since 'Family.' I can't imagine growing up and being 17 in our society today. Teen-agers have problems, and it's so hard to get them to reveal their problems to you. And peer pressure out here (in Beverly Hills) – I'm sure it's the same in every high school – but peer pressure out here is extraordinary."

"Beverly Hills, 90210" centers around Brandon and Brenda Walsh (Jason Priestley and Shannen Doherty), twins from Minneapolis making a difficult adjustment to life in Beverly Hills.

"They're surrounded by peers, some of whom have famous parents, some of whom are extremely wealthy," says Spelling. "I think that's what fascinated us all about the show. It wasn't just a normal high school. And some things do happen here that could only happen when you live in (a wealthy area). Rich kids who shoplift is a rather distinctive problem."

The show's strength is that it astutely mixes the glamour of Beverly Hills with well-grounded characters with whom teens everywhere can identify. Although "Beverly Hills, 90210" has only recently been discovered by adults, it has been a smash hit among teens since February – in one of the toughest time slots (opposite "Cheers") in all of television.

"A lot of kids have to tape our show, because 9 to 10 on a weeknight – even out here, believe me, there are some very strict parents," adds Spelling.

"Beverly Hills, 90210" isn't Spelling's first youth series. His breakthrough hit was with "The Mod Squad" (1968-73).

"Problems were different then, but probably as acute as they are today," says Spelling. "We forget those problems with the passage of time. The greatest gift that God has given us is that you don't remember pain."

Shannen Doherty (center r.) and Jason Priestley (center) head the cast of "Beverly Hills, 90210." The drama, which is a hit among teen-agers, airs Thursdays on Fox.

Crenna and Carroll star in police drama

BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

In the TV movies "Double Take" and "Internal Affairs," New York City detective Lt. Frank Janek (Richard Crenna) battled police corruption while solving grisly murder cases. When a recently appointed black police commissioner is murdered, Janek reunites with his partner (Cliff Gorman) to uncover the crime in the 1990 sequel

Richard Crenna

"Murder in Black and White" (CBS, Aug. 4). The commissioner's widow (Diahann Carroll) figures prominently in this third installment of the crime drama, when she and Janek develop a strong attraction to each other.

• The 1990 action film "Die Hard 2" (HBO, Aug. 4) delivered everything that made gunplay junkies love "Die Hard," albeit with more corny dialogue, leaps of logic and physical impossibilities. Bruce Willis is once again a solitary ingenious cop who challenges law-enforcement officials, air-traffic control staff and Army commandos in his attempt to save Dulles Airport in Washington, D.C., from terrorists who have sabotaged the airport and are making the landing of incoming flights impossible. "Die Hard 2" has not even a semblance of believability; its impact lies in its giddy reliance on the strange human desire to see things blown to bits.

• Repackaging substantial plot detail from the 1978 medical thriller "Coma," the rebroadcast of "Donor" (CBS, Aug. 6) concerns a hospital resident (Melissa Gilbert), who slowly uncovers a gory scenario of medical experimentation and murder after a close friend dies mysteriously. Jack Scalia also stars.

• Melissa Gilbert also stars in the 1990 drama "Joshua's Heart" (NBC, Aug. 9) as Claudia, a young woman who falls in love with a man and finds herself becoming deeply attatched to his son, Joshua. When Tom (Tim Matheson) decides to end their romance, Claudia and the child share a common hurt over the failed relationship and their inevitable separation.

• "Cinema Paradiso" (Cinemax, Aug. 6) is the kind of picture that movie critics swoon over, replete with vintage film clips and quotes. The film is both a celebration of cinematic history and a sentimental story of a rural Italian boy's fascination with the movies. One one level, "Cinema Paradiso" spiritualizes cinema, but it is the boy's friendships with the people associated with the local movie theater and the unique moviegoing rituals of the townspeople that give the film its nostalgic quality.

SUNDAY

Richard Crenna reprises his role as New York City cop Frank Janek in "Murder in Black and White." Diahann Carroll also stars in the drama, which revolves around the investigation into the death of a newly appointed black police commissioner. The 1990 CBS movie is rebroadcast Sunday, Aug. 4.

IN FOCUS

In the 1986 French film "Jean de Florette," Gerard Depardieu (shown) plays a hunchbacked newcomer who becomes the prey of scheming neighbors (Yves Montand and Daniel Auteuil). They feign friendship, but they sabotage his water supply and turn the small farming community against him. You will root for the good-hearted Jean, who never suspects his enemies. It airs Friday, Aug. 9, on PBS. (Check local listings.)

THURSDAY

On a repeat episode of "L.A. Law," Kuzak (Harry Hamlin) must defend a man on trial for murder who has multiple personalities. Also, the tables are turned on Becker as he is hauled into family-practice court, and C.J. tries to make friends with Abby. The legal drama airs Thursday, Aug. 8, on NBC.

IN FOCUS

One year after New York City Det. John McClane (Bruce Willis, shown) saved his wife from terrorists in a Los Angeles skyscraper, he must now perform a similar feat at Dulles Airport in Washington, D.C., during a blizzard. In the sequel, "Die Hard 2," premiering Sunday, Aug. 4, on HBO, the plane carrying his wife (Bonnie Bedelia) is prevented from landing until terrorists can rescue a drug kingpin (Franco Nero) from another flight.

SOAP SCOOP

Irizarry joins parade of soap superstar returns

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

The summer of '91 seems to be the season of the returning daytime superstar. Just after confirmation of the return of Deidre Hall to "Days of Ours Lives" (she started as the resurrected Marlena Brady on Aug. 2) came confirmation of the long-rumored return of Vincent Irizarry to "Guiding Light."

Irizarry made perhaps the most impressive soap debut of the 1980s as Lujack, a street kid who turned out to be Brandon, son of Alexandra Spaulding (Beverlee McKinsey). As Lujack, Irizarry had the kind of magnetism soap producers and head writers would sell their mothers for.

Vincent Irizarry

There's one problem with Irizarry's return: When Lujack died in 1985 from the aftereffects of a ship explosion, his death was seen on screen. So there's no way he can come back as Lujack.

So Irizarry is playing a mysterious look-alike – with Lujack qualities, Irizarry assured reporters. The character is Nick McHenry, a journalist.

Since playing Lujack on "GL," Irizarry played bland Dr. Scott Clark on "Santa Barbara" for two years. It was there that he met his wife, Signy Coleman (who played Celeste Napoli). The couple now have a year-and-a-half-old daughter, Sienna.

Irizarry also developed a respectable nighttime career in California. Most notable was his quite impressive portrayal of the lead in last season's schlocky NBC miniseries, Jackie Collins' "Lucky/Chances."

• It's not only the big-name superstars that return to daytime. Just after the Daytime Emmys, "All My Children" announced that it has hired Scott Thompson Baker to play a major new lead, Craig Larson. He'll be the new love interest of Dixie Martin (Cady McClain). Baker played Colton Shore, the spoiler in the Frisco-Felicia romance, on "General Hospital" until a few months ago. (Colton married Felicia when Frisco was assumed to be dead.)

The very appealing Baker was written into story-line limbo when Frisco and Felicia (since split up by Jack Wagner's move to "Santa Barbara") were remarried. When Baker was let go in the Gloria Monty purge, though, there was a huge outcry.

On the darker side, "AMC" is mysteriously writing out its entire young love triangle – Emily Martin (Liz Vassey), husband Joey (Michael Brainard) and Katie Kennicott (Greta Lind) seemingly in midstory line – and in midsummer.

SPORTS CALENDAR

Couples drives toward PGA Championship

BY CHRISTOPHER HULL

The last of golf's "Big Four" tournaments, the PGA Championship, gets underway this week at the Crooked Stick Golf Club in Carmel, Ind., and both TBS and CBS will split the coverage. Last year's winner was Wayne Grady, who ended up taking home $225,000 by virtue of his two-stroke victory over Fred Couples.

Fred Couples

TBS has six hours of first-round coverage on Thursday, Aug. 8, and six hours of second-round coverage on Friday, Aug. 9, while CBS has a late-night highlights show each night. TBS has two hours of third-round coverage on Saturday, Aug. 10, and two hours of final-round coverage on Sunday, Aug. 11, while CBS has four and a half hours of coverage each day. That's a total of 25 hours of live coverage of the PGA Championship.

Last year's runner-up, Couples was the all-around tour leader in mid-July, having benefited from an unusual vacation in the middle of this year's tour schedule. After finishing among the top 10 in two of his first four tournaments, Couples hit an uncharacteristic weak spell during which he finished in the top 25 only twice in his next eight tournament outings.

That prompted Couples to take the month of May off. He insists that during that time he only picked up his clubs "a couple of times," opting instead to step away from the game and spend some time with his wife, Deborah.

When Couples returned to competition, he was reborn. In his first tournament back, the Buick Classic in June, he shot his way to a top 10 finish.

• ESPN has its usual slate of baseball games this week, starting with the San Francisco Giants visiting the Cincinnati Reds on Sunday night, Aug. 4. The cable sports network also has a doubleheader on Tuesday, Aug. 6, a single game on Wednesday, Aug. 7, and a doubleheader on Friday, Aug. 9. (Teams were unannounced at press time).

• ABC's "Monday Night Football" kicks off its preseason slate on Aug. 5 with a rematch of last year's Super Bowl antagonists when the Buffalo Bills visit the New York Giants at Giants Stadium. Aside from the fact that, this being a preseason game, both teams' rosters will be filled with rookies looking for a job in the NFL, the Giants will have a new look when the season starts. Gone are head coach Bill Parcells and tight end Mark Bavaro; arrived are new head coach Ray Handley and exiled New England tight end Zeke Mowatt.

TV DIALOGUE

BY TONI REINHOLD

MOMMY AND 'DADDY' – Is Lynda Carter married? Does she have any children? What is she doing now? – D.L., St. Petersburg, Fla.

Lynda Carter

Carter and her husband, Robert Altman, a Washington, D.C., attorney, have two children, son Jamie, age 3, and daughter Jessica, 8 months. She recently completed a TV movie called "Daddy," based on the book by Danielle Steel. It is slated to air next season.

COLLINS EDMONDS – Wasn't the actor who plays Langley on "All My Children" in "Dark Shadows"? If so, what part did he play? – A.W., Newburgh, N.Y.

Louis Edmonds, who portrays Langley Wallingford on "All My Children," played three Collins – Roger, Joshua and Edward – in the original "Dark Shadows."

FIELD 'MICE'? – Years ago I saw a movie, "Of Mice and Men," with Lon Chaney Jr. and, I believe, Sally Field. Was she in that film? – A.R.K., Carlsbad, Calif.

No. That 1939 version of "Of Mice and Men" also starred Betty Field. Sally Field was born in 1946.

THE BOWERY BOYS – What are the names of some of the films in which the Bowery Boys starred? I have been desperately trying to find them. – G.W., Lisbon, Conn.

Led by Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall, the Bowery Boys began their cinematic lives as the Dead End Kids in the 1937 film "Dead End," a sobering commentary on New York City tenement life. Six films featuring the Kids were released, including "Angels With Dirty Faces" (1938) and "They Made Me a Criminal" (1939).

In 1940, Monogram issued a series of pictures featuring The East Side Kids, who included Dead End Kids Gorcey and Bobby Jordan, and later Hall and Gabriel Dell. These films include "Pride of the Bowery" (1940), "Bowery Blitzkrieg" (1941), "Spooks Run Wild" (1941) and "Let's Get Tough" (1942).

In 1946, the series was renamed "The Bowery Boys"; its releases included "Bowery Buckaroos" (1947), "Master Minds" (1949), "No Holds Barred" (1952), "Jalopy" (1953), "The Bowery Boys Meet the Monsters" (1954) and "Bowery to Bagdad" (1955). The series ended in 1958.

All the above titles are available on video except those in the final Bowery Boys series.

Also in the cast of this sequel to the popular 1988 film are Kiefer Sutherland, Lou Diamond Phillips and some younger teen idols. It premieres Saturday, Aug. 10, on HBO.

IN FOCUS

The modern American idea of the old frontier West -- an idea that many American Indians have vocally challenged in recent years -- was partially formed by the romantic paintings and sculptures of Frederic Remington. Gregory Peck hosts a look at the American artist's life, work and lasting influence on "Frederic Remington: The Truth of Other Days," airing Monday, Aug. 5, on PBS's "American Masters." (Check local listings.)

C&P Telephone Pioneers Expand Tutoring Program

The Telephone Pioneers of America council serving Garrett and Allegany counties installed new officers, who pledge to expand the tutoring program begun by the organization last year.

Gary Gross, newly named president of the Pioneers' Mountain Council, said the group will raise funds and recruit volunteer tutors to support "Camp Basic," now in its second year. The camp is an educational and recreational retreat sponsored by the Pioneers.

Throughout the state, elementary school administrators and teachers are being asked to nominate fifth graders who need an academic boost. Those students selected are invited to attend a one-week session of camping, swimming, hiking, and learning programs at the campsite in Garrett County.

The Pioneers are doubling the number of participating students this year. More than 60 Maryland youngsters will attend the camp in August. Following the camp experience, Pioneer tutors work with the students throughout the school year.

"The Telephone Pioneers are proud of our organization's history of helping others," Gross said. "We see an educational need that we can fill, by working with the school system, parents and students. We believe Camp Basic is a worthwhile program for all concerned."

In addition to tackling special projects such as camp basic, the Telephone Pioneers regularly visit nursing homes and hospitals, provide aids for disabled children, build scholarship funds, and conduct environmental clean-up activities.

Nationally, the Telephone Pioneers of America membership exceeds 850,000 making the Pioneers the world's largest industry-based community service group. Members are active and retired employees of the telecommunications industry.

Rush Is Honor Graduate Of Banking School

L. Scott Rush, senior vice president and planning and control manager for First United National Bank & Trust, graduated recently "with distinction" from the American Bankers Association's Stonier Graduate School of Banking.

Richard G. Stanton, chairman of the Board and president of First United, said "Stonier requires a strong level of commitment for any banker. In order to graduate, Scott attended three, two-week sessions, completed eight extension problems and submitted a management analysis project which was the equivalent of a masters thesis. I commend Scott on not only graduating, but 'going the extra mile' to earn the highest honors possible."

The Stonier curriculum, designed for mid-level to senior-level bank officers, provides the knowledge base, analytical techniques, and management concepts needed for effective bank management, Stanton said.

Stonier has a sharply-focused curriculum that is continually modified and updated, a highly-qualified faculty consisting of academicians, banking regulators and industry consultants, high-quality students with demonstrated ability to be senior executives, and an environment that promotes the sharing of ideas and perspectives.

Rush graduated among the top 21 students out of a class of 251 bankers from around the nation. To graduate with honors, Rush not only scored high on his extension problems and four exams, but received high honors on his final management analysis, which was presented before a panel of experts as a qualification for graduation.

Rush has been employed by First United since 1975, when he joined the staff as a Management Trainee. He was named auditor for the bank in 1979 and was promoted to assistant vice president and cashier in 1981. A year later he became First United's vice president and controller. He has served in his current position, senior vice president and planning and control manager, since 1987.

Rush is a magna cum laude graduate of Frostburg State University with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and computer science. During his tenure with First United, he received his professional designation of Chartered Bank Auditor from the American Bankers Association in 1981. In addition, he graduated with honors from Garrett Community College with an associate degree in business administration. He also graduated with honors from the Maryland Banking School in 1986.

Rush has taken an active role in banking on the state level. He has served as a member of the Young Maryland Bankers Committee, a division of the Maryland Bankers Association, since 1984. In this role he is currently serving as vice chairman of the Committee. In September he will begin serving his year as chairman.

Locally, Rush is a member of the White United Methodist Church, where he serves on the Board of Trustees. He is active in local youth athletics and civic organizations. He and his wife, Barbara, reside on Underwood Road, near Oakland. They have two children, Jason and Mandy.

BROAD FORD ELEMENTARY RECEIVES GOVERNOR'S CITATION -- Broad Ford Elementary School recently received a citation from Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer in recognition of its "impressive commitment to upholding the distinguished educational traditions of Maryland." The citation further stated, "In honor of your school's dedicated efforts and strong support of the valuable goals of the Maryland Student Literacy Corps Program; and as an expression of our admiration, gratitude and great respect for the positive influence and important learning experiences that your students have gained while bringing national acclaim to the great state of Maryland." Students in grades 1-5 participated in the program, under the guidance of Judith Upole, media assistant at Broad Ford, who coordinated the program for the school. Pictured above, left to right, are Upole and the students representing each grade. They are Tiffany Craver, fourth grade; Justin Hinebaugh, second grade; Upole; April Harvey, first grade; Ginger Paugh, third grade, and Rebecca Ford, fifth grade.

Collins is a 1978 graduate of Northern High School and has been employed with the Oklahoma Department of Corrections as a senior case manager at Eddie Warrior Correctional Center, Taft, Okla., since 1983. He is the son of Ruby Collins, Rawlings, and the father of Rebecca and Melissa Collins of Accident. He and his wife, Myrtle, reside in McAlester, Okla.

Jerusalem Ridge Singers Slated At Hiway Assembly

The Jerusalem Ridge Singers will minister at the Hiway Assembly of God all-day meeting on Sunday, August 4, at the 1:30 p.m. service.

Sunday school begins at 10 a.m., followed by special singing and testimonies. A basket dinner will be held on the grounds at noon and the public is invited to attend.

Jerusalem Ridge is a bluegrass gospel group from the Somerset, Pa., area and are "dedicated and committed to spreading the gospel of Christ through gospel music," according to a church spokesman.

The group, whose members are all from the tri-state area, formed in March of 1989 and have played music most of their lives.

Members include Rick Pyle on bass fiddle and vocals; Freeman Raley on acoustic guitar and vocals; Steve White on mandolin and vocals; and Gary Shaffer on five-string banjo and vocals.

Each member has shared the stage with some of the top bands in the country and all are "well-versed" in studio work as the group presently has two recordings available on casette tape which include Prayer Bells of Heaven and Little Mountain Church House.

"Their tight blend of harmony vocals and bluegrass-style music, enhanced by their personal testimonies, is well received," said the spokesman.

MCEA To Take 40-Hour Issue To Top Court

The Maryland Classified Employees Association Board of Directors voted last Thursday to give its attorneys the green light to appeal the 40-hour workweek case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 21-member Board is the policy-making body of MCEA and must approve such actions. "Now that the board has given the green light, MCEA will do whatever is necessary to have this unfair order overturned," said MCEA President Joel Dan Lehman. "At the onset we believed we had a strong case. Today we are even stronger in our conviction. Unfortunately, the Maryland courts did not share our belief."

With the Board's approval, MCEA's law firm of Davis and Jenkins has begun working toward submitting a Petition for Certiorari, to the U.S. Supreme Court, said Davis and Jenkins Attorney Stephen Awalt. Mr. Awalt said that the petition will be submitted to the court by mid-September. Then, he said, the court must decide whether they will take the case.

The Petition for Certiorari will outline for the court how the petitioner feels that the case is significant, how the case is affected by federal law or the U.S. Constitution, and what significance it will have to the public, Awalt explained.

"At its threshold, the case has a huge public impact in that it affects 60,000 people," Awalt said. "It also involves important questions of how the government of Maryland does business; how much power the Governor of Maryland holds, how much power the legislature of the State holds, and where the two collide."

Finally, he said, at issue is the fairness of the Governor to implement the executive order on State employees.

SHEEP-TO-SHAWL CONTEST SET - A "sheep-to-shawl" contest will take place at the Garrett County Agricultural Fair this year, featuring a local group of fiber artists: the Ewesful Spinners and Weavers of Garrett and Preston Counties. Milton Naylor, a member of the weavers' group, is pictured above. He will be weaving on a four-harness countermarch loom which he built (not shown in photo). At the right is Sheila Elliot, who will be spinning wool in the contest. The artisans will be divided into two teams, and each will prepare a sheep's fleece, spin the wool into yarn, and weave the yarn into a shawl. The teams will receive points on spinning, weaving, shearing, design, and the time it takes to complete the shawl. The contest is scheduled for Wednesday, August 14, in the Home Arts Building at the homemaker's booth from 5 until 10 p.m. The public is invited to watch the competition.

Potomac Edison Inspecting Lines Via Helicopter

Potomac Edison is conducting transmission line vegetation inspections using helicopters this month as part of the company's ongoing maintenance program.

Helicopter flights began last week in the Oakland area to examine Potomac Edison's 500-KV and 138-KV transmission lines for overgrown vegetation. The company will also inspect its 34.5-KV sub-transmission line for damaged hardware and overgrown vegetation.

Helicopters are used to scout the system, especially in outlying areas, because they can hover as close as 20 feet above the lines and complete the job more quickly and economically that foot patrols, according to a PE spokesman.

Inspections are conducted throughout the year by the company, which serves more than 320,000 customers in parts of Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The Riverboat Cruise was held on the Gateway Clipper "Party Liner" which departed the Star City Boat Docks and traveled up the Monongahela River. A buffet dinner and entertainment by Rick K. and the Allnighters was provided. All proceeds from ticket sales will be used to fund children's wishes in West Virginia.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation is a non-profit organization that grants special wishes to children under the age of 18 who have been diagnosed with a life-threatening illness.

Oak Park To Hold Services At Camp Galilee

Beginning at 9:30 a.m. the children's Sunday School classes will be combined for a Bible scavenger hunt and the adult classes will meet in the Recreation Hall. At 10:30 a.m. everyone will meet in the Recreation Hall for worship. Fesh corn on the cob and drink will be furnished with everyone bringing something to share for a carry-in meal after the service. Old fashioned games and recreation will be for all ages. Swimming, boating, volleyball, basketball and other special activities are available. There will be a closing fellowship service about mid-afternoon. Everyone is welcome.

Legal Aid Bureau Announces August Outreach Schedule

Staff members of the Legal Aid Bureau Inc., will be available to discuss legal problems with persons during the month of August 1991 in Oakland on August 6 and 20.

The Legal Aid Bureau representative will be available from 10 a.m. until noon on the above-mentioned dates at the National Guard Armory on Eighth Street.

The Bureau provides legal assistance in civil matters to eligible persons. Services are available at no cost to those whose income and property holdings are below certain federally-mandated levels.

The Western Maryland Office of the Legal Aid Bureau is located at 110 Greene Street in Cumberland. The office can be reached in Garrett County by calling 334-8832.

Whenever possible, persons needing assistance should call in advance to schedule an appointment for the Outreach location or for an appointment at the Cumberland office, according to Bureau officials.

Team One Gives Donation For Benefit Event

Thanks to a generous contribution the Mountaineer Chevrolet Dealers Association, the Make-A-Wish Foundation of West Virginia held its Fourth Annual Riverboat Cruise and Dinner/Dance on Sunday, July 28, 1991. The Dealers' Association represented 16 Chevy dealerships in north central West Virginia and western Maryland, Team One Chevrolet, Oakland. "We are proud to support this wonderful organization whose efforts have touched families here in our own area," said Jeff Jenkins, of Team One.

"The Mountaineer Chevrolet Dealers Association has a history of providing generous support to our organization," said Andrea Ferrett, executive director of Make-A-Wish of West Virginia. "For a third year in a row, they have made a sizable donation to underwrite our Riverboat Cruise. This is our most successful fund raising event of the year and it is possible because of the Mountaineer Chevy Dealers."

LIONS DONATE TO BIG BROTHERS, SISTERS - The Deep Creek Lions Club recently donated an electronic typewriter to the Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleghenies. Dan Seib, coordinator, spoke to the club recently about the services offered by Big Brothers/Big Sisters. Upon receiving the donation, Seib said, "The generosity of the Lions Club is overwhelming; these guys really make things happen in a very positive way." Seib noted that two adult volunteers, or "Big Brothers," are members of the Deep Creek Lions Club. They are Wade Grove and Walt Renner. The organization is still seeking more adult volunteers, as well as children who can benefit from the program. Persons may call 334-3591 or write to Big Brothers/Big Sisters, P.O. Box 122, Oakland, MD 21550 for information. Seib is pictured above, left, with immediate past president of the DC Lions Club, Ed King.

Green Reunion Held Sunday

The 19th annual Green reunion was held Sunday, July 28, at the Glotfelty Pavilion, near Oakland with approximately 75 people in attendance.

Winners in the games included: Angela O'Brien, Missy Smith, Brittany Brown, and Raven Cook in the hot potato competition and Anthony Cogley, Amanda Cogley, Angela Cogley, Brittany Brown, Jimmy Brown, Shasta Tasker, Jenny Smith, Missy Smith, Raven Cook, and Joey O'Brien in the candy toss.

Other activities include guessing games and the prize table. Grand prize winners this year were Joey O'Brien, AM/FM radio, and Carl Spiker, sandwich maker.

Reunion officers elected for two-year terms were as follows: president, David Sowers, vice president, Ruth Glaze, sec/treasurer, Susan Arnold, historian, Ruth Lucas, and trustees, Rick Sowers and Karen Brown.

Three Local Men Arrested For Spotlighting

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office reported the arrest of three local men on the charge of spotlighting this week. Jerry A. Welch, 18, Timothy A. Welch, 25, both of Mtn. Lake Park, and Randy DeWitt (no age given), Oakland, were all charged with possession of a loaded weapon in a motor vehicle and casting rays of artificial light with a firearm in possession.

Donald Nemith, Oakland, was reportedly awakened by the sound of a shotgun on the night of July 21. He drove out to an open field to investigate and saw the spotlighters, according to the report. He then contacted the Sheriff's Office, and Dep. C. Feller responded to the scene. Feller also notified Department of Natural Resources Officer John Milbourne, who also responded to the call.

The officers confiscated a rifle with one round in the chamber and five in the magazine, the spotlight, two unspent rounds, 10 bottles of beer, and one spent round.

The incident occurred at approximately 1:15 a.m. on Sanders Lane. Feller returned to the scene on the following day and located a dead deer in the pasture.

In other Sheriff's Office news, Roger R. Shupp, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on the strength of a warrant on the charge of breaking and entering. Shupp reportedly illegally entered the dwelling of William J. Lenore and trespassed on private property. Troy A. Ashby (no age given), Corinth, W.Va., was also arrested for breaking and entering, as he was involved in the same incident, according to the police report.

Michael C. Fitzwater, 31, Deer Park, was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) on July 25. Dep. J. Murphy stopped Fitzwater on Rt. 135 in Deer Park at 10:15 p.m., according to the report, after the officer observed the defendant driving erratically.

Nancy C. Paugh, 45, Oakland, was charged with DWI on Sunday at 4 a.m. Murphy made the arrest after observing erratic driving by the defendant. A subsequent search revealed a suspected marijuana cigarette butt in Paugh's purse, according to the report.

A bench warrant was issued for Francesco G. Pisano, 22, McHenry, for failure to appear in Garrett County District Court. Pisano was reportedly scheduled to face bad check charges, according to the police report.

David E. White, 45, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant on July 24. White was charged with violation of probation.

A bench warrant was issued for Duane A. Garlitz, 22, Keyser, W.Va., for violation of probation. The original charge against Garlitz was reportedly DWI.

Marsha L. Thomas, 30, Oakland, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant issued from district court. The defendant apparently failed to appear in court to face bad check charges.

Phillip Allan Whiteman Jr. was served a bench warrant from district court for failure to appear in court. Whiteman was scheduled to answer a DWI charge on July 18, according to the report.

STEP-BUILDERS AT DCLSP - Several workers from the Maryland Conservation Corps recently built a set of steps in order to ease the access between two parking lots at the Deep Creek Lake State Park picnic area. This is the first set of steps finished, and the group is presently constructing another set from the lower parking lot. Pictured above are the workers standing on their finished product. In the left row, from the bottom up, are Keith Yutzy, Eric House, Matt Wilt, Stephen Beckman, and Clint Hatfield. In the second row, same order, are Joe Schmiole (crew chief), Kris Auvil, and Robert Cook.

Property Destruction

Marlin Lawson, Oakland, reported the death of a $1,000 purebred Limousin calf. Lawson showed a deputy where the animal had been shot in the right front knee, and later told the officer that the calf had died from the wound.

Lawson said he had no trouble with his neighbors, and suspected the animal was hit with a stray bullet several days ago. He reported the property destruction on July 26.

In a separate case, Alice S. Long reported that a window in her mobile home had been shattered while she was at work. The home is located on Old Morgantown Road in Accident, and the breaking occurred during the night of July 22.

The damage to the window will cost approximately $150 to repair, according to the report.

Bagpipe, Drum Courses To Be Offered At GCC

A beginner's and intermediate's course in playing the Scottish bagpipes and drums will be given again on Wednesday evenings from 7-9 p.m. in the music room of Garrett Community College, during the fall semester. According to the Honorable Fred A. Thayer, who teaches the class, new students are always welcome, and they do not need to have their own instruments.

Students may register at the Registrar's Office of the college on weekdays during business hours or on the first night of class, September 4. Those who take the course may join the GCC Pipes and Drums, a colorful group that performs at the Autumn Glory parade, the college commencement, and other festival and ceremonial occasions.

Recently the group was accorded a special honor in being invited to participate in the annual Scottish Walk in Alexandria, Va., on December 7. According to Thayer, who serves as pipe major for the group, this invitation is the group's greatest out-of-state recognition to date, as only top pipe and drum bands are invited to participate.

Members of the Garrett Community College Pipes and Drums will also perform at the GCC booth at the Garrett County Fair on Friday afternoon, August 17.

Emergency Blood Drive At GCC Deemed Success

The Johnstown Chapter of the American Red Cross held an unscheduled blood drive on July 24 at Garrett Community College because of an increased shortage which often occurs during the summer months. The drive was considered a "great success," according to a bloodmobile spokesman.

The spokesman noted that 62 pints of blood were collected "thanks to many local people and people who were in the area for The Wellness Conference at the college."

The drive was coordinated on relatively short notice by Executive Director Cindy Kutchman and her assistant, Linda Henn.

Others assisting were Manning Smith, sponsor contact and canteen; Dee Thomas, co-chairman and arrangements for canteen; Virginia McCauley, Lois Cuppett, and Mary Kathryn Speicher, nurses who assisted with donor histories and blood pressures; Vava Railey and Diane Thayer, registration; John Chadderton and Cheryl Stemple, EMTs who assisted with vital signs; Jacquelyn Shirer and Frances Mountain, lab work; Ruth Porter and Arletta Bittinger, blood bag labeling; and Amanda Mountain, walker.

"All did a great job and their time and efforts were greatly appreciated," said the spokesman.

A ONE-MAN EXPLOSION of music, energy, laughter, artistry, and just plain fun is how critics have described John Bressler, of Olea, Pa., who will be among the guest performers at the Garrett County Fair this year. The performer/composer has appeared at fairs, clubs, carnivals, concerts, conventions, and assemblies all over the nation with such stars as the Oak Ridge Boys, Willie Nelson, Ray Charles, Miami Sound Machine, Highway 101, and Kool and the Gang. He's a regular visitor to such television shows as TNN's Nashville Now and the nationally syndicated Cross Country. His video, "John Bressler: Almost Live!" has been telecast nationally and he has recorded several albums. He will perform two shows at the Garrett County Fair on August 13, the first at 8 p.m. and the second at 9:30 p.m.

MD Students Attend Forestry Resources Week

Students from across Maryland traveled to Garrett County Sunday to attend the Forestry, Conservation, and Natural Resources Week. Sponsored by the Maryland Association of Forestry Conservancy District Boards and run cooperatively with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources - Forest, Park & Wildlife Service, the week long workshop is for high school and college bound students interested in the outdoors and in pursuing forestry and related conservation careers. The workshop is in its 20th year, according to a spokesperson.

Two students from Garrett County attended the workshop: Jason Reall, Oakland, and Adam Spiker, McHenry.

The 46 students arrived on Sunday afternoon and began with the basics of soils, wildlife, water, geology, and plant identification. The participants then built on these studies while studying the concepts of natural resource management. They studied factors which influence and limit the use of the resource and the need for planning and management of forests, according to a spokesperson.

By Friday of this week, students will be able to evaluate a parcel of forested land and prepare a management strategy for the area.

Throughout the week, the students have worked with natural resource professionals from a variety of disciplines, enabling them to gain first-hand knowledge of natural resource careers. Many former students of the workshop have chosen careers in natural resources fields, the spokesperson stated.

Rebecca Sue DeBerry and Kenneth Edward Calcamp were united in marriage July 6, 1991. The double-ring ceremony took place at the Deer Park United Methodist Church with the Rev. Kenneth Montgomery officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Everett and Harriet DeBerry, Deer Park. The groom is the son of Cecil and Mary Calcamp, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white, five-tier, ruffled Chantilly lace gown. It featured a ribbon-trimmed, lace capelet worn off the shoulders. The fitted bodice, with a Basque waistline, was detailed with a ribbon bow to one side.

To complete her bridal attire, she wore white lace wrist gloves and a headpiece of white and pink flowers with pearls to each side. Her bouquet consisted of live pink carnations, a pink lily, accented with green fern and purple flowers.

Serving as maid of honor was Cheri Deal, friend of the bride, Oakland. Serving as best man was Cecil Calcamp Jr., brother of the groom, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va.

The pianist was Joyce Fitzwater, Deer Park, and attending the guest book was Colleen Calcamp, sister of the groom. Birdseed packets were given by Kimberly King, niece of the bride. The pictures were taken by Judy Wilt, Oakland, and the wedding and the reception were videotaped by Chuck Noland, Deer Park.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony at the Deer Park fire hall. The toast was given by the best man. The four-tier cake was baked and served by Debra King, sister of the bride, Waldorf. Preparing and serving the food were Margaret Mowbray, Alex., Va.; Ruth St. Clair, Baltimore, both aunts of the bride, and Glenna Miller, friend of the bride, Oakland.

The couple now reside in Deer Park.

Karen Nelson Marries Daniel Moon In June 15 Outdoor Ceremony

The marriage of Karen Lynn Nelson, daughter of Alta Nelson and the late Otis V. Nelson, to Daniel Lester Moon, son of Edward and Harriet Moon, took place at the Gortner Union Church at 1 p.m. on June 15.

The Rev. David C. Moon officiated at the ceremony, and the accompanist was Tonya Beckman. Cathy Moon served as vocalist, and Mary Nelson registered guests.

Escorted to the altar by her godfather, Elzie Nelson, the bride wore a white satin gown by Bil-Joy. The fitted bodice, covered in hand beaded Milano lace, featured poet sleeves and a sheer neckline of English net with a pearl and sequin etched bridal collar. The dirndl skirt fell from a Basque waist and swept into a semi-cathedral train. Both the skirt and the train were adorned with Milano lace appliques, seed pearls, and iridescent sequins.

Her headpiece was created by Karen Wolf and was decorated with pearls and dainty flowers with a pouf and a full back length veil. She carried a bouquet of white flowers and pearls with pink and fuchsia rosebuds combined that cascaded down over the bride's hand with a bow and streamers.

The bride's attendants wore a three-quarter length gowns with criss-cross V-backs and bows. The maid of honor wore rosebud pink and the bridesmaids wore similar dress in fuchsia.

Serving as maid of honor was Nellie Nelson, Terra Alta, W.Va., sister of the bride. Bridal attendants were Vickie Castle, Silver Spring; and Michelle Teter, Loch Lynn. The flower girl was Lisa Vandenberg, Lancaster, Pa.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails, and the best man wore a silver tuxedo with a rosebud cummerbund and tie. The groomsmen also wore silver tuxedos, but with fuchsia cummerbunds and ties.

Samuel G. Moon, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Brian Fowler, Deep Creek Lake, and Cletis J. Lambert, Brookside, W.Va. Serving as ring bearer was Jonathan Nelson, Terra Alta.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the Oakland Volunteer Fire Hall. A tier cake with a fountain was made by Rachel and Karen Wolf.

Following a honeymoon to the Poconos, the couple established residence on Hill Crest Drive outside of Deer Park.

Cash, Check or Charge?

Tell a sales clerk in your favorite department store that you wish to purchase a blouse or pair of slacks and they will ask: "Will that be cash, check or charge?" Sounds like a simple choice, doesn't it? Tell homeowners you wish to purchase their home, however, and you will find the payment choices almost endless.

Many changes in mortgage financing took place in the 1980s, and the '90 promise to continue that trend. Less than 5% of all homes are sold for cash, thus there is a continuing demand for widely varied mortgage repayment plans which meet the financial needs of buyers.

The many plans available vary with factors such as amount of down-payment, term in years, interest rate and type (fixed vs. variable), discount points, origination fees, loan-to-value and income ratios, length of loan commitment, and more.

In the recent past, homeowners selling without a REALTOR® could call a mortgage lender, ask for a quotation on interest and points and be reasonably certain they would remain constant until a buyer was found. Today, interest rates, points and mortgage requirements change often, sometimes daily.

Wise buyers contact a REALTOR® first, before beginning their home search. In-depth knowledge of the local mortgage market is just one of many valuable services available from a REALTOR®. To a buyer, being pre-qualified for a mortgage means having the freedom to select a home without fear of rejection. To sellers, buyer pre-qualification means added security that the sale of their home will take place on time. Both buyer and seller benefit from the financing "know-how" of a REALTOR®.

We know and understand all the new and innovative finance methods available in this area. Why not call us at 387-5303 or come by our office at McHenry Plaza.

READERS CORNER
Homer Mellott, 387-6815

We live in a day when education is looked to as the greatest need of mankind. Certainly, education is needed if we are to be able to read, understand and proclaim the word of God. Although modern education takes a decidedly anti-Christian stance, the original purpose behind the development of public education was to prepare people to understand the Bible, so the nation would be bettered through having a populace that read, knew, understood and applied the Bible to their lives. With this background, the nation would have an orderly, law-abiding, good-seeking people. That was a wise course, which has been proven by the predicament the nation is in now, following several generations of non-Biblical based education.

We will be painting T-shirts at our August meeting for the Garrett County Fair. Remember to bring a plain white T-shirt with no pockets.

Grantsville club is selling jewelry. Sale forms and books are due at the next meeting.

Sarah and Allie Bever and family, along with Sara Green and family, will be designing the booth for the fair. Any member willing to help design or set up booth should contact either family.

The club noted its appreciation to Sylvan Wiland for building the 4-H booth that was used at Grantsville Days, Dallas Wilhelm for donating the 2x4's, Ken and Debbie Green for the plywood and piant, Beverly Wiliand for painting the booth, and Jean Hutzel for donating the paint for the T-shirts.

The next meeting will be held at the Grantsville Park at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, August 5.

GCC To Have Two Booths At County Fair

To help kick-off the special events of its 20th anniversary year, Garrett Community College is planning to have two booths at the Garrett County fair this year, according to Darlene Reed of the planning committee.

A variety of special activities is being planned for both children and adults. One of the booths will house a display of newspaper articles and photographs depicting the history of GCC. Children's activities will include the popular computer games, "Where in the World" and "Where in the U.S.A. is Carmen Sandiego?" There will be clowns, face painting, mime, macaroni necklace making, ping-pong pond problems, and mural painting.

To make money for their veterans' scholarship fund, the GCC Veterans Club will have a caricaturist drawing pictures of fair goers and selling them. On Friday afternoon, several members of the GCC Pipes and Drums will entertain outside the booth. Every afternoon, students and staff members dress as clowns and other characters and circulate through the crowds with announcements of the specific activities.

Extension Experts Say: "Minimize Drought Losses With Good Management"

Shaped like a sinister summertime thunderhead tantalizing the parched earth, a giant 45-county Mid-Atlantic drought area has its alto-cumulus top in the Finger Lakes area of western New York state, twists through central Pennsylvania and bottoms out like a funnel cloud which encompasses Maryland's northern tier of counties and most of southern Maryland.

Drought pocket spinoffs are scattered around this area, including the upper Eastern Shore. But, generally, the Susquehanna River and its Chesapeake Bay tributary appear to define the eastern edge of the drought area, while the Allegheny and Youghiogheny rivers bound it on the west.

Inside this lopsided hourglass, Pennsylvania government officials already have asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to designate 27 counties as drought disaster areas. Maryland officials are requesting similar action for six counties.

Hot weather at pollination time on drought-stressed corn has reduced potential yields to less than half of normal in non-irrigated fields throughout much of the drought-affected area. Lack of relief from heat and drought threaten a similar fate for soybeans, as the early-planted crop enters its pollination stage in early August.

Many modern farmers who utilize no-till and double-cropping techniques — normally a hedge against drought — are having more problems than their old-fashioned neighbors because the heat and lack of rainfall started so early this year.

Livestock farmers predominate in the Mid-Atlantic drought area; and they face feed shortages before long, as pastures offer little more than exercise areas, and second cuttings of alfalfa were scant.

Sowing brassicas and other annual crops for fall grazing — which should be done by early August — is virtually out of the question unless rain comes soon.

But there are still things that farmers can do to salvage something, according to specialists and county agents for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

Here are some considerations they note:

•Utilize drought-damaged corn for silage rather than harvesting it as grain. Spelling extra silage to nearby dairy farms could be profitable. To help determine the value of drought-stressed corn, pick up Fact Sheet 483 from any county office of the Cooperative Extension Service in Maryland.

•Recognize that harvesting and feeding drought-stressed corn can present problems if proper procedures are not followed. Ask your county Extension office for Fact Sheet 433, which provides general information. Detailed information about nitrate and prussic acid poisoning of livestock is contained in Fact Sheets 426 and 427, respectively.

•Alfatoxin contamination can be a problem in drought-stressed corn harvested for grain. But proper procedures can help to head off serious trouble. Ask for Fact Sheet 444 at your county Extension office.

•Consider alternative nutrient sources when feed supplies are limited. Corn cannery waste, apple pomace and brewer's grain are among the possibilities. For more information, pick up Extension Fact Sheet 500.

Dr. Lester R. Vough, an Extension agronomy specialist at the University of Maryland College Park, also suggests that livestock farmers in drought areas make plans now to utilize small grains for animal grazing, either this fall or next spring to help stretch out stored feed supplies.

If rains come, spring oats can be seeded in early August throughout most of Maryland for a good fall pasture crop. Early spring grazing can be assured by seeding winter-hardy small grains as late as the last week of October.

Most farmers recognize the dangers from herbicide carry-over when small grains are seeded in fields where corn or soybeans have been harvested — particularly in a drought year when the herbicides may not have had sufficient moisture to become fully activated during the summer.

To guard against herbicide damage, Dr. Vough suggests that farmers hand-seed a few small plots of small grain randomly in a corn or soybean field where they plan to sow small grains. If the young small grain plants start to turn yellow shortly after emergence, it probably isn't safe to sow small grains in that field.

A more accurate testing procedure is to scoop up soil samples from various points throughout the field, mix the samples well and tamp it into flowerpots. Then seed oats other small grain in the flowerpots and wait to see if the plants turn yellow. Adequate watering of the flowerpots is important to activate any herbicide in the soil and make the plants grow rapidly.

Another way to assure livestock feed in early spring, says Vough, is fall fertilization of perennial grass and clover pastures. This should permit cutting or grazing earlier than normal next spring.

In the long run, Vough recommends that livestock farmers consider year-round grazing systems that incorporate alternating fields of fescue and the perennial grass-clover mixtures. When carefully managed, such systems also allow for cutting hay which can be stored for emergency feeding.

Simms Reports On Local Drought Conditions

Most Garrett County farmers will have been spared the devestation of prolonged drought, if present rains and cool weather continues, says Extension Agent Jim Simms. Although some areas of the county have received no more than a few showers, most areas have received enough moisture to begin reviving pastures and hay fields.

Corn on the average, Simms said, is not too bad. "Some is fairly good, and some is very bad," he stated, and explained that during the hot dry spell the corn matured and tasseled, and will not grow much more even with the improved weather conditions. Simms expects farmers to experience a 15% decrease in corn yields this year.

A second crop of hay has been non-existent in this area, and what hay has grown since the first cutting was made, matured early without any growth. Many farmers have clipped or flail-chopped their hay fields to provide green feed for cattle to supplement the also non-existent pastures. Simms says that if this wetter weather continues, farmers may expect to make a third and maybe a fourth cutting of hay yet this summer. Pastures, Simms said, have only been five percent of what they should have been this summer. In other words, farmers suffered a 95% loss of pasture this year.

"Vegetables are doing reasonably well this year," Simms reported, although he noted that late-planted crops were under more stress. "Sweet corn is a little shorter, and the ears are a little smaller," he added. Farmers bringing produce into the Mountain Fresh Producers Association tail-gate market on Wednesdays and Saturdays are bringing a good quantity of good quality vegetables, he added.

More farmers are irrigating now, a practice formerly almost unheard of in this area, according to Simms.

Although Garrett County had suffered an unusually long dry spell before recent rains, Simms said he and County ASCS Director Mike Kozier had determined that the county would not be eligible for disaster funding as some other areas of the state are.

Simms added, however, that because neighboring Allegany County is considered a drought disaster county, farmers in Garrett are eligible, even though Garrett is not an official disaster county, because it borders a county with drought disaster determination.

Purple Pasture Mint Can Be Deadly To Cattle

A common pasture weed found throughout the Southeast U. S. contains toxins that can cause a sudden respiratory illness and death in cattle when consumed, Larry A. Kerr, D.V.M., Knoxville, Tenn., told an audience during the 128th annual meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

Cattle that eat Perilla Frutescens, otherwise known as purple mint, may develop interstitial pneumonia, a non-contagious respiratory disease characterized by loud, labored breathing, froth around the mouth and nose, and aloofness.

"The condition can be recognized from 100 feet away," Dr. Kerr said. "The affected animal stands away from the herd, usually with its head down, breathing very hard and loudly." Interstitial pneumonia has a rapid course of one to three days with many cases terminating in death, often within 24 hours.

Research has isolated the toxins responsible for the plant's poisonous effect — principally perilla ketone. These toxins cause cellular changes in the lungs, resulting in swollen lung tissue, emphysema, and interstitial pneumonia.

"What's most alarming about this ailment is that treatment is virtually ineffective," said Dr. Kerr. It is difficult to administer medication, because exciting the animal through handling will exacerbate the condition and can lead to death. Dr. Kerr said antihistamines, steroids, and diuretics have been used to treat the disease with limited success.

"Time seems to be the animal's best ally," he said. "If the cow survives, it will take 10 days to two weeks for it to fully recover."

The disease was first diagnosed in the mid-1960s, but Dr. Kerr believes many farmers are not yet fully aware of the plant's catastrophic effects. "I've come across cases where farmers have lost up to 14 afflicted cattle at one time," he said.

Peak season for the disease occurs from August through October, coinciding with the plant's flowering period. "This period also corresponds to a period where many pastures are over-grazed, forcing livestock to seek alternative forages, which may be perilla mint," Dr. Kerr said.

Dr. Kerr's research found the flowers contain a higher concentration of the toxins than other parts of the plant. "Cattle, unfortunately, tend to prefer eating the flowers. It remains unclear how much perilla needs to be consumed before the cow is afflicted with the condition," he added.

During the plant's flowering season, Dr. Kerr typically diagnoses four to six cases a week. Other animals, such as horses, are not often affected by perilla, because they avoid eating the weed.

Perilla, a member of the mint family, was introduced to this country from Asia as an ornamental species. It has since spread from gardens and has become a troublesome weed throughout the Southeast.

Purple mint has been found as far west as eastern Oklahoma, extending north to southern Indiana and Illinois and continuing to the East and Gulf coasts. It is often found along tree lines and within poorly maintained pastures. Perilla grows between two and three feet high. It can be identified by its square stem, large leaves, purplish color, and mint fragrance.

"The best form of prevention of perilla-produced interstitial pneumonia is controlling the weed's growth," Dr. Kerr said.

The AVMA, based in the Chicago suburb of Schaumburg, is the professional association of the nation's nearly 50,000 veterinarians. Over 300 scientific presentations were made at the July annual meeting, the largest gathering of veterinarians in North America.

Most Of Corn In Silk Stage

By July 28, 83 percent of Maryland's corn acreage has silked, ahead of last year's 76 percent and the five-year average of 71 percent. An average of 5.3 days was suitable for fieldwork during this past week according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the state, 25 percent of the topsoil was very short of moisture, 25 percent was short, 50 percent was adequate and none was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: 25 percent was very short, 25 percent was short, 50 percent was adequate, and none was surplus. Rye was in fair to good condition, and oats was in poor to fair condition across the state. Hay supplies were adequate. Pastures are in severe drought condition. Peaches and apples were in fair to good condition.

You can hear a short summary of the current status of the Maryland crop growing season by listening to the MDA market newsline each Tuesday starting at 1 p.m. and going through noon on Wednesdays. Call the free phone number 1-800-638-2207 to hear this timely information.

Farm Bureau Continues Push For Wetlands Legislation

Farm Bureau continued its efforts last week to encourage passage of legislation to reform wetlands policy and end the regulatory ordeals experienced by farmers and ranchers prevented from farming their property.

Wetlands was the top priority at the annual Council of Presidents meeting held in Washington last week. A letter signed by AFBF President Dean Kleckner and Farm Bureau presidents from 50 states and Puerto Rico was sent to President Bush, urging him to use an executive order to stop all federal environmental initiatives "That undermine private property rights" until the administration establishes some "common-sense solutions."

"Environmental regulatory overkill by federal agencies is stripping us of the constitutional rights you pledged to protect," the Farm Bureau leaders said.

Farm Bureau also urged the administration to adopt several changes in the wetlands delineation manual before a new manual is formally proposed.

"We remain convinced, however, that legislation will be necessary to deal with important issues such as reasonable compensation for landowners who lose the use of their property through wetland regulations," Kleckner said.

The need for that legislation was also spelled out by Rep. James Hayes (D-La.), one of the original co-sponsors of the Comprehensive Wetlands Conservation and Management Act (H.R. 1330). Speaking to the Farm Bureau presidents, Hayes explained that there is currently no wetlands policy in America.

"There is no formula by which you deal with wetlands," he said. "Therefore, those who are interested in creating a policy regarding wetlands . . . grafted onto a 20-year-old water bill, the Clean Water Act of 1972."

That bill had a single paragraph, Section 404, "and all it said when Congress passed this dredge-and-fill bill regarding most of the Mississippi River and its tributaries was that the word 'waterbottoms' would be appropriately defined by the agencies," Hayes explained.

The result today is a continued grafting and expansion of Section 404 into "what is now the wetlands policy of the United States."

Hayes and co-author Rep. Tom Ridge (R-Pa.) introduced H.R. 1330 in March. There are currently 148 House co-sponsors. A Senate companion bill (S. 1463) was introduced by Sen. John Breaux (D-La.) and now has 20 co-sponsors.

The legislation is aimed at protecting property that should not be destroyed, classifying wetlands according to value and function, and providing compensation to landowners who are denied use of their property, Hayes explained.

"This is a fundamental right of ownership issue, driven not within the Beltway but far beyond it," he said. Hayes credited Farm Bureau with helping Congress and the administration "hear from home" on the issue.

More than 400 cases were reported to Farm Bureau from farmers who have experienced problems with wetlands enforcement by regulatory agencies. Copies of those documents were delivered to Sen. Max Baucus (D-Mont.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee on environmental protection. Some of those farmers told their stories at a Farm Bureau news conference in Washington. (See related articles in this page.)

Rep. Ridge, speaking at the news conference, said the proposed legislation would provide "classification, conservation and compensation" and end the "inappropriate use of regulation, which is cumbersome and costly."

A problem with the present system, according to Breaux, is that "all wetlands are treated as though they are the same, and they are certainly not the same."

Kleckner said the level of support in both houses "should convince reluctant lawmakers as well as the administration that wetlands enforcement is a real problem."

Packaged frozen yogurt sales have nearly doubled since 1987, from $42 million to more than $80 million.

OAKLAND FFA FORESTRY CONTEST WINNERS — Members of the Oakland FFA Chapter Forestry Team placed third at the Annual Maryland FFA Forestry Contest held on July 17 at Allegany Community College in Cumberland. The Allegany Community College Forestry Program annually hosts the contest which is sponsored by Westvaco, Inc. as a special project of the Maryland FFA Foundation. According to Contest Superintendent Steve Resh, Forestry professor at Allegany Community College, there were eight FFA teams registered with 32 FFA members participating. The contest consisted of a 50 question multiple choice test designed to test the contestant's knowledge and understanding of basic principles of forestry, a forest business management problem designed to determine the contestant's ability to apply economic principles and management concepts, a tree identification and an equipment identification exercise, and several practicums such as tree measurement, timber cruising, evaluation for timber stand improvement, compass utilization, and chainsaw troubleshooting. The top three winning teams in the Forestry Contest were Clear Spring, Flintstone and Oakland. Pictured above, left to right, Oakland team members are: Advisor Steve Kisner; Brian Friend, silver medal, sixth individually; Elaine DeBerry, silver medal, seventh individually; Denise Bee, silver medal, ninth individually; Trish Marple, bronze medal, 11th individually; and Dan Smith, bronze medal, 14th individually.

Dairy Bill Okayed By House Panel

Dairy legislation approved by the House Agriculture Committee last week would provide for substantial federal government involvement in the dairy industry and, for the most part, fails to meet Farm Bureau criteria.

"The inclusion of a mandatory two-tier program violates Farm Bureau policy and the complexity of the bill would simply involve farmers in a Bureaucratic mess," said John Datt, executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office.

After several weeks of debate, and word from USDA Secretary Ed Madigan that he would advise a veto of the legislation if it was not changed, the House Agriculture Committee okayed an amended version of the Livestock, Dairy and Poultry Subcommittee dairy bill.

The legislation (H.R. 2837) would establish a $12.60 dairy support price in 1992 and 1993 and would average $12.30 over the life of the bill. It would implement a mandatory two-tier program at 7 billion pounds of purchases, exempting regions that have Class I utilization in excess of 80 percent. The Commodity Credit Corp. would be allowed to purchase 5 billion pounds of milk.

The bill also would allow for a variety of assessments on producers, including one to assure no additional cost to the Women, Infants and Children program (WIC) or food and nutrition programs.

"Both the level and type of assessments contained in the bill should be of concern to dairy producers," Datt said. Estimates of the total value of assessments under this bill are between 75 cents and $1.

Also, the requirement that producers pay for a certain level of WIC and other food and nutrition programs is a "dangerous precedent for all agriculture," according to Datt.

Some of the bill's provisions had been called for by Farm Bureau. The legislation would mandate use of "California standards" for the solids content of milk and extend Packers and Stockyards security provisions to milk producers. It also would establish a producer board to dispose of surplus milk between 5 billion and 7 billion pounds of purchases.

DNR And Corps Agree On New Wetlands Rule

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources, (DNR) and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers struck another agreement this week in their continuing efforts to fine tune cooperative nontidal wetlands protection in Maryland.

DNR announced that the state's nontidal wetlands compensation mitigation fund is now available as an option to small property owners who must create wetlands as a requirement of their Corps nontidal wetlands permit. Use of the fund will be an option for individuals granted Corps permits affecting less than one acre of nontidal wetlands where replacement of wetland losses on their property is not feasible.

The state offer includes use of the compensation fund by landowners within the Chesapeake Bay critical area where nontidal setlands are regulated by the Corps and not by the state.

The compensation fund has been set up by DNR as part of the state's protection program and will be used to create, enhance and restore nontidal wetlands. The fund will pay for creation of larger, higher value nontidal wetlands as an alternative to requiring permittees to create small isolated wetlands with little ecological value.

In making the announcement, DNR emphasizes that use of the fund by a property owner can only occur when on-site replacement is not feasible and after all efforts have been made to avoid and minimize impacts.

Cattle Intramuscular Injections -- Problems

Meat packers and retailers have been reporting higher incidence of abscesses and lesions in cattle carcasses caused by intramuscular injections in recent years. It is estimated that the trimming losses are costing as much as one million dollars annually. A National Cattlemen's Association task force found that clostridial vaccines (usually Seven Way) are causing most of the problem. Until a few years ago, these vaccines were generally injected under the skin. The task force has recommended several ways for cattle feeders to reduce this problem. It advises injecting clostridial vaccines under the skin in the neck region. Avoid repeat or multiple injections, particularly late in the feeding period. Refrain from making intramuscular injections of other animal health products whenever other labeled means of administering them can be used.

Squash Plants Dying

I have had several calls concerning the sudden death of squash plants. In most cases, there are two causative agents. The Squash Vine Borer is an insect that bores into the vine near ground level. The borer interferes with the transportation of water in the plant causing quick death. The Cucumber Beetle is an insect that carries bacteria that causes a disease called Bacterial Wilt. Treatment with an insecticide should have started when the plants were starting to vine. Both insects can be controlled with Methoxychlor. Make sure you spray the material at the base of the plant.

Pine Shoot Borers

The heat and dryness is taking its toll on pine trees this year. Trees that seem to be the most seriously affected are the White Pines. The extreme conditions make them prime targets for various species of borers. The resulting damage can range from a die-back of the upper portions of a tree to the complete loss of a tree. All dead branches or trees infested with borers should be promptly removed because these trees are a source of borer re-infestation. For control next year be prepared to treat the trees with an insecticide called Cygon. Treat around late April. Make sure you thoroughly wet all shoots and the trunk of the tree. Repeat one to two times at six week intervals.

Sweet Corn Feed

If you enjoy sweet corn, plan to come to the Mt. Fresh Tailgate Market this Saturday, August 3, for free roasting ears. The Mt. Fresh Producers are sponsoring the free corn roast from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The market is located in the Oakland Town Parking Lot.

Antibiotics are Needed for Strep Throat

Sometimes a sore throat represents more than minor irritation resulting from a cough or cold. Occasionally a sore throat is the result of an infection caused by beta hemolytic streptococci bacteria. When this type of infection occurs, the condition is commonly referred to as "strep throat." If a strep throat infection is left untreated it can lead to rheumatic fever and heart damage in children. For this reason it is important that children who complain of sore throat for more than 4 to 5 days be see by a physician.

Typically a strep throat causes painful swallowing, tonsil swelling and tenderness, and fever. According to an article in the journal Patient Care, sore throat along with coughing, itchy eyes, and lymph node swelling in the neck frequently are signs of a viral infection that may be mistaken for strep throat. The best way to tell the differenc is to have a culture of the throat area made by a physician. The procedure provides for a more accurate diagnosis which aids in selection of the best treatment.

According to many physicians, the best treatment for strep throat is either a single intramuscular injection of penicillin or oral penicillin tablets for 10 days. If there is the possibility of allergic reaction to penicillin, erythromycin appears to be the antibotic most often recommended.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS Garrett County Commissioners

The purpose of this Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the County of Garrett.

On or about August 12, 1991 the above named County Commissioners will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release funds under the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY HOMEOWNERSHIP PROJECT

Location: Scattered throughout Garrett County. Kings Run, Sang Run, Pysell Road, Broadford Road, Garrett Road, M Street and Woodridge Park, Mt. Lake Park, Lothian Street, Loch Lynn, Golf Crest Manor, Oakland, and Route 40 Grantsville.

These locations will provide building sites which will be sold to Habitat for Humanity home buyers.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

Notice is hereby given that the above named County Commissioners have prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this Notice and have determined that said project will have no significant effect on the quality of human environment. No further environmental review of said project is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

The construction involved with building each individual house will be temporary and relatively minor in nature. All lots have received a satisfactory percolation test. All necessary permits will be obtained prior to the start of each individual house.

The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of these projects is available for public examination at the County Planning and Zoning Office - CDBG Administrator, room 307, Old Courthouse, telephone 334-1920, during normal business hours.

PUBLIC COMMENTS ON FINDING

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the office of the CDBG Administrator-County Planning and Zoning Office and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than August 9, 1991. All comments will be considered and the County Commissioners will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

The County will undertake the project described above with Small Cities Community Development Block Grant funds. This Notice also certifies that Brenda J. Butscher, serving in the official capacity of Chair of the County Commissioners, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County may use the Small Cities Community Development Block Grants Funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

OBJECTION TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if it is on one of the following bases:

(a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer; or (b) that the County Environmental Review Record for the project indicated omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review Process; or (c) No opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800; or (d) objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the County and to the SCCDBG Program Coordinator, Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, Maryland 21032-2023. All such comments must be received no later than August 27, 1991.

Convicted Sex Offender Will Serve 5 Years

David W. Daley, 30, Central City, Pa., was sentenced to five years in the Maryland Department of Corrections last week by Fred A. Thayer, judge of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

In May, Daley was found guilty by a jury of several sex offense charges, including second, third, and fourth degree sex offense, unnatural and perverted sex practices, and assault and battery. Before conviction, the defendant had requested acquittal, but the motion was denied.

The charges against Daley stemmed from an incident that occurred on November 17, 1990, and involved an 11-year-old male. The defendant apparently sexually molested the child and then threatened to hurt the victim if he told anyone about the incident. The boy did wait several months before telling any adult about the abuse.

Included in the prison sentence was an institutional recommendation that Daley be tested for the AIDS virus. He was granted credit for the 198 days he has already served, according to the court document.

Defense attorney for the defendant was John R. Toston.

In a separate jury trial, Matthew T. Evans, 25, McHenry, was found guilty of daytime breaking and entering and felony theft. Evans had pleaded not guilty to the charges and had requested acquittal.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered after the verdict, and bail was revoked.

The charges against the defendant were the result of an investigation conducted into the theft of approximately 17 guns, worth a total of $4,265. The firearms were stolen from James and Judy Smith's area residence, which was broken into on November 20, 1990.

In February of this year, several of the guns were found by the defendant's landlord after Evans had been evicted from his rented

Old Time Music Fest Slated At New Germany

An Old Time Music Fest will be held at the New Germany State Park Recreation Hall, near Grantsville, on Saturday, August 24. This will be an all-day event, slated to begin at 10:30 a.m. and continue until 7 p.m.

Various performers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia will be presenting old-time American folk music and some gospel numbers. Featured bands will be the Mill Run Dulcimer Band, Hammers & Strings, and the Dulcettes; however, all are welcome to participate. There will be an open stage from 1 to 2 p.m. and again from 3 to 5 p.m. for all who wish to perform. Jamming will begin at 11 a.m. and there will be a square dance at 5:30 p.m.

Concessions will be available, and all attendees are welcome to bring a picnic lunch. Lawn chairs, or blankets should also be brought along for comfort. Children's playgrounds, a lake, and hiking trails are also located on the premises.

This event is being sponsored by Hammers & Strings and the Dulcettes of Oakland, and is funded in part by Manor Home Center, the Hershberger Agency, the Garrett County Arts Council, and Maryland State Arts Council. For more information on this event or to sign up to perform, persons may contact Betty Mattingly at (301) 334-1901.

Flood Plain Ordinance Plan Being Discussed

Garrett County Planning and Zoning Director John Nelson this week requested direction on the adoption of a flood plain ordinance by the Maryland State Water Resources Administration (WRA) that incorporates state initiatives for tighter control of development in designated flood plain areas.

Nelson explained that a county ordinance was adopted in 1988, and that amendments to that ordinance would, as well as the state-adopted plan, maintain the county's eligibility in the flood insurance program.

It was noted by Nelson that if a county does not maintain that eligibility, residents could not afford to carry the insurance on their own and developers would not be able to obtain financing for development projects.

The commissioners voted unanimously to keep the county ordinance in place, with amendments, rather than adopt the state ordinance. Nelson noted that the state initiatives "go above and beyond" those required by the federal government, but that the county ordinance does meet the federal standards. With amendments, he said, the county ordinance would also be acceptable to the state.

The county's municipalities have received letters from WRA requiring them to adopt either the county or state version of the ordi-

Sanitary Comm. Proposes Change In Water/Sewer Rate Structure

Garrett County Sanitary District Administrator Wendell Beitzel, along with members of the sanitary commission, this week requested the support of the Garrett County Commissioners for a proposal that would change the way sewer and water utility rates are determined for users serviced by the Garrett County Sanitary District. The plan, according to Beitzel, would be "more economical and less cumbersome" for the county.

According to Beitzel, water and sewer rates will have to be raised this year because there has not been an increase in two years. "In order for the sanitary commission to make a responsible, reasonable and educated decision about those rate changes, we hired a specialist in rate studies." He noted that the commission wanted to be able to support the rate changes when they are presented at subsequent public hearings.

John Mayer, a utility rate consultant from Wisconsin, presented his report to the commissioners from a study he has been conducting for the county regarding the consolidation of rates. Mayer was hired by the sanitary commission to study and make recommendations concerning the county's current rate structure for both water and sewer facility users.

Mayer began his presentation to the county commissioners by stating that the "mixed bag" of various rate structures throughout the county is set up in an "extremely complicated" manner, explaining that no systems are uniform among the 24 different utility entities.

"I do this for a living, and I was confused," he said. He also noted that the present

Man Killed In Single Vehicle Crash Sunday

A young Grantsville man lost his life in a single vehicle accident which happened at 4:10 a.m. Sunday morning on Alternate Rt. 40, east of Zanier Road. The Garrett County Sheriff's Office investigated the fatal mishap.

Roger A. Wilhelm, 25, was traveling at an apparent high rate of speed when his 1990 Ford F-250 truck crossed the center line, entered the opposing lane of traffic, exited the roadway and struck a tree. The victim was reportedly killed on impact, or shortly thereafter.

The speedometer in the vehicle was frozen at 70 miles per hour, according to the police report. The Northern Rescue Squad and Grantsville Fire Department responded to the scene.

Local Police Charge Swanton Man In Connection With Hit And Run

The Maryland State Police and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office arrested and charged a Swanton man in connection with a July 17 hit and run in which 95-year-old Ray Russell Gnegy was killed.

Stephen Marvel Duckworth, 34, was charged with driving while revoked, driving an uninsured vehicle, and failure to remain at the scene of an accident involving bodily injury or death, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, McHenry Detachment.

The arrest was the result of an extensive investigation which began the day of the fatal accident by Tfc. D.W. Broadwater. Gnegy died shortly after being struck by an unknown vehicle as he rode a lawn tractor on the Pleasant Valley Road, southeast of Oakland.

A spokesman at the police barrack indicated that local law enforcement officials ran down more than 100 leads in the case and said there was a lot of input from the public.

Collecting vehicle parts at the scene of the mishap helped police determine that the suspect vehicle was a 1974 Lincoln Continental.

Events leading to Duckworth's arrest included his being stopped in a 1974 Lincoln at the Southern Car Wash by Garrett County Sheriff's Deputy Chris Feller. Feller noted that damage to Duckworth's vehicle was consistent with the condition of the vehicle police believed was involved in the crime.

Reportedly, a search warrant was obtained for the vehicle and additional charges are pending in the case. Duckworth remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $10,000.

Two More Rabies Cases Confirmed

Sanitarian Tina Buckel from the Garrett County Health Department announced yesterday that two additional rabies cases have been confirmed in the county, bringing the total number of confirmed cases to 17 this year.

A rabid skunk was discovered at the Ray Keister residence on the Old Frostburg Road. Reportedly, two vaccinated dogs killed the skunk. The dogs were given booster shots and will be watched closely. There was no human exposure.

A vaccinated dog fought with a rabid raccoon at the Garland Maust residence on the Beachy and Foxtown roads near Bittinger. Maust reportedly killed the raccoon.

Swanton Man Bitten By Rabid Beaver

Rabies case number 15 was confirmed last week by the Garrett County Health Department after a Swanton man was attacked and bitten by a rabid beaver along Savage River Road near Bloomington.

Harold McGregor was in his vehicle on July 31 when he apparently spotted the beaver along the road and decided to stop and photograph the animal. As he approached, the animal ran into a ditch and was hidden from view. As McGregor turned to leave, the animal attacked and bit his leg.

The beaver then reportedly attempted to attack several children who were playing in a nearby church yard. McGregor was able to shoot the animal and contact the health department.

McGregor began post-exposure treatment on the evening of the incident. No other humans came in contact with the rabid animal, according to Tina Buckel, sanitarian.

Cats Only Rabies Clinic

There will be a "Cats Only" Rabies Clinic on August 19-21. The schedule of the clinic will be announced, Ms. Buckel said.

Frostburg Composer's Work To Be Premiered At GLAF's Music Festival

Jon W. Bauman, professor of music at Frostburg State University, has composed an orchestral piece of music that will be premiered during the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's Symphony at Deep Creek. Bauman wrote the piece, entitled "Variations on a Fiddler's Tune," especially for the music festival and the Western Maryland area.

"I was asked to compose a piece for the festival with Western Maryland in mind," Bauman explained. "I was stumped at first, but then I thought, 'what could be better than a variation on a familiar fiddler's tune?' So I chose the popular "Orange Blossom Special" and built the piece on that." The Orange Blossom Special was the name of a train, and the tune is one of the most popular among fiddlers, often heard at fiddling contests.

The professor explained that the piece is in three sections, or movements, beginning with a "spooky" opening during which listeners will hear the vague haunting sound of a train whistle far in the distance. The second section, Bauman said, is a very lovely melody - elegant - "because there is an elegance about trains," he commented. The third movement is rhythmic and growing with an almost driving force that builds to a climax at the close.

Bauman has not yet heard the piece, "except in my head, of course," he said. He will hear it played for the first time by the Symphony at Deep Creek orchestra.

"Variations on a Fiddler's Tune" will be premiered on Thursday, August 22, during

Glendale Bridge Bids Opened By Commissioners

The Garrett County Commissioners, along with Garrett County Roads Department Engineer Lee Thorne, accepted bids this week for the Glendale Bridge renovation project, scheduled to begin this fall. The five bids ranged from approximately $2.8 million to $3.6 million, and were submitted by five contracting companies.

The bids were opened by Chairperson Brenda J. Butscher and then turned over to Thorne to be reviewed. Thorne will make his recommendation for the bid award in two weeks to the commissioners.

The project, however, is not a certainty since a $1 million interest-free state loan to help fund the approximate $3.2 million renovation project has not yet been absolutely confirmed.

Following the bid openings, Thorne presented an update on other county bridge projects, reporting that the 80-foot timber bridge to be constructed on River Road over the Casselman River in Grantsville would go out to bid by next week.

He also noted that two bridges in the Savage River area are in need of repair but permits have not yet been obtained from the Maryland Water Resources Administration.

The Buffalo Run bridge in Friendsville, said Thorne, is scheduled to be completed by the end of the month.

TOUCHING THE SKY, in fact, nearly going into orbit, is this youngster who obviously knows how to get the most out of a playground swing. It was unknown whether or not the boy's mother watched in horror as her son soared to such heights. The photo was taken by Craig Speicher during another successful Friendsville Day, held Saturday in downtown Friendsville. Great weather, excellent food, and a schedule full of fun attracted many hundreds of folks to the celebration, held in one of Garrett County's most historic towns. See more photos of activities in this newspaper.

"Readers of The Republican can get a close look at these prisoners by finding the Hospice ad in today's paper. Your donation for their releases will help Hospice expand its services and to continue to serve the terminally ill and their families in Garrett County," stated Brenda Butscher, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County, Inc.

Sheriff's Office Notes Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office logged several arrests this week on several charges, including forgery, battery, and driving while intoxicated.

Two persons were arrested for forgery, uttering, and theft less than $300 following an investigation conducted by Detective Sgt. D. Tucker. Maureen K. Barrett, 41, Oakland, and Shelby O. Stahl, 27, Bayard, W.Va., were both served arrest warrants on the charges.

Stahl was also charged with conspiracy, according to the police log.

David E. Sines, 34, Mtn. Lake Park, was served an arrest warrant on August 5. Sines was charged with uttering bad checks, according to the police record.

Gerald K. Thomas, 32, Friendsville, was recently arrested on the strength of a warrant. Thomas was charged with breaking and entering and assault against Linda S. Thomas, Accident.

Richard A. McCrobie, 26, Kitzmiller, was arrested for driving while intoxicated on August 1. McCrobie was stopped on Main Street in Kitzmiller by Dep. J. Sowers. The officer pulled him over for speeding, according to the report.

After signing the citation, McCrobie was released into the custody of a sober companion.

One juvenile and three teenagers were issued civil citations for underage consumption of alcohol on July 28. The Sheriff's Office was notified of a party being held on Oakland-Sang Run Road where several of the persons were under age 21. After arriving at the residence, Dep. C. Feller cited Adam J. Lucas, 19, Rechell J. Werdebaugh, 18, both of Oakland; and Jeff M. Wilson, 18, Deer Park, for underage consumption of alcohol. One juvenile was also cited.

In the same incident, Chester E. Friend, 21, Oakland, was charged for providing alcohol to an underage person, according to the report.

Ruth Fletcher Celebrates 100th

Ruth DeVore Hay Fletcher, a resident of Goodwill Mennonite Home, Grantsville, celebrated her 100th birthday, Wednesday, July 24, with a party arranged by her niece, Dixie Otto, of Springs, Pa., and the home staff.

Mrs. Fletcher was born and grew up in Salisbury, Pa., the daughter of Drucilla DeVore Hay and Calvin Theodore Hay. She was the eleventh of 12 children and all of her siblings are now deceased. After growing up in Salisbury, she worked in Baltimore, where she met, and in 1915, married Dr. Curtis L. Fletcher. After Dr. Fletcher completed dental school, he located in Wheeling, W.Va., where he practiced until his death in 1948.

The couple had five children: Jack Hay, who died at age 2; Kathleen King of Barberton, Ohio; Ailene McQuagge of Blountstown, Fla.; Curtis Lee of Barberton, Ohio; and Louise Hettle of Port Washington, N.Y. In addition, there are three living grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, living in West Virginia, Ohio, New York and Texas. There are also various nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Fletcher was primarily a homemaker, but was active in P.T.A. work during her children's school years and is a 68-year member of Miriam Chapter #1, Order of the Eastern Star, Wheeling. She made her home in Wheeling until the 1970's when she moved to West Palm Beach, Fla. She lived there until January 1991 when she moved to Goodwill Home.

Immediate family members attending the party were: Aileen and Max McQuagge, Blountstown, Fla., and Ruth King Sutton, Michelle Sutton, and Kathleen King of Barberton, Ohio. Illness prevented Lee Fletcher and illness in the family prevented Louise Hettler from attending. Also sharing the occasion were Mrs. Dixie Otto, Debra Barron, Lori, Christopher, Lindsey, Ohio, Mrs. Iola Lydick, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hay, Mrs. Alice Hay Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jackson.

Crime Rate Up Across State, But Down In Garrett

Crime in Maryland increased nine percent during the first half of 1991, according to a Uniform Crime Report prepared by the Maryland State Police Central Records Division. The report lists 141,264 offenses reported by law enforcement agencies statewide compared with 129,980 offenses reported during the same period in 1990.

Garrett County's crime rate decreased 15 percent, however, with a total of 271 cases reported in the first six months of this year compared to 319 cases during the same period last year.

"The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault, as a group, increased three percent across the state," said John Vespa of the Uniform Crime Reporting Section. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, Vespa said property crimes also increased last year. "The property offenses of breaking and entering, larceny and motor vehicle theft increased ten percent."

Law enforcement authorities in Baltimore City and 14 counties reported increases in the number of robberies which contributed to a 17 percent increase statewide for the six month period. "There were 9,132 robberies reported to authorities between January and June compared with 7,812 during the same period last year," Vespa stated.

The Maryland Crime Index report includes a comprehensive overview of county crime index trends. The most significant changes were noted in two Eastern Shore counties. The crime index total for Somerset County registered a 45 percent increase, while law enforcement authorities in Kent County recorded an 18 percent decrease in the index crime totals.

In Garrett County, there was a reduction in all serious crime categories with the exception of murder, forcible rape, and arson. The figures for each category, listing 1990 first and 1991 second, are as follows: murder, 0, 1; forcible rape, 2, 3; robbery, 2, 1; aggravated assault, 53, 36; breaking or entering, 81, 64; larceny/theft, 156, 149; motor vehicle theft, 27, 17; and arson, 3, 5.

The Maryland State Police Central Records Division serves as the central clearinghouse for statewide crime data. The Uniform Crime Reporting Section notes that any crime figure comparisons should not be made without first considering the individual crime factors in each region and county.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Charter Board To Meet August 12

The Garrett County Charter Board will meet Monday, August 12, in Room 315 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett Community College from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The guest speaker will be Victor Tervola from the Institute of Governmental Services at the University of Maryland.

The board members will be meeting with various department heads from county government at future meetings. All meetings are open to the public and all interested persons are welcome to attend.

Thefts, Property Damages Probed By GCSO

Several incidents of theft and/or destruction of property were reported to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week, with damages and losses totaling over $2,500.

Carlton Callis Jr. notified the Sheriff's Office on July 21 after he discovered that his 1985 Chevrolet vehicle had been vandalized. The incident occurred on July 20 between 12:30 and 3 a.m. when unknown persons smashed the windows on the vehicle, scratched the hood, and removed several items, including a sleeping bag, a tape case, pair of speakers, fishing poles, and other possessions.

The total loss in the incident has been estimated at $1500. There are apparently some suspects in the case, according to the police report.

A vacation home on Maynardier Ridge Road was apparently broken into recently and several items were stolen. George J. Quart, Silver Spring, owns the home and reported the breaking, entering, and theft to the Sheriff's Office last week.

The culprit(s) apparently entered through a window sometime between July 14 and August 2 and removed several rods and reels, a rechargeable flashlight, an air pellet pistol, and six brass throwing darts. The loss in the theft has been listed at $685.

In a separate case, John R. Lee Jr. reported a destruction of property incident that occurred on the night of August 3. Lee told police that he had parked his 1984 Ford Ranger in the lot at Brownings' Foodland. When he returned to his vehicle some time later, he noticed that someone had scratched the driver's side of the vehicle with a sharp object.

The scratch was made on the entire length of the truck, and the repair of the damage will cost approximately $200, according to the police report.

The theft of four rolls of roofing and one color television antenna was reported to the Sheriff's Office this week by Norman S. Lewis, Oakland. Lewis said he had left the materials in his yard and on his porch at his Cheeks Lane residence on the night of July 25, and the items were gone when he returned some days later.

The loss in the theft has been estimated at $185.

Thomas E. Malone, Ijamsville, reported to the Sheriff's Office that an unknown person or persons broke a double-pane window at his vacation home on Oak Hall Drive. The damage was done sometime between July 6-26. The damage estimate was set at $125. No items were missing from the home, according to the report.

Clarification

In last week's issue of The Republican, a story appeared concerning the arrest of three men for spotlighting deer. One man's age was not provided in the report, but has since been given by the Dept. of Natural Resources Police. He is Randy Lee DeWitt, 27, Oakland.

Dental Floss: Selection and Proper Use

Dental floss comes in a variety of types, flavors, and colors. The varieties stocked in most pharmacies and other outlets include waxed, unwaxed, ribbon, and tape. If you have not used dental floss, discuss the different types with your dentist or dental hygienist. According to the Handbook of Nonprescription Drugs, studies show no difference in plaque removal or the prevention of gum disease from the use of waxed or unwaxed dental floss. The American Dental Association offers six suggestions regarding the use of dental floss:

(1) Break off about 18 inches of floss and wind it around one of your middle fingers. Wind the rest around the same finger of the opposite hand. (2) Use your thumbs and forefingers with an inch of floss between them to guide the floss between your teeth. (3) Holding the floss tightly, use a gentle sawing motion to insert the floss between your teeth. (4) When the floss reaches the gumline, curve it into a C-shape against one tooth and gently slide it into the space between the gum and the tooth until you feel resistance. (5) While holding the floss tightly against the tooth, move the floss away from the gum and scrape the side of the tooth. (6) Repeat this procedure on the remaining teeth.

Remember to floss at bedtime so that food particles will not remain between the teeth all night.

Theme Chosen For GCC's 20th Anniversary Fete

"Twenty Years of Bright Beginnings" has been chosen as the theme of Garrett Community College's year-long 20th anniversary celebration beginning next month.

A committee of key college personnel has been meeting throughout the summer to make final plans for a series of special events to celebrate the occasion.

According to committee member Joan Crawford, the college wants the community to participate in these activities. "Many persons in this community have been a vital part of the college's history and growth," she said, "and we hope that they will now come back to the campus to help us celebrate this milestone."

The first activity will occur during the Garrett County Fair where the public will be invited to view the special historical display of photos and newspaper articles depicting the college's first 20 years. The collection will be exhibited in a small building with a hot air balloon tethered overhead.

Inside the building, a variety of children's activities will take place each afternoon. Characters dressed as clowns, Big Bird, Raggedy Ann, Care Bear, and Dorothy, will circulate through the fairgrounds handing out announcements of the events.

There will be face painting, a ping pong pond math problem, painting of a hot air balloon mural, a special mime show, featuring Dr. Gail Herman and Jesse Shimrock, and a concert by members of the GCC Pipes and Drums. Outside, a caricature artist will draw and sell portraits to benefit the GCC Veterans Club scholarship fund.

The official kick-off for the 20th anniversary celebration will occur at a campus reception on September 14, followed by a GCC Alumni ball that evening at the Silver Tree Inn.

Two special presentations have been planned for September at the college, both scheduled at the noon hour. A program on the Cuban Missile Crisis will be presented on September 18. "The Civil Rights Movement -- Then and Now" will be the program presented on September 25.

The public is invited to attend the programs and further information will be given at a later date.

BREAKING GROUND Sunday afternoon for a new 4,000-square-foot Christian education building was the congregation of Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Among those participating in the ceremony were, pictured left to right: Sheila Southerly, representing the church choir; Audrey Brenneman, Sunday School; Jenny Hady, Women of the ELCA; Leora Yaste, church council; Tim Bender, Byco Construction, contractor; Rev. Louise Knotts, pastor; Jeff Montgomery, building committee; Ralph Buckel, oldest male member; and Martha Glotfelty, organist and oldest female member.

residence. The landlord was in the process of installing new plumbing in the bathroom of the house when he discovered several firearms hidden behind a panel in the wall. He then contacted the Sheriff's Office, where an investigation had apparently already led officers to Evans as the thief.

Evans was remanded to the custody of the Garrett County Sheriff pending sentencing. Defense attorney for the defendant was John R. Thomas.

Duane E. Hare, 23, Grantsville, pleaded no contest to a violation of probation charge in court last week. Thayer then reimposed a one year prison sentence, suspended it, and ordered two additional years of probation. The judge also ordered the defendant to remain totally abstinent during the probation.

Hare's original conviction was manslaughter in 1987. He was operating a motorcycle while under the influence of alcohol when the cycle overturned, killing Charles R. Frye, 13, Accident, who was a passenger on the bike. The defendant's original sentence was three years in prison, with one year suspended.

In a separate case, Tracey E. Hartman, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) and was fined $300 plus court costs. Other charges against Harmen that were not prosecuted were driving while intoxicated and driving with an expired license.

The defendant was arrested on July 6, 1990, on Rt. 219 North near Mosser Road by the Maryland State Police.

Hartman's defense lawyer was Robert C. Hesson.

nance. The towns will have 90 days to make the decision, said Nelson, and the office of planning will be assisting the towns during the process.

The new state initiatives, said Nelson, were adopted for the purpose of prohibiting development along buffer areas of any stream.

Education Bd. To Meet 8/13; Agenda Noted

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, August 13, with executive session beginning at 10 a.m. and public session beginning at 1 p.m.

Topics listed on the agenda for the meeting include revisions to the elementary gifted and talented program, which is scheduled to be discussed at approximately 1:45 p.m. The GT program was cut last month by the board by eliminating two of the four teaching positions in the program. The possible reinstatement of the teachers was dependent upon state or federal financial aid for the removal of asbestos at Southern High School, which has cost the education board more than what was projected.

Also on the school board's agenda is a Southern High School status report, scheduled for approximately 3:15 p.m., and a petition from the Bloomington School district citizens.

The fiscal year 1992 budget will be discussed briefly at 3:30.

Public comment is set for 4 p.m., followed by the discussion of board concerns, including the 1991 MABE Convention, the retirement dinner, and information on community support for public schools.

All times are tentative.

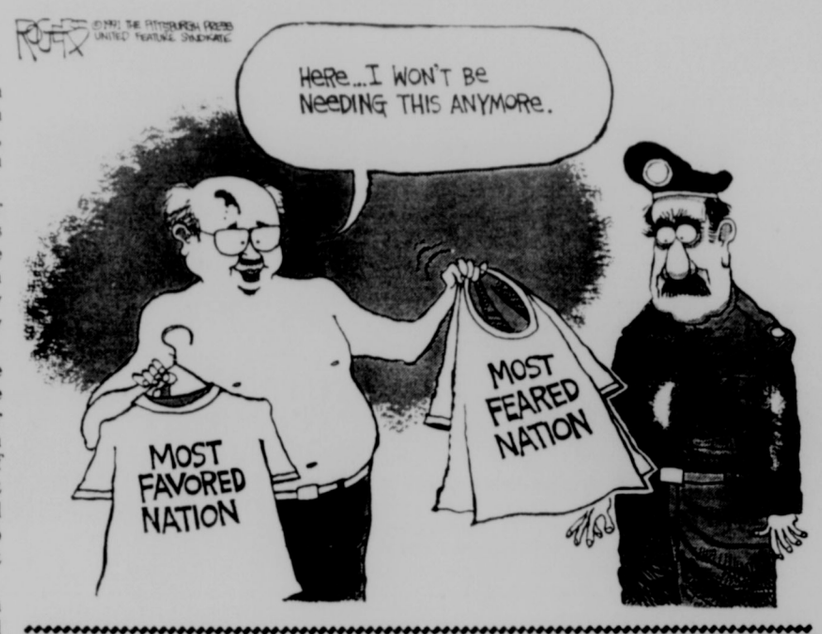
Recycling Basics...

The whole process of recycling is in its infancy in Garrett County and, while some steps have been taken in the past year or so to get a program off the ground, we have a long, long way to go before we can claim that our recycling efforts are successful.

We now have recycling bins at all of the dumpster sites in the county, which have various compartments for glass, cans, and paper; however, many of the "patrons" at those sites are ignoring the instructions on how the bins are to be used and they are simply dumping all of their unsorted garbage just the way they always have, into whatever bin is closest.

Human beings are creatures of habit and they are resistant to change, unless and until they are personally adversely affected by something. For example, many will pay no attention to good health habits until they have a heart attack as a result of such things as smoking, a poor diet, and/or obesity. It is not likely that members of the general public will just suddenly begin to become good recyclers if they do not personally experience some negative effects of not recycling.

We believe four basic things are needed before an efficient, effective recycling program can be successful in Garrett County.



First of all, we need more education. The county cannot just place these recycling bins at the dumpster sites and expect the public to use them or even know how to use them. There should be more monitoring of these sites to make sure people understand the proper procedures for garbage sorting and disposal.

Secondly, there must be more actual service provided by the county or state. For example, in those municipal areas where garbage pickup is provided, the trucks that are used for the collecting should be equipped with the same bins that are now available at the dumpster sites.

The third thing that is needed is some creative system of incentives for people to recycle. Just the fact that a major, nationwide recycling program would save millions of dollars and do wonders for the environment should be plenty of incentive, but unfortunately it is not. Perhaps one could come up with some kind of monetary reward or public recognition for good recycling efforts.

Finally, there need to be specific laws and penalties, or negative incentives, concerning personal recycling. In the municipal areas where trash pickup is provided, residents should be fined if their garbage is not properly sorted when placed out for pickup. The county could hire one officer to routinely patrol the dumpster sites and county landfill and issue similar citations to those who bring unsorted garbage.

Certainly other things could be done to enhance the prospects for successful recycling, such as a state law requiring a deposit on bottles and other containers. But until some of the basics are accomplished, our recycling efforts will continue to flounder.

To the Editor:

I am a native of Garrett County, who graduated from Northern High School in 1960, shortly after Wisp had started, so I feel I can evaluate the economic impact that Wisp has had on this area in the past 30 years. I also have worked on the lake since 1973, taught school in the county for four years, and have owned my own business here for 10 years.

I also have worked for Mr. and Mrs. Heise! They are hard-working, wonderful, professional people!

People who lack knowledge, or expertise regarding real estate or business on Deep Creek Lake do not realize if it were not for Wisp Resort or the Heise family, this area would be totally dead, particularly in the winter months. Also, many do not realize the mortgage, interest, taxes, utilities, payroll, etc., that our businesses pay to keep employees and a business running!

I sincerely hope the commissioners and our Department of Economic Development can come up with a sound plan to help Recreational Industries.

Sincerely,
Ruth Umbel, owner
Red Run Inn

To the Editor:

Over the years I have read many controversial letters concerning Mike Sines, director of transportation for the Board of Education, and am continually amazed he is still in that position. Truer words were never spoken when, in another letter to the editor, he was referred to as the "Czar" of Transportation.

Three years previously when myself and two other sets of parents requested two bus stops instead of one, due to the lack of safety, the "Czar" denied our request. His decision was then unanimously overruled by the members of the Board of Education due to the fact the area was unsafe. Why then now, when traffic has certainly increased with the building of new homes and a strip mine, does it seem all right to omit safety due to bureaucratic edicts and declare the Board's decision of three years ago null and void? How arrogant of the "Czar" to disregard the Board's decision and continue to harass the taxpayers of Garrett County.

If it's cut-backs our County Commissioners are worried about, cut out the real dead wood, Mr. Sines' $45,000-plus salary. Doing away with a few bus stops will never justify that salary.

I guess this is just another example of the "Good Old Boys' Club" at work again. Why not put these decisions in the hands of the bus drivers? They are better qualified to handle them. It doesn't take Mr. Richard Alexander, the former Chief of the Pupil Transportation Section for the Maryland State Department of Education, to decide; it takes common sense and a familiarity with Garrett County territory, both of which "Czar" Sines lacks.

Thank you,
Lori Rodeheaver

To The Editor:

I am normally not one who gets so worked up about something as to feel the need for wavemaking, but after the ridiculous, Marx Brothers-style service I've been getting, or rather, not getting, from the local TV cable company here in Oakland, I feel that something must be said. I am, of course, referring to Triax Cablevision. I recently moved, and in trying to get cable service connected at my new house, I have gotten the supreme runaround.

First of all, I have heard so much recently from current cable users about the poor reception that Triax has been providing lately, it almost convinced me to forget cable altogether. But I went ahead and made my order by calling the 800 number listed in the yellow pages. I should have known even then that there might be a problem, because the numbers listed for new service and for repair service are both 800 numbers, and are both different from the local Oakland number listed for the Triax office. This suggests that the office one calls for service is somewhere outside Garrett County, or at least outside Oakland, and the office here is merely a satellite office; no real help can be sought locally.

I made my initial order on Friday, July 12 (gosh, that seems a long time ago), and was told to my chagrin that the earliest date for hookup was Monday, July 22, over two weeks in the future. I reluctantly agreed to this, and to paying the $62.50 installation fee. At the time, I asked the receptionist to have the service person call me at work on the day of the appointment so that I might meet him at the house to let him in. She took my work phone number and assured me that he would call.

Cut to two and a half weeks later: July 22. When my wife and I went home for lunch, we had not yet received the call from the cable person, nor had he been to our house. During lunch hour, I called the service number again to confirm that this was indeed the day he was coming, and that he would call me at work. The receptionist checked the schedule and said yes, this was the day. She again took my work number so that he might call.

The rest of the day went by, I received no call, and when my wife and I got home, there was a note from Triax Cablevision. It said that the service person had been there at 3:30 p.m. and had found no one home, so we would have to call and reschedule. Extremely frustrated, I called the company and explained that the service person was supposed to call me at work, as I had requested, so that I might come home and unlock the door. Surely, I thought, they must have this problem occasionally, with the number of two-income households in the country; since they only make these service calls during work hours, they must need to make arrangements with people to be there to meet the service person. The person on the phone (it's been a different person every time) said that there had been no message on the original order for the man to call, and the fact that we had called earlier that day wouldn't have made any difference, because the service man would have already been on the road with his orders; there would have been no way to get the message to him.

All right, I said, let's reschedule. Can he come tomorrow? No. She informed me that the next possible date for installation was the following Monday, July 29, and that she was writing down the message to call us at work. Once again, she took the number. So we went another week without cable service, and on the following Monday, we left a note on the door: "Triax Cable Person: PLEASE call us at this number so that we can come and let you in."

The day went by. No call. When we got home, the note was gone, but there was no

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

by Governor William Donald Schaefer

Those of us who are elected by the people to make decisions for the good of Maryland have an important job: deciding how to spend the money that hard-working taxpayers contribute to the state. Often, it's a delicate balancing act, choosing which projects or programs will receive state support, and which will have to wait. But under the state constitution, the governor is required to submit a budget for each fiscal year, and before it can take effect, the legislature must approve it. Because of that process, your so-called "big spending" governor can't spend a nickel of state money without the General Assembly's permission.

In the past few months, I have asked legislators for their input in the final step of the process as well -- approving projects before the money is actually released by the Board of Public Works. I thought it was a pretty simple request: if there is a project in a legislative district or county that's coming up for approval before the Board, I have asked the legislators representing that area to send me a letter saying that they still support the money for the project. That way we can make sure -- before the money is actually released -- that the local officials still believe in the water or sewer project, community college construction, or whatever it is.

Legislators have had what you might call mixed feelings about the letters. Many don't mind going on record supporting a project that will help the people of their districts: they can take credit for seeing the project through, or they can let their constituents know that they're working hard for their districts in Annapolis. Some legislators even appreciate knowing that a specific project is coming up for final approval, because not all lawmakers sit on the committees that make the money decisions. A handful of the legislators, though, have taken offense to my suggestion that they write letters, even saying that the governor is resorting to "blackmail." I say it's a question of accountability.

What is the harm in asking a legislator, who is elected by the people to make decisions in the best interest of his or her constituents, to go on record -- in the final step of the budget process -- supporting a decision to release state money? That's blackmail? Are some legislators afraid they will be labeled "big spenders" because they agree to support projects and programs helping their districts? I would think that any legislator would be proud to step up and say, "I support this project for my area, because it will help the people who sent me to Annapolis."

There have been so many difficult choices to make this year because of the economy, which has steadily eaten away at our ability to provide people with the services they need. We have had to cut jobs, trim programs, and reduce our commitment to education, housing, the environment -- you name it. The same people who are often quick to say, "stop spending," or "cut government," may be the first to say, "I want money for my county." All I am asking is that the state delegates and senators let me know if they really do want to spend the money. To me, that's not a game. That's a government that truly represents the people.

If you have thoughts you would like to share with me, write me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

STOP IT NOW!
by Sherry Frantz

The general consensus seems to be that taxpayers are paying more than their fair share of the tab racked up by the state and federal governments, and that we're being asked to volunteer our time and services to efforts the government can no longer fund.

Well, in the first place, nobody asked me (did anyone ask you?) to do anything. It was more a case of, "If you want this or that service, you'll provide it for yourself at your own expense."

And, in the second place, if our governor can make a name for himself as the "Do It Now" governor, then I am adopting, "STOP IT NOW" as my phrase. Anyone care to join me?

Consider these paraphrases of recent news headlines:

State Park Volunteers Praised For Their Efforts

Senators Vote A $23,000 Raise For Themselves At The Midnight Hour

Social Services Programs Slashed

State Workers Being Laid Off

Taxpayers Will Bail Out Savings & Loans

Education Programs Cut

Taxpayers Funding Congressional Gymnasiums

Taxpayers Funding Congressional Child Care Services

Lines For Unemployment Checks Getting Longer

Health Insurance Unaffordable For Significant Number Of Workers

America's Children Now Poorest Of All Age Groups

23,700 Lives Will End This Year In Violent Death

Of course, I could go on and on (as I am wont to do, anyway) but I think I've made my point about the considerable -- and totally unacceptable -- inequities that exist in our nation today. I mean, it's not really that I think Congressional leaders don't deserve the annual salary they make, but, hey, could we maybe grade a bit more on the curve?

Sometimes, I sit in the newsroom and read aloud the headlines that gall me the most to anyone who will listen, and the most common reaction seems to be that the inequities are so large, the disparity so great, it is unfathomable to offer a workable solution. We hope that someone, somewhere, somehow will soon awaken to the problems and fix them, because we are all too busy playing the game of survival and trying to fit a quality life into the scenario.

But it's time now to realize that our legislative leaders are not responsible for our happiness. We are. And we are responsible for seeing to it that our legislators carry through with our wishes.

Let's start that process with a resounding "STOP IT NOW!"

Everybody!

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

WATER SAVING TIPS

"Watering lawns, gardens, and cars during the summer can easily double household water consumption," according to Al Frank of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR). "It's a fact of life . . . whenever more water is used outside, more is wasted there."

Frank is responsible for Maryland's Water Conservation Project in DNR's Water Resources Administration and he is appealing to homeowners to save water . . . and save money. Here are his suggestions for summer water use.

Water your lawn only when it needs it -- not just because it's Tuesday. Step on your grass. If it springs back up when you walk away, it doesn't need water. If it stays flat, it's thirsty.

Water during the cool part of the day. Early morning is best to avoid evaporation and to help prevent growth of fungus.

Deep soak your lawn, but remember - only when it needs it. About one inch of watering will soak down to the roots (about four to six inches) where it will do the most good. Frequent, shallow watering evaporates quickly and encourages shallow root systems and weed growth (such as crabgrass).

Mulch trees and plans. A layer of mulch, four to six inches thick, will slow evaporation and discourage weed growth.

Use a broom, not a hose, to clean your driveway and sidewalk. You'll save lots of water and get lots of good exercise. Remember, watering never made anything grow in concrete.

Get a small wading pool for your children. It's a fun way to cool off, instead of using a hose or sprinkler, and when they're done, you can re-use the water for your lawn.

Frank emphasizes, "Not every community is experiencing a water shortage, but wasting water is expensive . . . and not very smart."

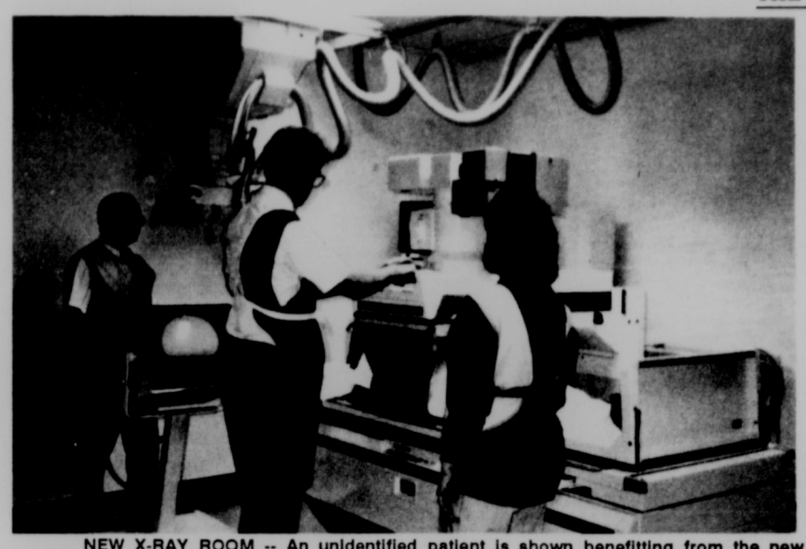
New State-Of-The-Art X-Ray Equipment Purchased By GCMH

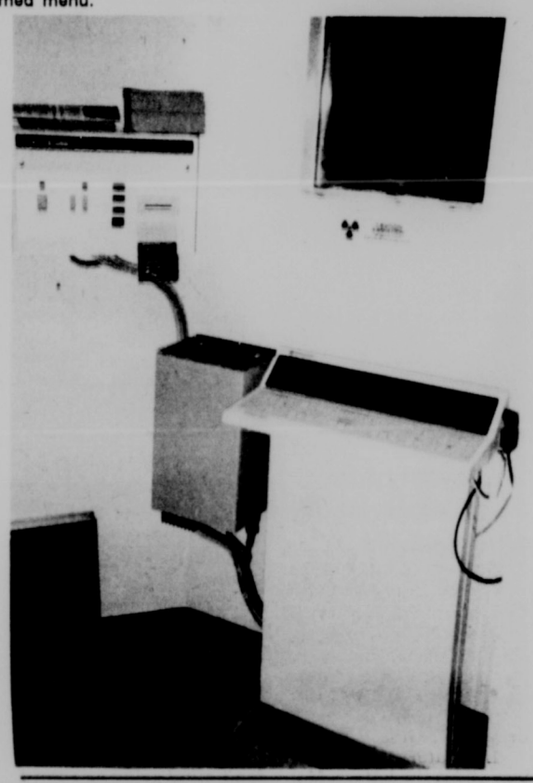
Garrett County Memorial Hospital announces yet another "state-of-the-art" service in the form of the Shimadzu Radiographic Fluoroscope, according to Mike Reed, director of the hospital's Radiology Department.

The new room, which is actually a revamping of an existing radiology (X-ray) room, allows for improved and more cost-effective methods of angiography (viewing the inside of the body's vessels) and injections of contrast (injecting the vessels with radiopaque fluid to allow for X-ray examination of the vessels), as well as traditional radiographic diagnostic techniques.



Reed indicated that the old radiography room was cost-prohibitive. For instance, the old method of femoral arteriographies (X-raying the femoral artery in the leg which is fed by the iliac artery that carries blood downward from the heart) involved a technique that manually positioned a patient several times during the process. With the Shimadzu equipment, the machine itself does the moving for a more precise picture. This procedure tells the doctor if blood is flowing freely in those main arteries of the body.

With the previous method of injection of contrast, it was necessary for the technician to change the exposure factor during the process. The new unit is preprogrammed to automatically change the exposure factor. Among the improved features of the Shimadzu is the increased personal safety to the radiology staff.



Reed noted that the cost study for the new radiography room was a joint effort of his department, administration, and the maintenance department. The new equipment and its installation cost approximately $245,000.

Reed added that the compact modules of the Shimadzu saved valuable space to permit more accessibility in the room. The staff is currently being in-serviced on the new Shimadzu equipment.

Reed stated, "With the addition of this room, we are keeping up with state-of-the-art technology in order to provide state-of-the-art care. I'm impressed with the new equipment. It is well made and because of the microprocessor design, it takes up less space than equivalent units other manufacturers deliver."

other evidence that anyone had been there.

Infuriated, we called the company again. He had been called off on a service call (someone had complained about the poor reception), and it had taken so much time that he had been forced to forego our call. But what happened to the note? No explanation.

So we had to schedule again. And again, the following Monday, August 5, was the earliest date. I should mention that every time we have called the company, the person on the phone has been extremely apologetic, very polite, courteous . . . as though the first thing they teach you when you go to work at Triax is how to apologize. They all seem to do it very well. And always a different person, so that we have to go through the entire story again.

The following Monday, August 5, was this past Monday. I took the day off, partly because I had some things to do around the house, and partly to make sure I'd be there when the guy showed up. Guess what? He didn't.

By 3:00, I was getting nervous. I called the apologetic receptionist, explained the entire situation, and was assured that we were on schedule for today. So what, I thought. But I said thank you and hung up. By 6:00, which is their closing time, I was furious. Besides the fact that I had taken the day off to meet this guy, besides the fact that this was the third time he had failed to show up on the prescribed day, I had had a dinner date for 6:00 that I was now late for. So I called the number which I now practically know by heart, recited the whole, stupid story to the baffled receptionist (this time it was a man), and, believe it or not, he asked if I wanted to reschedule.

I told him that I didn't want to reschedule, that rescheduling obviously didn't do any good, because I had already rescheduled twice for an appointment that I had made over four weeks ago! He apologized with feeling and told me that the head manager would call me at work in the morning and get this mess sorted out once and for all.

The next morning we got a call not from the service office with whom we've been dealing for three weeks, but the little Triax office here in Oakland. They told my wife (get this) that we already have cable! We've had it for two weeks, they said! They were supposed to have called us to notify us of this, but they had forgotten! All we have to do now, they said, is come down to the local office, pay our $62.50, and get the little box that is necessary for changing the channels.

At this point you may ask, didn't you turn on the TV and see if you were getting any channels in the last two weeks? Well, the problem is, the cable that comes into the house doesn't have the little screw-on connector on it -- it's just a piece of wire that comes to an end! I've been expecting the guy to come and put one on so that we can connect the TV! So we called the 800 number again to inform them that we need this service and that we're certainly not paying for two weeks of service that we didn't know we had, and the person there (a different person again) said that there was no indication in her records that it had been hooked up, and that she thinks the local person must be mistaken. However, they will send the guy today, Tuesday the 6th, and they will knock our installation fee down to $47.00 (which I still think is highway robbery). Needless to say, he didn't show up.

So now we don't know if we have cable service or not, we have no way to hook up the line so that we might find out, and we have two weeks' worth of service on our bill. We have rearranged our schedule three times, I have missed work, been late for an appointment, we're still going to have to pay an arm and a leg, and this is all apart from the fact that we have had to wait for about a month to get our cable service.

I think that it is infuriating that services like this, companies that have a monopoly on the market (there's no other cable service serving our area) can simply charge whatever they want and can give poor service, or no service, and still have no fear, because they have no competition. There is no incentive for them to do better. We, the public, just have to deal with them or have no service at all. I am seriously considering shopping for a satellite dish or an antenna for my house so that I don't have to deal with these people anymore, especially since there have been complaints of bad reception anyway. Who knows if having cable will be any better or different from just putting up an antenna? Surely an antenna wouldn't cost any more than, say, a year's worth of cable service, especially if the installation fee is $62.50!

I have never received poorer service from any other company than what I've been getting from Triax Cablevision in the past month. We'll see if it improves any in the future. If not, I'm having it disconnected and getting a good antenna.

Sincerely,
John R. McEwen

To the Editor:

In response to your July 18 Editorial suggesting our teachers voluntarily give up their meager pay raise for next year, it is our hope that your readers will realize how difficult it is to bear last place among our colleagues in the state. Just as it's difficult for most of us in our county to suffer the economic realities of our time and place, it would be unforgiving of us, not just for our own sake but that of our students, to accept less than we're worth and then give it back. We do hope your readers can understand our dilemma.

First, our pay increase is $150,000, not $400,000.

Secondly, the A&S didn't reject their raise, the Board didn't offer them one.

Thirdly, when you're last place in the salary rankings statewide, you really don't have much to give up.

Finally, the fact is that one of the reasons we're not even getting what the Board originally offered us before impasse, i.e., 3 percent, is that they want to restore the instructional material category to its pre-Southern High renovation figure. Consequently, over a half million dollars is being pumped into materials of instruction at the expense of a less-than cost-of-living raise for our teachers.

And as the possibility that our charity at home would score a lot of points with the public and the school board and probably place us in a better position for a higher raise next year, no one of us is holding our breath. Fact is that's pretty much what teachers have been doing here for decades and you see where it's gotten us.

We do appreciate your interest and support for our situation. What we really need is a concerned public and an enlightened electorate, including taxpayers, who have the foresight to see where we're all headed if we continue to insist open the "pay as you go philosophy" that robs our savings of the past and gives a free ride of no new taxes that jeopardizes the future "well-being" of us all. Someone surely has heard that you get what you pay for and that a community is judged by what it's willing to do to ensure the vitality of its future.

Garrett County can be a prosperous area and surely can do much more than it's doing for its citizens, especially those whom we will ask to lead us in the future.

Sincerely,
Tom Shaffer, UNISERV

To the Editor:

Last night, July 30, my parents took my sister, my friend, and me to Funland in McHenry to play miniature golf. Little did I know what magic the evening would bring.

As I was leaving the parking lot, I dropped a one-inch orthodontic retainer. We looked for the retainer for over an hour. During that hour many people came over to assist us in the search. Small children, adults, and teens, they all helped.

We were about to give up. That would mean that I'd have to admit to the orthodontist that I had lost my fourth retainer.

Then the manager of Funland offered us the names of a couple from Oakland who sell metal detectors. Jean and Ray Smarr came promptly to help us search for this minute piece of plastic with a one-inch piece of wire surrounding it. They searched for nearly two hours. It seemed hopeless! Then as dark had nearly arrived, my retainer was found! Mr. and Mrs. Murray were wonderful.

In the past five years that my family has been coming to Garrett County we have found the people very friendly and helpful. But last night the people who helped search made it a magical night that we won't soon forget. Thank you, Ray and Jean Smarr.

Heavy vehicle owners and operators interested in more information on which trucks, truck tractors, buses, etc., are subject to the tax and how to figure the tax, should call the IRS at 1-800-829-3676 to obtain Form 2290 and Publication 349, Federal Highway Use Tax on Heavy Vehicles.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Dailey, McHenry. A 1987 graduate of Hempfield High School, Lancaster, Pa., and a 1991 graduate of Frostburg State University, she is employed as an assistant accountant with Golden Age Festival Travel in Wildwood Crest, N.J.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Suzann Sykes Lorenzo, Cape May Court House, N.J., and the late Edward K. Sykes. A 1982 graduate of Lower Cape May Regional High School, he is a corrections officer at the Cape May County Sheriff's Department in Cape May Court House.

The bride was attired in a designer bridal gown of a lustre satin, with insets of English net sleeves and front and back yokes as well. The Victorian neckline was trimmed with Swiss embroidery and Venice lace with hanging pearls and crystals falling as a cascade from the neckline. The long juliet sleeves were also trimmed with the same lace and were a blend of satin and English net. The hemline was trimmed with a deep Brussels scalloped lace which flowed into the train. The train was a full "court train" and was appliqued with Swiss embroidery and Venice lace. The back of the gown was highlighted by this train and by the large satin bow at the lower back. The lace insets and appliques were heavily trimmed with sequins and pearls.

Jennifer wore her sister's headpiece and veil, which consisted of pearls and crystals with a fingertip length veil attached. Carol Cervi, McHenry, designed her cascading silk bouquet of peach and white rosebuds, lily of the valley, white spider mums, and ivy interspersed with baby's breath.

Lani Dailey Illick, of Dallas, Tex., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were: Daina Savage Dailey, Lancaster, Pa., Susan Sykes Tabor, North Wildwood, N.J., and Ann Sykes, Cape May Court House, N.J., all sisters-in-law of the bride; and Linda Fearnow, Hagerstown, friend of the bride. Megan Schlager, Carlisle, Pa., cousin of the bride, was her junior bridesmaid.

The bridesmaids wore tea-length, teal-colored satin gowns, with sweetheart necklines. Carol Cervi, McHenry, designed their ivory fans to match the bridal bouquet.

Edwards Sykes, Cape May Court House, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were George Dailey, Lan-caster, Pa., brother of the bride; Michael Tabor, North Wildwood, N.J., brother-in-law of the groom; Michael Agness, Audubon, N.J., cousin of the bride; and Israel Ayala, North Cape May, N.J., friend of the groom. Brian Fearnow, Hagerstown, friend of the bride, was the junior groomsman.

The groom and groomsmen wore black striped tuxedos, with tails provided by Dennis Fearnow of Ingram's Men Shop, Hagerstown.

The Catholic Mass ceremony had numerous personal touches added to the liturgy. James Illick, brother-in-law of the bride, sang the offertory song, "El Shaddi," a personal favorite of the bride. The groom's four aunts, Anna Montanna, Helen Maslanik, Mary Maslanik, and Barbara Dangovetsky, presented the offertory gifts. Selected readings by Jude Schlager, uncle and godfather of the bride, and Joseph Dangovetsky, cousin of the groom, were read.

During the Ceremony of the Candles, Lani Illick read a prayer while the parents lit two small candles. Then the wedding couple took these candles and lit the larger single candle, acknowledging their union as husband and wife. The bride's aunt, Sister Wanda Schlager, read the "Prayer of the Faithful," with references being made to Joe's father and both sets of grandparents. During the Communion, a German arrangement of "Ave Maria" was played. The mass programs were designed and produced by the bride's brother, George Dailey. The bride and groom left the church showered with birdseed from teal satin roses.

The couple was honored at a reception at the Holiday Inn, Grantsville. Carissa Rodeheaver, friend of the bride, hosted the event. Kevin Selby, McHenry, provided the music. A three-tiered fountain wedding cake with two heart-shaped cakes was made by Sharon Garlitz and cut by the bride's grandmother, Freda Dailey. Carol Cervi designed the floral arrangement for the cake, and she also created a cake top arrangement with the Precious Moments Porcelain sculpture "The Lord is your Light to Happiness." Table floral arrangements were designed by Sister Agnes St. Joseph.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Dr. and Mrs. George Dailey at their home in McHenry. Outdoor deck dining and a barbecue menu were the fare of the evening.

A bridal shower was given by her bridesmaids and aunt, Nancy Agness, at her home in Audubon, N.J., in March.

Rate Structure

system is set up in such a way that it is unaffordable to some county residents.

Beitzel further explained this problem by stating that many of the water/sewer districts in the county are small (Gorman, for instance, has 25 users) and, he said, "it is very difficult to charge the users the costs of those systems. He added that more costs will be incurred over the years because of inevitable repairs and maintenance to the systems.

Mayer presented graphs to the commissioners showing the differences in rates to all the districts in the proposed "universal" system as opposed to the "separate" system. A transition, or phase-in format, was also explained that would allow for a gradual increase to the affected users.

He added that Mountain Lake Park will be the district most affected by the percentage increase in water user utility fees although, he said, that increase would not be "significant." The Deep Creek Lake district would be hardest hit of the sewer districts.

Mayer stressed, however, that although user fees in certain districts would not increase significantly with the adoption of the "universal" format, small communities would realize significant decreases in user fees.

Commissioner John Braskey asked Beitzel about the affordability studies conducted in the past, to which Beitzel responded, "Affordability studies were conducted by Maryland Department of the Environment, but the enforcement division of that department also conducted facility studies." Beitzel emphasized that the facility studies superseded the affordability studies, stating, "We were ordered to put the systems in and then more and more regulations were added to the specifications, without the availability of state funds to help pay for the improvements."

Those improvements, he said, have to be absorbed by the county, and added that no reserve funds exist in the smaller systems. Some people may view this proposal as a way for the larger systems to subsidize the smaller ones, said Beitzel, but that is already occurring because reserve funds are pulled from one system to make up for a deficit in another.

Public hearings must be held in each of the various districts before the plan can be implemented.

Softball League Nearing Playoffs

As the 21st season of the Mt. Top Softball League winds down, the playoff picture is becoming clearer, as the top eight teams in each division will qualify for the post-season play.

The National Division has three teams battling for the seventh and eighth spots. Crosco's, Deep Creek Pharmacy, and Durst General Store all have to play each other in the last two weeks of the season. The top six positions are already established.

In the American Division, the fourth through eighth positions are set, while the first four spots are still up for grabs. Midtown Cinemas is currently in first place with a 33-3 mark, but must still play second place Kruk's (32-2) and Kitzmiller (30-4). American Burger Center is presently in fourth place.

The League held a 500 and under tournament recently, which included the Old-Timers League. Buffalo Coal and Holler's Wholesale Tree and Shrubbery had to split the first and second place winnings when Holler's tied Buffalo Coal in the fourth inning of the second game of the championship, 4-4, and the game had to be called because of darkness.

The Old-Timers League will hold its playoffs this weekend.

Out of this life I shall never take Things of silver and gold I make.
All that I cherish and hoard away
After I leave, on this earth must stay.
Though I have toiled long for a painting rare
To hang on the wall, I must leave it there,
Though I call it mine, and boast its worth,
I must give it up when I leave this earth.
All that I gather, and all that I keep
I must leave behind when I fall asleep.
And I often wonder what I shall own
In that other life, when I pass alone.
What shall they find, and what Shall they see, in the soul that Answers the call for me?
Shall the Great Judge learn
When my task is through,
That my spirit has gathered some riches, too?
Or shall at last it be mine to find
That all I'd worked for I'd left behind?

Local Legion Team Concludes With Winning Season, Eyes Next Year

The Garrett County Junior American Legion baseball team concluded its season last week, losing to Farrady Post of Frostburg in the Mountain District finals, but Coach Ed Wildesen is proud of his team's efforts this year and is already enthused about the prospects for next season.

The local hurlers finished with an overall 22-17 mark, 10-9 in district play, and their season included victories over such powers as Morgantown, Beckley, and Elkins, W.Va., Lorraine, Ohio, Somerset and Mt. Pleasant, Pa., and Farrady Post, which just yesterday captured the state championship.

"In 1988 we were 1-7 against Cumberland and 3-5 against Westernport," Wildesen said. "In the last three years, we have gone 13-4 against Cumberland and 14-5 against Westernport. Since 1989, we have a 6-13 record against a very good Frostburg (Farrady) team.

"The thing to remember about Frostburg is that their team this year is the same team that won the state title in both junior and senior division Little League and did quite well in U.S. regional play. Seven of their nine starters from last year's district championship team were back this year, and six of those seven will be college sophomores this fall," Wildesen said. "We had three college players."

This season against Frostburg, Garrett County won once, 6-4, lost 6-5 in extra innings, fell 11-3 in a game that was 5-3 until the eighth inning, and lost again 8-7 in the playoffs.

Garrett County has finished first, second, and second in the district the past three seasons and Wildesen says he is already excited about next season, when 10 veteran players will be back.

"Going into the season we will have a combined total of 17 years of Legion baseball experience," the fourth-year coach said. "Two of our players (Brett Rice and Ritchie Baldwin) will be in their fourth year) and three (Garth Glotfelty, Britten Martin, and Brian Free) will be in their third year."

Meanwhile, Frostburg and Cumberland will lose all of their top players and Westernport will be losing its two top pitchers.

"The Allegany County teams have such tremendous advantages over us," Wildesen said. "Their players have a much shorter distance to travel for practices. Besides Legion ball, they also have a rec. league that they play in, so they are playing baseball every day of the week. Plus, our team is made up of players from one of the poorest counties in the state and one of the poorest states in the Union (West Virginia). Our players all have jobs and they sometimes have to miss games, or play tired. I'm not saying the other teams don't have players who work; it's just that their percentages aren't as high."

Wildesen commented on the efforts of individual players, particularly singling out Kevin Green, Charlie Plaugher, Brian Free, and Ritchie Baldwin.

"Kevin and Charlie got together and hit every day, and it showed," he said. "Kevin became one of the two most feared hitters in the district, with Scott DeHaven of Frostburg being the other one.

"Charlie is the epitome of the self-made player, taking his athletic ability well beyond the limits. Also, he was the only player to make all 39 games this year."

Wildesen described Free, the team's number one pitcher, as "the absolute student of the game." He said, "All he wants to do is play and learn. His mental toughness was questionable last year, but no one intimidated him by the end of this season." Free recorded wins over Morgantown, Cumberland, and Frostburg.

Wildesen called Baldwin his "relief pitcher extraordinaire," saying, "If the game's on the line, I want Ritch pitching for me in the late innings. What's nice is that he wants the ball in those tough situations."

He said second-year player Britten Martin had "a very nice year," particularly offensively, and first-year player Dave Kurtz played well at the catcher position. "Dave's ability to throw out runners was that of a college player, as was his intelligence in calling the pitches during the course of the season," Wildesen said.

Chad Sines filled many roles this year, from center to right to left field. "It was nice to have a player like Chad to move to the leadoff spot when Garth (Glotfelty) got hurt. He did everything we asked him to do."

The team sustained a major blow when both Glotfelty and Rice were benched for the last third of the season because of injury. "We struggled when they got hurt, but the others picked up the slack very well," said Wildesen.

Randall Ours, who concluded his Legion ball career, can "do it all," Wildesen said, adding, "he can hit, run, and throw. I'll never forget Randall's hit that drove in the winning run against Frostburg in a 16-inning game in 1989." Ours will continue to play for Potomac State College this fall.

Other first-year players were Shane Skipper, Chad Cooper, and Wes Alt. "These three players have a wealth of talent and, with Kurtz, will make our veteran players even better next year, as will Doug Brenneman. Doug saw limited playing time this year, but he is very much a part of our plans for 1992. He needs to be commended for his loyalty and dedication.

"Shane did such a nice job playing so many positions - catching, all outfield positions, second and third base. He also showed the kind of speed needed to excel in Legion ball."

As a general wrap-up, Wildesen said that he received many compliments from umpires, coaches, and others associated with Legion baseball, noting how solid the Garrett County program is and how far it has come in recent years. "I enjoy Legion ball more and more each year," he said. "It provides great experiences and lots of opportunity to meet new and interesting people, not only for the players, but also for us coaches. We are growing and getting better, primarily because of the dedication and sacrifices made by our players."

the second concert of the music festival. To honor Bauman's work for the festival, a buffet dinner will be held prior to the concert at the McHenry House. Audience members are welcome to attend the dinner and should make reservations for the event by noon on Monday, August 19. Reservations may be made for both the dinner and the concert by calling the Garrett Community College box office at 387-6666.

Dr. Bauman's compositions have been heard across the United States at universities and in public performances, and have been broadcast over radio systems in Germany and Austria. His "Sonus" for timpani and piano was premiered this past spring and will be presented again this fall in Pittsburgh. His compositions are varied, including orchestral works, choral, band, chamber music, opera, and piano pieces.

He received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Colorado, and went on to obtain a master of music and doctor of musical arts degrees from the University of Illinois. He also received a Fulbright grant in 1965 to study with Bernd-Alois Zimmermann in Cologne, Germany.

Dr. Bauman first taught general music in the Chicago public school system, and in 1970 joined the faculty at Frostburg State University. In addition to his duties in theory and composition instruction, he directs the jazz ensemble. Bauman is recognized in over two dozen national and international biographical reference books.

The composer/professor has been a resident of Western Maryland for 20 years, and said he is "still delighted to be here." He resides in Frostburg with his wife, Carole.

Earns Top Score

Members of the team, in addition to VanSickle, were: Jaime Schmidt, the daughter of Jim and Dixie Schmidt of Swanton; Jon Jackson, son of Bob and Joan Jackson of Oakland; Jennifer Morgan, daughter of Jim and Carolyn Morgan, Friendsville; and alternates Callista Cline, daughter of Sue Kisner; and Tina Carr, daughter of Steve and Kathy Wiley, Accident. VanSickle is the son of Fred and Cissy VanSickle, McHenry. Jay Jackson, daughter of Bob and Joan Jackson, competed with a combined junior team made up of Allegany and Garrett County participants. She also competed in the horsemanship contest. All are members of the Saddle Tramps 4-H Club.

Although top-scoring individual, VanSickle will not be able to compete in the national contest because he was an intermediate on a senior team. As a matter of fact, several other members of the team are also intermediate age, thus preventing the state's first-place team from competing nationally this year. Since the team does not compete nationally this year, however, they will be permitted to compete as a team in next year's state contest, which may make next year another winning year for the Garrett County team.

While at the 4-H Round Up, VanSickle and Jon Jackson also presented a team demonstration on checking pulse and respiration on endurance horses, for which they placed second.

All competitors then took a horsemanship test. This was given to test individual knowledge of equipment and characteristics. Jaime Schmidt placed third and Jason VanSickle tied for fourth place.

According to Extension Agent Ted Sprangel, this is the first year that a Garrett County team earned top honors in this relatively new contest; however, it is believed that several years ago, an Allegany County team placed first.

PROPER FOOD PREPARATION DISPELS BACTERIA SCARE

by Irmgard R. Koscielniak

When homeowners warm the grill for outdoor cooking, they could be subjecting themselves and their families to a mild case of preventable foodborne illness if they don't observe common sense food safety precautions.

The symptoms probably will include headache, abdominal pain, and diarrhea. These symptoms can occur anytime within two to 10 days after eating undercooked chicken or other meat, including fish. Large outbreaks occur most often in May and October, while the number of individual cases tends to peak in midsummer at the height of the barbecue season.

The malady being described is campylobacteriosis, probably the most common cause of summertime foodborne illness -- and the major year-round cause of diarrhea -- according to Dr. Mark A. Kanton, food and nutrition specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

As with all foodborne illnesses, the persons most susceptible to campylobacteriosis are the very young, the elderly, and those with immune system disorders. Young men cooking for themselves also are frequent victims due to lack of knowledge about food safety and kitchen sanitation.

Contaminated food is the usual cause, since direct person-to-person transmission is very rare, Dr. Kantor notes. Only a few hundred of the bacteria cells cause illness.

Although its symptoms can be temporarily debilitating, campylobacteriosis is rarely fatal, Kantor points out. A 10-year study by the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., indicates only two deaths from "campy" in the entire nation during the decade, 1973-1984. By contrast, there were 37 deaths -- and far fewer cases -- from botulism.

As with all bacteria-caused foodborne illness, campylobacteriosis is entirely preventable when proper cooking and handling procedures are followed.

Kantor recommends these steps:

Thoroughly cook all meat, poultry and fish. Use a meat thermometer if possible. Make sure that interior temperatures of meat reach at least 160 degrees F. Heat poultry to at least 180 degrees F, or until the juices run clear.

If using a microwave oven, rotate the meat manually if there is no automatic rotation device. This will help to insure uniform heating. Use the temperature probe if you have one. For outdoor cooking, try to use a grill with a cover.

Thoroughly clean hands, utensils and surfaces that touch raw meats. Don't place cooked meat back on an unwashed plate. Do not eat uncooked food, such as salad greens, that may be contaminated with juices from your meats. Never reuse marinade.

Refrigerate or freeze cooked meat and poultry within two hours after serving -- within one hour on a hot day when temperatures are above 90 degrees F. Keep your refrigerator at 40 degrees F or below. Remember that refrigeration or freezing does not kill bacteria. Only thorough cooking does that.

Never taste-test uncooked meats. The bacteria that cause illness do not necessarily make foods look, smell or taste unusual. If throwing away doubtful food, wrap it securely so humans or pets won't eat it by mistake.

Campylobacteriosis has been known to animal and poultry health practitioners for a long time, according to Dr. Edward T. Mallinson, Extension poultry veterinarian and associate professor in the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

But the malady was first recognized as a human illness in the 1970's, and it has been reportable to the CDC only since 1978, Mallinson notes.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture pamphlet (FSIS-40) reports that unchlorinated drinking water has caused outbreaks of campylobacteriosis affecting thousands of people. But large outbreaks caused by eating undercooked poultry are far less common. Other undercooked meats, and raw or improperly pasteurized milk, also have been responsible.

The live bacteria which cause campylobacteriosis have been found in the intestinal tracts of humans with no outward signs of illness, as well as in a wide array of animals and birds. While the bacteria also have been found on the surfaces of eggs, there is no conclusive proof that eggs have been responsible for any outbreaks of campylobacteriosis.

Responding to a recent series by a Washington, D.C., television station, Maryland's Mark Kantor discounted the accusation that a high percentage of chicken carcasses sold to consumers are contaminated by the bacteria which cause campylobacteriosis.

"Who eats raw chicken?" Kantor asked. If chicken is handled and cooked properly, there is no danger from campylobacteriosis or any other bacteria-caused foodborne illness.

To help prevent bacterial contamination of cooked foods, Kantor advises all food handlers -- whether at home or on the job -- to always wash their hands with warm water and soap for at least 20 seconds after each trip to the bathroom.

The inspired SandwicH

Hot or cold, open-faced or triple-decked, sandwiches are starring in menus all across the country. According to the 1990 Menu Census, more than 99 percent of all U.S. households eat sandwiches. Whether packed for a portable lunch or enjoyed at dinnertime, about 148 million sandwiches are prepared in homes nationwide every day.

Restaurants also serve their share of inspired sandwiches. According to the National Restaurant Association, there has been a 55 percent increase in the number of sandwiches offered on restaurant menus in 1989 compared to 1984. Restaurant Business, an industry publication, notes that people like sandwiches because they are easy to handle and often combine an entire meal's worth of ingredients into one neat, portable package.

Ham and cheese is the nation's most popular cold sandwich, according to a 1990 National Eating Trends report. But don't let your imagination stop there. Try a variety of flavorful bread, meat and cheese combinations to inspire your own sandwich creations.

First choose the meat from the wide variety of cold cuts available in your supermarket's refrigerated section. Indulge your taste buds with traditional favorites like turkey and bologna, or the heartier flavors of cotto salami or smoked ham. Each is made with select cuts of meats, complemented with robust spices.

Layer your cold cuts with the smooth flavor of process cheese food slices. Mix and match ready sliced American, Swiss and sharp cheddar cheese with your favorite meat (70 percent of all sliced cheese goes into sandwiches). Look for a brand made with five ounces of milk per slice, rather than imitation slices made mostly with oil and water.

Try these recipes for hearty sandwiches sure to inspire mealtime applause at your house.

DOES YOUR BABY HAVE NORMAL HEARING?

Watch out for early warnings about possible hearing problems. A newborn baby usually becomes startled at a sharp nearby handclap. At three months he should blink his eyes or move at unexpected loud noises. At 12 months, babies can hear and turn toward a soft voice three feet away.

If you suspect trouble, consult your physician. We carry many medicines Doctors specify for ear problems. Babies' ears are sensitive and should always get speedy medical attention.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

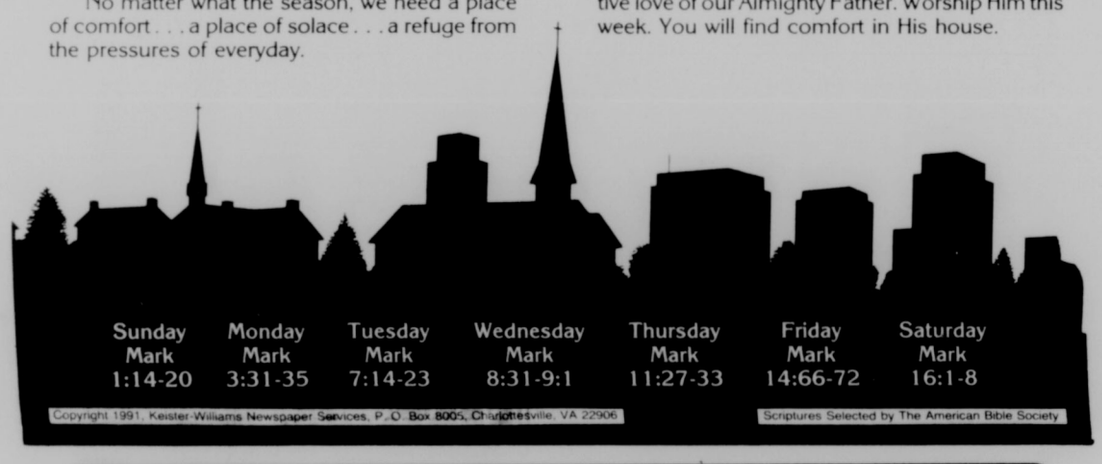
Solace in the Shadow



Perhaps the occupants of these chairs have gone for a swim in the surf or a stroll on the sand on this hot August day. No doubt, however, they will soon return to their comfortable spot on the beach, protected by the shadow of their umbrella, where the sand cannot scorch their feet, nor the sun burn their skin.

No matter what the season, we need a place of comfort . . . a place of solace . . . a refuge from the pressures of everyday.

Enter God's house knowing that you shall find a place of comfort and relief. In Isaiah 25:4-5, we are assured that God is our "shade from the heat" . . . and Isaiah praises God as he further proclaims "thou dost subdue the noise of the aliens as heat by the shade of a cloud."

Seek your solace in the shadow of the protective love of our Almighty Father. Worship Him this week. You will find comfort in His house.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MORE THAN SORRY

August 11, 1991

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 9:1-37.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 24.

Someone—and I've forgotten who—once said, "The universe is remarkably arranged: God loves to forgive sins and I love to commit them."

Whoever he was, I think he didn't really understand the Christian faith he thought he was mocking. His misunderstanding of God's forgiveness is a common one, even, it would seem, among some Christians. According to this view, Providence has arranged a rather salutary cosmic division of labor: it is our job to be sinners and God's to forgive.

I call it the "spoiled-brat syndrome." We've all seen it in real life: a child who has learned that it is okay to get in trouble so long as he or she says "I'm sorry," and gets a doting pat on the head. Very often these children become "spoiled-brat" adults. They never worry about their wrongdoings because they have found that there are always some people who are willing to dispense what German theological Dietrich Bonhoeffer called "cheap grace"—forgiveness that doesn't cost anything—to the forgiver or the forgive.

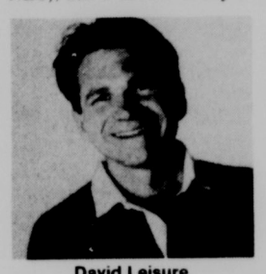
But forgiveness that doesn't cost anything isn't worth anything. Grace is not "cheap" but the most expensive commodity on earth. Just because God is willing to give it to us as a gift doesn't mean it doesn't cost him anything. In fact, he paid a terrible price: his own Son, Jesus Christ, on a cross.

If grace is inexpensive—to God—then it can only be precious to us who receive it. If we accept it carelessly, as if it weren't all that much of a gift, as if God were only doing what he's paid to do, then we cannot really have it. The gift is free, but we can't have it unless we are aware of the cost of this gift.

And how do we come to realize the cost of God's grace? The answer: through sincere confession and contrition. When we confront ourselves with the gap between what God has created us to be and what we have done with our lives, there must be a genuine remorse at having so greatly missed the mark. None of us who takes a hard look at our lives can come away from that inventory with satisfaction. Actually, the more we grow in God's grace, the more we realize just how greatly we have missed the mark. The closer we are to God, the more we realize our failures and shortcomings.

When Ezra assembled the people of Israel to confess their sins, he wasn't looking for or expecting a divine "quick-fix." Both Ezra and the people knew that real contrition meant more than saying "I'm sorry," which is really just the starting-point. God looks for more from us than just being sorry and we want more than just a pat on the head and an indulgent smile.

Ezra recited the outline history of his people, noting the faithfulness of God and the recurrent faithlessness of his people. Note that he does not offer any excusses, alibies or self-justification. Note that he does not lay the sins of Israel to ignorance. Some sin, to be sure, is mostly ignorance. But more often it is what Ezra desbribes, willful disobedience: "Yet they acted presumptuously and did not obey thy commandments, but sinned against thy ordinances, by the observance of which a man shall live, and turned a stubborn shoulder and stiffened their neck and would not obey." (9:29).



On the human plane, true contrition rarely goes beyond being "sorry." We seldom hear a confession that admits that the sinner simply did that which he or she knew was wrong and against God's will. Maybe that's why so many people have a hard time believing that they have been forgiven—because their repentance has never gotten beyond "being sorry."

COVER STORY

Leisure gets technical on NBC's 'Empty Nest'

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

Some actors swear they'll never compromise. But the only reason David Leisure, who plays obnoxious neighbor Charley Dietz on "Empty Nest" (airing Saturdays on NBC), has a career today is that he did just that.

"Originally, I went to Hollywood to be an actor," he recalls. "But I didn't work for 10 years. So I finally said, 'I've gotta approach this more as a business.' That's when I got into commercials."

It was commercials that turned Leisure, still best-known as the compulsive liar in the Isuzu car ads, into a star. And once he made the move, he discovered he wasn't compromising as much as he initially thought he was.

"Because the artistic part of it (acting) is so much less than you can possibly imagine," Leisure explains. "The rest of it is very technical. In TV and commercials and movies, you don't have time to rehearse. You have to be able to just punch in."

These days, Leisure is doing all his punching in on "Empty Nest."

"I'm always hoping they expand my character to give him more dimension," he says. "But he's sort of the comic relief in a comedy. He comes in and he's gotta be so outrageous that these people look normal. I pretty much know where I go. I go to the kitchen table, I hit on Barbara (Kristy McNichol), I insult Carol (Dinah Manoff), Harry (Richard Mulligan) goes, 'Get out,' and I go, 'What did I do?' "

Still, it's a lot different from working in commercials.

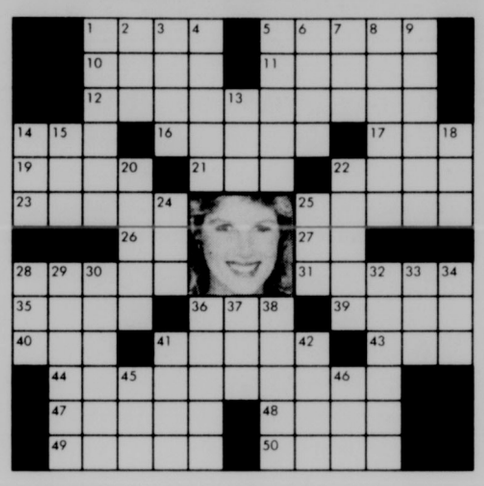
"You have to be a technician to do (commercials)," says Leisure. "You have a sentence to do with information in it, and you have to get it out in the exact amount of time. They say, 'Add a second here; take off an eighth of a second there.' So you work in these little short, precise bursts. Whereas on TV you have a little bit more latitude. Not a lot, but a little bit."

But the results of it rarely show up on screen.

"TV, they're clever," Leisure says. "They'll go ahead and let you do your acting thing. And then they'll take it out. I'll set something up so great, and they'll cut to the joke – just cut right to it!"

And in the static world of sitcoms, even when something happens, nothing really happens. Take the time that Charley and Carol, who purportedly despise each other, actually slept together.

"Sitcoms just kill me, because you do the show in 23 minutes, and by the end of 23 minutes, not only was it OK that we slept together, but it never, like, happened," says Leisure. "Everything was fine, and nobody ever talks about it. Hey, I wish my life was like that!"



David Leisure (l.) and Richard Mulligan play Charley Dietz and Dr. Harry Weston, respectively, on "Empty Nest." The popular comedy series airs Saturdays on NBC.

In "The World's Oldest Bridesmaid," Donna Mills portrays a lawyer in the fast lane whose career-driven life is transformed when she falls in love with her male secretary. In the process, she re-examines her priorities. The 1990 TV movie is rebroadcast Sunday, Aug. 11, on CBS.

FRIDAY

Hugh Downs and Barbara Walters are the anchors of "20/20," which airs Friday, Aug. 16, on ABC. Walters lends her remarkable interviewing skills, and Downs offers both a calm presence and reportorial expertise to the news program, which is about to enter its 14th season.

IN FOCUS

Understated, tasteful, hip, socially conscious – an accurate description of Paul Simon and his music if you're a fan. And if that's the case, don't miss "Paul Simon Live: Born at the Right Time Tour: One Night Only," airing on HBO, Thursday, Aug. 15. This is really a live show, and no doubt Simon will perform selections ranging from his early days with his best pal Art Garfunkel to his current album, "The Rhythm of the Saints."

IN FOCUS

"Manon of the Spring" is the 1986 sequel to "Jean de Florette." Jean's daughter, Manon (Emmanuelle Beart) has grown up into a free-spirited goatherd. The despicable Cesar (Yves Montand) and Ugolin (Daniel Auteuil) have been thriving since they caused Jean's death. Manon discovers that the villagers knew of the plots against her father and kept silent. Revenge is sweet. It airs Friday, August 16, on PBS. (Check local listings.)

IN FOCUS

This week will mark the 14th anniversary of the apparent death of Elvis Presley. On Wednesday, Aug. 14, the two-hour syndicated special "The Elvis Files" (check local listings) takes up the supposed "mysteries" surrounding the King's demise – including whether or not it really happened. Airing live from Las Vegas, Nev., (where else?) the special will also review such highlights as Elvis' 1970 meeting with President Richard Nixon (l.).

IN FOCUS

"I hated anything that seemed normal. I was always looking for the exotic. I always wanted something unknown – at least unknown to northern Minnesota," says Jessica Lange in the opening of "Crazy About the Movies: Jessica Lange: It's Only Make-Believe," airing Tuesday, Aug. 13, on Cinemax. The special looks at the personal life and career of the actress, with exclusive interviews with family members and colleagues.

Brawn over brains can't save 'Commando'

BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

Since his 1977 debut in the sinew extravaganza "Pumping Iron," Arnold Schwarzenegger has demonstrated that flexing the noncranial muscles can turn a huge profit. Unfortunately, even physical bulk and heavy firepower couldn't save the 1985 feature "Commando" (ABC, Aug. 11) from a deadweight script and the schlocky direction of Mark Lester. Schwarzenegger plays a special-operations-strike-force colonel who is forced out of retirement when his daughter (Alyssa Milano of "Who's the Boss?") is kidnapped. Although "Commando" had great success at the box office, Schwarzenegger has made a noticeable effort since to steer clear of such low-cost, low-quality projects.

Schwarzenegger and Milano

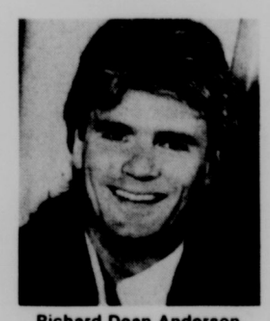
• Alex McArthur returns as the roving cowboy Duell McCall in "Desperado: The Outlaw Years" (NBC, Aug. 11). In this TV movie, McCall is joined by the mannerly Richard Farnsworth as Sheriff Campbell, who commissions McCall to hunt down his wife's murderer in exchange for clearing McCall's name. Roving thespian Brad Dourif (the voice of "Chuckie" in "Child's Play") is an enthusiastic journalist who wants to write McCall's life story. Lise Cutter returns as McCall's lover, and Whip Hubley, James Remar and Deon Richmond also star.



• Romance between secretaries and their bosses seems as old as the Industrial Revolution, so the premise of 1990's "The World's Oldest Living Bridesmaid" (CBS, Aug. 11) is not as implausible as the tale suggests. But in this inversion of the business cliche, the boss, a successful attorney, is a woman (Donna Mills) who falls for her younger male secretary (Brian Wimmer).

• Clint Eastwood directed and stars in "White Hunter, Black Heart" (HBO, Aug. 17), the fictionalized account of director John Huston's maelstrom journey to Africa to direct "The African Queen." John Wilson (Eastwood) is a grandstanding director with a supremely masculine exterior that hides uncertainty, and often, ineptitude. Peter Verrill (Jeff Fahey) is Wilson's collaborator and the script writer who keenly observes the various absurdities of Wilson's life, including the most troubling — Wilson's desire to kill an elephant while filming on location in Africa. His quest jeopardizes the production while posing an existential crisis for Wilson. Eastwood's direction and his interpretation of Huston wavers between affected gestures and grace, but his film is earnest.

TV DIALOGUE

BY TONI REINHOLD

RICHARD DEAN, HARRY AND DEAN – Are Richard Dean Anderson and Harry Anderson related? Also, did Richard Dean Anderson play the role of Almanzo Wilder in "Little House on the Prairie"? – D.T., Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada

Richard Dean Anderson

Richard Dean Anderson and Harry Anderson are not related. Almanzo was played by Dean Butler, a native of Prince George, British Columbia, Canada. "Little House on the Prairie" was Butler's only regular series.

FAMOUS McCARTHYS – I vaguely recall that actor Kevin McCarthy has a famous sister, but I can't remember her name or if she is an actress. Can you shed some light on this? – E.L., Rockland, Maine

Kevin McCarthy is the brother of the late writer Mary McCarthy.

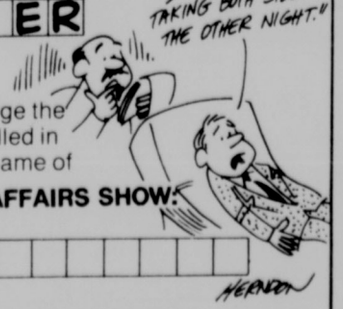
CASHING IN – When I read about how much today's actors are paid to appear in movies, I laugh because many of them can't compare to the stars of yesterday, who I know weren't paid as much. Isn't this true? – A.N., Louisville, Ky.

From the inception of the film industry in Hollywood, actors' salaries have varied greatly. Many stars had studio contracts which often called for weekly salaries.

In 1931, Clark Gable received $350 per week from MGM, but 30 years later he was paid $750,000 plus $58,000 for each week overtime for "The Misfits."

In 1932, Cary Grant was being paid $450 a week by Paramount. By 1951, he received $300,000 for "People Will Talk."

Marilyn Monroe was paid $125 a week by 20th Century Fox in 1946, $500 a week in 1951 and $1,200 a week two years later. In 1954, her contract with the studio gave her $75,000 per film and after seven years, $100,000 per film. Only one year later she signed a new contract for $100,000 per film, plus $500 weekly expense money. That same year, Kim Novak was being paid $75 a week by Columbia.



Salaries per film started soaring in the 1960s. Steve McQueen received $1 million in 1968 for "Bullitt," and 10 years later, Marlon Brando got $2.25 million for a brief appearance in "Superman." Gene Hackman was paid $2 million for a major role in the same film.

Mike Downey To Make Run For Congress

Mike Downey, a resident of Thurmont and president of a private communications consulting company, has announced he has formed a campaign committee to seek the Republican nomination for the United States Congress for Maryland's 6th District.

Downey, a retired Army Major, has lived with his wife, Rita, and his family on a farm outside of Frederick since 1977 and has worked in the electronics industry for over 30 years.

During his announcement speech, Downey gave three principle reasons for his decision to run for Congress: bringing more and better jobs to Western Maryland; improving the nation's failing educational system, and; cleaning up the "ethics mess mired within the U.S. Congress."

"First of all, I will work to bring jobs to Western Maryland, and protect the jobs we already have." Downey stated he would use his business experience to help influence both large and small companies to relocate jobs to Western Maryland. He believes his strong support of President George Bush would assist this effort.

"Secondly, it must be a priority to provide our children with the best education possible," said Downey, who listed focusing the educational system more on the needs of the students, rewarding excellence among teachers and students, and allowing parents more of a choice in their children's education as ways to reform the country's education system.

"And, third, I want to clean up the way Congress does its business," Downey continued. Outlining several of his proposals to "clean up Congress," Downey said he would work to enact term limit legislation for Members of Congress. Downey also said he would attempt to eliminate political action committee (PAC) contributions to political candidates, and, because he believes U.S. Representatives are overpaid, promised to give one-quarter of his congressional pay towards improving education in Maryland's 6th District.

Noting his belief that PAC's are "a virus that is killing our political process," Downey said he will neither solicit nor accept PAC money for his campaign. Downey also said, "Given that taxes, the budget, and the deficit have all increased -- paying Members of Congress $125,100 is excessive." Downey noted that he will make public his personal tax returns for the last five years by placing copies of his returns in each of the district's seven county clerk's offices.

Downey acknowledged that he will be the underdog in the campaign for Congress, saying that it is going to be " a lot of hard work." "With all the powers and privileges afforded them, an incumbent member of the House of Representatives -- is hard to unseat," he said.

Downey said that he strongly believes that he will win the Republican nomination in the spring and the general election next November. "I'm running because I believe that the people of Western Maryland can't afford to be left behind any longer," he said.

Because he believes it important for elected officials to know the concerns of the people, Downey has made it a goal to visit at least 50 towns and communities throughout the 6th district over the next 50 days. The district consists of Frederick, Washington, Carroll, Allegany, Garrett, and parts of both Howard and Montgomery counties.

Downey promised to announce and detail his proposals in the coming months. He also stated that he "looks forward to a clean and issues-oriented campaign."

State, County Jobless Rates Up In June

Maryland's estimated unemployment rate in June edged up to 6.0 percent from May's 5.8 percent rate as a result of seasonal factors such as students and summer workers entering the labor force, according to statistics released this week by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

Garrett County's jobless rate increased from 9.7 percent in May to 10.4 percent in June. The June 1990 rate was 8.4 percent.

"An increase in the jobless rate is expected for this time of year," said DEED Secretary J. Randall Evans. "But, this June's rate increase in Maryland is significantly below normal, which we feel is a positive indication that the economy is starting to recover from the recession."

In 1990, the unemployment rate climbed from 3.8 percent in May to 4.4 percent in June.

This month, as some 12,600 workers entered the labor force, about 9,000 people found work for a statewide total of 2,403,535 employed workers. The remaining 4,000 workers became unemployed during the month.

In Garrett County there were actually more people employed in June than in May (13,025 to 12,747); however the June workforce was over 400 higher then the May workforce (14,534 to 14,109).

The June 1991 estimate marks the fifth consecutive month employment has expanded in the state. Seasonal job gains were evident in certain industries throughout the state as indicated by the 1,400 new jobs created in manufacturing. Those gains include the food and related products manufacturing sector. Other gains occurred in eating and drinking outlets, hotels and amusements. Employment grew in health services and small gains were registered in construction.

In Baltimore metropolitan area, the unemployment rate remained unchanged at 6.6 percent. Baltimore City's rate rose slightly from May's 9.5 percent to 9.6 percent in June. Carroll County's jobless rate fell from 5.4 percent to 5.2 percent.

In Maryland's D.C. suburbs, the rate rose to 4.5 percent from May's 4.4 percent. Unemployment rates grew slightly in Calvert, Charles, Montgomery and Prince George's counties in line with seasonal trends.

Unemployment in Western Maryland increased from 8.7 percent in May to 9.4 percent in June. The increase was mainly caused by manufacturing layoffs in Washington County, where the rate rose to 9.1 percent from May's 8.1 percent rate.

On the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland, unemployment during June increased to 7.2 percent from May's rate of 7.0 percent. Talbot County's rate grew to 8.5 percent from May's 4.9 percent due to manufacturing layoffs. Seasonal employment gains reduced Somerset County's joblessness to 9.0 percent from May's 11.1 percent. Hiring in the tourism industry lowered the unemployment rate in Worcester County from 6.5 percent in May to 4.6 percent in June.

The national unemployment rate rose to 6.9 percent in June compared to May's rate of 6.6 percent.

Locally, estimated unemployment rates in June ranged from a low of 3.4 percent in Montgomery County to a high of 10.4 percent in Garrett County.

State DEED Secretary Evans Resigns Post

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer last week announced that he has accepted the resignation of J. Randall Evans, Maryland's Secretary of Economic and Employment Development for the past four and one-half years. Evans resigned to become vice president of corridor development for CSX Transportation, Inc.

Based in Baltimore, Evans will be responsible for line corridor sales and capacity sharing for emerging rail passenger service opportunities. He will also provide a high-level link between CSX and the state of Maryland by acting as CSX liaison with state and local government.

Governor Schaefer expressed his disappointment that Maryland state government would be losing Evans, he was "extremely pleased that he will be joining a great organization like CSX -- a world leader and a very important part of the Maryland economy."

"Randy has done a tremendous job for Maryland," the governor said, adding, "He has tirelessly promoted the state at home, nationally and internationally, building partnerships and forging ties that have brought us great success."

Governor Schaefer hired Evans in January 1987 to reorganize the state's economic development programs, merging the Department of Employment and Training with the economic development programs formerly in the Department of Economic and Community Development into the new Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

Evans oversaw the creation of the Maryland International Division and the World Trade Center Institute and, with Governor Schaefer, led the state on overseas trade missions to Europe, the Soviet Union, the Far East and the Middle East to attract foreign investment and develop trade for Maryland businesses.

Of his new appointment, Evans said "While I am sorry to be leaving DEED and the highly talented group of people there who have worked so hard for Maryland, I am excited by the opportunity to join CSX, a national and international transportation company. Bob Kirk (president and chief executive officer of CSX) has challenged me to be entrepreneurial in developing commuter rail and light rail mass transit opportunities across the country."

Prior to serving as Secretary of DEED, Evans was executive director of the Richmond Renaissance Program in Richmond, Va., and held several positions in the Baltimore City Department of Housing and Community Development. He also served with the U.S. Navy's Civil Engineer Corps.

He received a bachelor of science degree from Princeton University in 1969 and a master's degree in public policy from Harvard University in 1977.

"We are extremely pleased to have Randy Evans join our company," said Kirk. "He is a nationally recognized economic development leader who will significantly increase our ability to address new opportunities for the sale of major rail corridor rights to private or governmental passenger service entities."

CSX Transportation Inc. and its 36,000 employees provide rail transportation and distribution services over an 18,800-route-mile network in 20 states, the District of Columbia and Ontario, Canada. CSXT is a business unit of CSX Corporation, headquartered in Richmond, Va.

Fire Marshal Notes Reduction In Fire Deaths

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has announced a reduction in fire deaths for the first six months of 1991 as compared with the same period in 1990. From January 1 through June 30, 1991, 48 fire deaths have been recorded by the State Fire Marshal, as compared with 64 fatalities for the same period in 1990, a 25% reduction.

During the first six months of 1991, 25% of the fire victims were 12 years old or younger, which is up from the 15.7% figure for this age group the first six months of 1990.

Careless smoking continues to be the leading cause of fatal fires accounting for 35.4% of all fire deaths between January and June of 1991.

Additionally, there were six arson fires deaths recorded during the first six months of 1991 as compared with none in 1990.

Although fire deaths have declined during the first six months this year, Baltimore City fire fatalities have increased approximately 10% over 1990 figures. Thus far in 1991, 22 people have died in fires in Baltimore City as compared to 20 fire fatalities recorded for the first six months of 1990.

Baltimore County ranks second in the state in fire deaths behind Baltimore City with four fatalities recorded during the first six months of 1991. However, this is a reduction from the seven fire deaths recorded during the first six months of 1990.

Finally, the proportion of fire deaths in residential properties (homes, apartment, mobile homes) has increased from 68.7% during the first six months of 1990 to 85.5% in 1991.

Commenting on the reduction in fire deaths, Fire Marshal Gabriele stated, "We are extremely pleased with our reduction in deaths thus far for 1991. However, we most not be satisfied with this reduction, and should continue to work to eliminate fire deaths altogether."

HEARING AIDS
DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID?
ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?
This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.
We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".

Club To Hold Knit-A-Thon For Local Santa

The Kan Knit Machine Knitting Club will be holding a knit-a-thon Saturday, August 24, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The knit-a-thon will be held at Lenora's Fabric and Yarn along U.S. Route 219, two and one half miles south of Oakland.

The club members will be working non-stop during the knit-a-thon, knitting donated yarn into caps. Last year the club made 161 caps, and the Kan Knits plan to exceed that number this year.

The caps made this year, along with slippers and mittens, will again be donated to Lou and Lola Stouffer. Mr. and Mrs. Stouffer, better known as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, work throughout the year repairing toys and collecting donated items to deliver at Christmas time to lower income families in Garrett and Preston counties. Last year the Stouffers traveled over 6,000 miles and left gifts at over 535 homes. The Stouffers have been named one of President Bush's 1,000 "Points of Light."

Greta Edgar of WKHJ radio station will be broadcasting live from the knit-a-thon until noon. She will be interviewing club members and the Stouffers.

Everyone is invited to stop by the knit-a-thon to encourage the knitters. Anyone wanting to help is invited to help seam up the caps or to make pompoms. Those who would like to donate scrap or leftover yarn may bring it to Lenora's anytime during store hours.

Mansion Tours Are Successful For Red Cross

According to fund-raising chairman Donna Heginbotham, the tours of the DelSignore mansion conducted Sunday by local American Red Cross volunteers were "an overwhelming success," as over 700 persons visited the structure, located along Herrington Manor Road.

The funds raised by the tours and via the raffling of a 1991 Pontiac Grand-Am will remain in Garrett County and be placed in the Disaster Relief Fund, according to Ms. Heginbotham.

Ms. Heginbotham noted her appreciation to the various local businesses and individuals who contributed to the success of the event. These included: the DelSignore family, Hoyes Bakery, The Flower Basket, Josie's Bakery, Bob Morgan, Ann Glotfelty, and Bea Crosco.

Persons desiring more information about the local services of the Red Cross or about how to become a Red Cross volunteer may call Cindy Kutchman, executive director, at 334-3916.

Oakland Civic Club Meeting Held Recently

The Oakland Civic Club met Tuesday, July 30, 1991, at the Will O' the Wisp. The meeting was called to order by Betty Moran, vice president, for President Martha Jachowski who was on vacation.

During the meeting, committee reports were given and the drawing was held for the afghan made and donated by Erica Capelle. The winner was Nell Keegan of Oakland.

Following lunch, the group was entertained by Martin Heise at the piano and Charles Morris on the clarinet. They played several pieces by Mozart and it was very much enjoyed by all.

Dr. Alta Schrock of Penn Alps in Grantsville will present the program for the club's August meeting. She plans to speak on the history of Garrett County.

Teleconference For Disabled Set August 14

A program entitled "The 1991 Interactive Teleconference on Leveraging Funds from Public and Private Insurers for the Purchase of Assistive Technology for Individuals with Disabilities" will be presented Wednesday, Aug. 14, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The teleconference will be broadcast locally at Garrett Community College, Room 134, Continuing Education Building.

According to Rick Metheny, director of the Western Regional Office, Maryland Technology Assistance Program, the program will address the nationwide problem of the affordability of the many technological tools that are available today for persons with disabilities. The program will feature a panel of national experts in funding assistive technology tools.

The panelists will include: Dr. Jan Galvin, associate director of the Rehabilitation Engineering Center at the National Rehabilitation Hospital; Steve Mendolson, of DeWitt, Mendolson and Associates and author of "Financing Adaptive Technology: A Guide to Sources and Strategies for Blind and Visually Impaired Users;" Lewis Golinker, Legal Services of Central New York, legal advisor to national and state agencies and council to clients/consumers on securing funds from varied sources; and Ms. Rachel Wobschall, executive director of the STAR Program, which is facilitating implementation of the Technology Assistance Act in Minnesota.

Metheny said the teleconference will be a valuable resource for individuals with disabilities and their families, vocational rehabilitation staff persons, special education staff persons, service providers, and anyone else interested in disability issues. Topics to be addressed include: strategies for leveraging funding from Medicare/Medicaid agencies and sources; specific successful case studies; when and how to approach third-party insurers for funding; and additional funding sources arising from recent amendments and tax law changes.

Limited registration for the program will be held at GCC at 11 a.m. Persons may pre-register or obtain more information by contacting Metheny at (301) 777-2373.

Adventists Hold Successful School

Mt. Top Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Route 219 North, recently held a successful Camp Can-Do Vacation Bible School, according to the director, Nancy Stewart. Over 80 children participated in the various activities of the Bible School, the theme of which was "I Can Do All Things Through Christ Who Strengthens Me."

Linda Robinette and Diane Kuhn led in a variety of crafts. Marjorie Wan added music for the many songs the children learned. At the end of every night of Bible School, the staff and children gathered around a campfire for a puppet show, the theme song, and a closing prayer.

Dennis and Elizabeth Cease taught the children to read and use a compass, and at the end of the week, Esmine Townsend had a display and talk on several nature objects.

"We wish to thank all staff members who led out, and the many volunteers who helped make this Bible School a success," stated Ms. Stewart.

Wildlife Habitat Backyards Now Number 1,000

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources announces its 1,000th participant in the state's Wild Acres program, which certifies properties managed and maintained for the benefit and care of Maryland's wildlife. This latest participant to Wild Acres is also dedicated to helping wildlife with bird feeders, bird baths, flowers and shrubs, and serving as a sanctuary for the wildlife that visits.

The Wild Acres program is designed to encourage wildlife habitat in urban and suburban areas. Participants receive a certificate and an outdoor sign, proclaiming their property as a part of Maryland's Wild Acres once their property qualifies.

To qualify, the participant must provide appropriate food, shelter, water, or space for wildlife. Information and advice on planting trees, shrubs, and flowers that attract wildlife, feeding wild birds, building a variety of animal homes as well as an application, are provided in the packet to those interested.

"We are excited by the success of the Wild Acres program, said Edith Thompson, urban wildlife biologist for DNR's Wildlife Division. "Wild Acres - certified properties stretch across Maryland and are in every county. The participation in Wild Acres truly illustrates the interest and dedication Maryland citizens have for wildlife and their desire to help conserve these natural resources," Thompson emphasized.

Since its inception in January of 1990, nature-loving Marylanders have responded overwhelmingly to the Wild Acres program which is administered by DNR's Urban Wildlife Program. The Wild Acres information packet and an application are available by calling (301) 974-3195 or writing: Urban Wildlife Program, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Battle Of The Bulge Veterans Being Sought

The Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge, Inc. (VBOB) was founded in Arlington, Virginia, on December 16, 1981, as a non-profit, educational veterans organization. VBOB is composed of veterans who fought in the six-week Ardennes Campaign in Belgium and Luxembourg in fog, snow, rain, and ice in the bitter cold winter of 1944-45 and of relatives, friends and history buffs. Since its formation, VBOB has grown to over 8,000 members.

With the 50th anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge rapidly approaching, VBOB is expanding its efforts in search of World War II veterans who served in this battle. VBOB will hold its 10th Annual Reunion in Charleston, S.C., September 5-7, 1991, at the Sheraton Airport Inn.

Veterans of this battle, family members, and others interested in learning more about VBOB and the reunion may write to: VBOB, P.O. Box 11129-P, Arlington, Virginia 22210-2129, for information.

Deadline For Taxpayers With Extensions Noted

If you're one of those taxpayers who didn't file your federal tax return by the April 15 due date, but did take advantage of the 4-month automatic extension by filing Form 4868, you are reminded that you have until August 15 to mail your tax return to the Internal Revenue Service.

"We keep a record of taxpayers who filed for the extension and come August 15 we'll be looking for those tax returns," said H.J. Hightower, IRS district director for Maryland and Washington, D.C.

Taxpayers who included a payment when they filed the extension form back in April should be sure to enter that payment on line 58 of their Form 1040. Those who file Form 1040A should include the amount paid in the total on line 28d and write "Form 4868" and the exact amount in the space to the left of the line. Form 1040EZ cannot be used by those who asked for an extension of time to file their return.

Those who have questions may call the IRS weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. at 1-800-829-1040.
